FORMER MINE MULE DRIVER NOW HEADS 13 COMPANIES

Tom Moses, Until Recently Superintendent of U. S. Fuel Co., Studied Engineering Nights.

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ill., July 23.—Tom Moses, 37 years ago a mule driver in the Old Mike Kelly coal mine near here and unable to read and write, came home today from Pittsburg, Pa., with the presidencies of 13 allied companies, all subsidiaries of the U. S. Steel Corporation, in his pocket.

For the last 13 years Tom has been general superintendent of the U. S. Fuel Co., operating mines in Illinois and Indiana with headquarters in Danville. This company is one of those he will now head as president; the Henry C. Frick Coke Co., and 12 allied companies of which three are water companies and three are coal carrying railroads in Pennsylvania.

Tom Moses married while a mule driver and took his bride to live in a two-room miner's shack at Westville, a mining community near here. He studied mining engineering nights and hired a school teacher to instruct him in reading and writing and English.

Van Lear Black, American Publisher, Returns to Amsterdam.

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, July 23.—Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, was received enthusiastically today on his arrival at the Schipol airdrome in his chartered airplane, completing a round trip to the Dutch East Indies of nearly 20,000 miles.

Black was received by Minister of Public Works Vandervegte, who congratulated him in behalf of the Government and announced that Queen Wilhelmina had conferred upon him the Orangen Nassau Order in recognition of his work in the cause of aviation. The Minister later announced that pilots Scholte and Geysendorff would be similarly honored.

Spends Strenuous Day Under Lenses of Movie Camera Near Head of Wild Canyon — Trout Refuse His Spinner.

By the Associated Press.

MYSTIC, S. D., July 23.—In the heart of the Black Hills near the head of a picturesque canyon, President Coolidge today cast a trout line into a tumbling creek and later panned for gold such as 50 years ago made this canyon famous.

Perched on overhanging crags and on other points of vantage camera men worked to record the first pictures ever made of Mr. Coolidge fishing. The waters, made muddy by an all-night rain, did not yield their quarry, however, and the President turned to Joe Bullis, a native prospector, for instructions on how to pan gold. In fishing the President sidestepped both worms and flies and used a red spinner.

After an hour or more at Slate Creek, to which he traveled nearly 70 miles from the Summer White House, a huge sparkle of gold came from the President's pan and he smiled broadly as Mrs. Coolidge looked on and congratulated him on his good fortune.

Negotiated Tortuous Trail.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge came to the summer lodge of Sam R. McKelvie, former Governor of Nebraska, now publisher of the Nebraska Farmer, over a tortuous mountain trail which led two and a half miles into dense pine forests from Mystic. The last stages of the journey were made in a rumbling lumber wagon drawn by two heavy farm horses, but when the animals puffed from the long, hard pull the President stepped down, took his coat off and in his shirt sleeves helped push the wagon up the hill.

The road was rocky and uncertain. Rain caused streams of water to run down the ruts, but for nearly a mile the President stumbled and felt his way along the trail while Mrs. Coolidge, laughing heartily, looked back at him as the bumpy drive jerked her from side to side.

"Isn't that kind of hard on you, Calvin?" she asked as the procession crept up the hill.

"Oh, no," Mr. Coolidge replied. "I like the exercise."

Camera Men Kept on Jump.

Camera men rushed from hillside to crag as the drive proceeded, catching views of the President from all angles. And he laid a hand so hard on the rear of the wagon that his shirt and suspenders showed below his vest. Mr. Coolidge appeared to enjoy the event as much as any of his party of 30 which followed him closely on foot and in straw laden lumber wagons.

Finally the President and Mrs. Coolidge reached the McKelvie camp. The former Governor had met them at the station to direct them into the fastnesses of the mountains, and Mrs. McKelvie greeted her distinguished guests as they reached the spacious log cabin, which nestles among pine trees and close by a swiftly moving creek.

"Hello, dear," Mrs. Coolidge greeted her hostess. "I'm simply delighted to be here. And what a beautiful and interesting drive that was. It was so much fun."

The President merely said, "How do you do," but smiled, seemingly in agreement with Mrs. Coolidge's sentiments.

Eats, Then Dons Hip Boots.

A luncheon table filled with all manner of picnic food awaited them, but it was not long after he had eaten that the President put on his hip boots, selected a rod and reel and virtually slid down the mountainside to Slate Creek. A warm sun beamed down on him. Overhead a breeze blew through the tops of the pine trees, cooling what otherwise would have been a hot day. Squirrels jumped from limb to limb turning a questioning eye upon the first President ever to tread their habitat. But the rain of the night before proved too big an obstacle for successful angling.

The journey to Mystic from Rapid City, where Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had motored from the Summer White House, was made up a railroad line which runs through Rapid Canyon. The President watched with great interest the scene of beauty which stretched up from him on both sides.

Greeted at Little Hamlets.

At various litle hamlets along the line, natives and summer residents who find contentment in this section during their vacation gathered to wave a hand as Mr. Coolidge's open car went by.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge alighted immediately after the train halted at Mystic, both laughing as they caught sight of their conveyance. With the sprightliness with which they might have stepped into a White House limou-

MRS. M'PHERSON BACK AT TEMPLE; OUSTS HER MOTHER

Mrs. Kennedy, as She Packs Her Grip, Tells of Being Ordered by Daughter to Take Vacation.

EVANGELIST TO RULE WITH 'AN IRON HAND'

Minister Allied With Insurrectionists in Congregation Becomes New Business Manager.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 23.—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, returned to Angelus Temple today, announcing that she had come back to take the helm and emphasizing the fact by naming the Rev. C. E. Jaynes business manager in place of her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, who, the evangelist said, was to take a vacation.

An ultimatum that Mrs. Kennedy retire tomorrow, leaving for a vacation in Alaska or any distant point, was issued by Mrs. McPherson to her mother this afternoon, the latter tearfully admitted tonight. She stood beside her half packed suitcase at the Temple home.

Mrs. Kennedy said her daughter threatened that unless her mother departed she would return to Alton, Ill., there to resume her revival work, and declared that she already had wired Alton representatives not to remove the tent and equipment set up there for the meetings.

To Take Full Control.

The evangelist intends to take full control and rule her church with "an iron hand," Mrs. Kennedy said she had told her followers. Mrs. Kennedy tearfully admitted she thought it was best that she follow her daughter's wishes, "But I love her and I don't know what to do," she said. Referring to the suitcase, she intended to stay with friends in the city, and have another last talk with her daughter.

The action confirmed the declaration of Temple insurrectionists, who had opposed the control of Mrs. Kennedy, that the latter would be ousted from any official connection with the church. The Rev. Mr. Jaynes, pastor of the Riverside branch of the church, had been personal representative of Mrs. McPherson in the controversy and led the faction opposing Mrs. Kennedy. His succession to her office was as the insurrectionists had declared necessary to "save the church from going on the rocks."

In announcing her mother's ouster, the evangelist said: "I have come back to take the helm."

Says Mother Needs Vacation.

She explained her act further by saying that her mother was "going to get her vacation. She long has needed it."

The evangelist did not deny that she had written the Rev. Mr. Jaynes instructing him to take charge of the services and money collections.

"Mother is my mother, and even if these things were true I could not say anything about them," she said in declining to be quoted regarding any differences with Mrs. Kennedy.

Mrs. McPherson left this city some weeks ago because of dissension with her mother, it was disclosed today.

Had Been Away Two Months.

A letter from the evangelist to the Rev. Mr. Jaynes was the first direct statement from Mrs. McPherson to explain her departure from Los Angeles two months ago to hold revival services in the East.

Mrs. McPherson described herself as penniless and heart-broken at the time she went East. She declared in the letter she would rather spend her entire time in the field than quarrel with her mother. The letter says:

"It having been made impossible for me to longer remain in Angelus Temple and be pastor of my people there under the present regime, I chose, rather than to strive to step quietly out penniless into the field, leaving behind me all that which tangibly represents 18 years of the most exacting labor."

King's Beer Specially Brewed.

By the Associated Press

LONDON, July 23.—King George V greatly prefers lager beer to any other form of alcoholic beverage. The King's lager is brewed by an Edinburgh firm, and is supplied to no other table, it is said. The King is known for being remarkably abstemious in diet. Lager beer, which, after the war, was in considerable vogue in England as a summer beverage, is in less demand this year, probably because of the unseasonable coolness of the weather.

'BUT CAN'T I PLAY ANY MORE?' ASKS 6-YEAR-OLD KING

Boy Ruler Prefers to Romp With Children of American Envoy to Sitting on Throne.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, July 23.—There are three American children here who can have a King as their playmate. They are the children of William Smith Culbertson, American Minister to Rumania. Mr. Culbertson's home is in Emporia, Kan.

Whenever 6-year-old Michael had a day out recently, he could be seen in the garden of the American Legation, playing and romping with the three Yankee youngsters or racing after their American fox terrier.

The boy ruler, whose father is in exile in Paris, has no conception of the exalted position which has suddenly been thrust upon him. He shows a far greater desire to play with his little American friends than to sit on the throne.

"What has happened? Have they changed my name? Everybody calls me 'Your Majesty,'" said little Michael to his English governess today.

The governess explained that his grandfather's death had made him King and that from now on he must be more serious. The little King thought for a moment and then answered: "But won't I be allowed to play any more? I can't leave my American playmates."

King Michael is today probably the richest boy—royal or plebeian—in the world.

Under Ferdinand's will, he received property valued at $20,000,000, about $400,000 in cash and all the crown jewels, which have been appraised at $35,000,000. He also will receive a civil list of $500,000 annually and emoluments of $2,000,000, bringing his total fortune to nearly $70,000,000.

From his plain $20 crib, where he once played with a 10-cent American rattle, this child has been elevated to the golden throne of a King, to wear a bejeweled crown valued at $5,000,000.

BALLOONIST BADLY INJURED

He Escapes in Parachute When Bag Explodes 3000 Feet in Air.

By the Associated Press.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 23.—John S. Smith, an exhibition balloonist, was badly burned about the chest and legs today when hydrogen in his balloon exploded while he was drifting at an altitude of 3000 feet above Schuylkill Park, four miles from here.

Smith managed to cast off in his parachute and get clear of the burning balloon. He landed safely in a field and was brought to the Anthracite Hospital here where it was said he would recover.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 23.—"We are ready now to get off at the first sign of favorable weather," Capt. Frank T. Courtney told the Associated Press late today after inspecting the "Whale in which he is planning to hop off Monday on his trans-Atlantic voyage.

The radio installation was adjusted to the satisfaction of a Marconi expert and worked successfully in a land test this afternoon. Capt. Courtney intends to make a trial flight, his fourth, tomorrow.

WALES AND BALDWIN SAIL FROM LONDON FOR CANADA

Prince and Brother on Way to Ranch, Prime Minister to Leave the Party at Banff.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 23.—The Prince of Wales, his brother, Prince George, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and their party sailed for Canada aboard the Empress of Australia at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The departure from London was of a most informal nature. The King did not appear, but the Duke of York arrived early at the Waterloo station to bid his brothers farewell. The Prince came in a closed motor car, and after chatting with several members of the Cabinet and other friends, they entered the train with Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin.

The two Princes are on their way to Wales' ranch at High River, Alberta, while Baldwin, after proceeding as far as Banff, will return East.

On Aug. 7, it was officially announced, they will motor from Niagara Falls to meet Vice President Dawes and Secretary of State Kellogg on the newly-erected Buffalo peace bridge.

The farewells to the King and Queen were said at Buckingham Palace last night.

The Prince and his brother have adopted the slogan "travel light" and Wales' baggage includes but two uniforms, while Prince George is taking only one naval outfit.

TWO ST. LOUIS BOYS INJURED IN MICHIGAN AUTO CRASH

Thomas Mitchell, 16, Suffers Fracture of Skull; Millard Smith's Leg Broken.

Thomas Mitchell, 16-year-old son of Samuel Mitchell, St. Louis attorney of 6 Windemere place, was seriously injured early yesterday when he was thrown from an automobile that crashed into a tree near Grand Rapids, Mich., according to dispatches.

Mitchell suffered a skull fracture and concussion of the brain, and was in a critical condition last night at the Hatton Hospital, Grand Rapids. Millard Smith, 16-year-old son of Mrs. Richard Hawes, whose husband is vice-president of the First National Bank, was also a passenger in the car and suffered a broken leg. Jack Powers, son of Hugh Powers of the Mercantile Trust Co., and a young woman who was in the machine, received minor cuts and bruises.

Another car, traveling at high speed, forced the automobile in which the St. Louis youths were riding into a ditch, where it struck a tree.

BOY, 14, DROWNED WHEN SWIMMING WITH COMPANIONS

Lowell Benten Believed to Have Been Seized With Cramps in Pond on the East Side.

Lowell Benten, 14 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Benten of 1711 South Third street, was drowned yesterday afternoon while he was swimming with four companions in a slough in the yards of the Southern Railroad on the East Side just south of the Municipal Bridge. He was the sixth St. Louisan to lose his life by drowning within the last three days.

The Benten boy, who was employed by a cooperage company in St. Louis, and his companions went to the slough early in the afternoon. It is filled with about eight feet of back water from the Mississippi River. About 3 o'clock Everett Hill, 17, also of 1711 South Third street, saw Benten floundering and struggling in the water as if he had been seized with cramps. Before he could reach the boy he had gone down.

The body was not recovered. East St. Louis police were sent to grapple for it. The body of Elmo Sanders, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sanders of 7329A South Broadway, who was drowned in the Mississippi Friday, also has not been recovered. A woman and three men were drowned previously.

TRAFFIC DELAYED BY HEAVY RAINS ON ATLANTIC COAST

Downpour of Almost Cloudburst Intensity in Parts of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Rains extending from Quebec along the Atlantic coast to the Gulf and inland over New York, Pennsylvania and the cotton States today caused widespread temporary damage, according to reports reaching here.

The storms were in most cases brief, cloudburst intensity being reported in New Jersey, Westchester County of New York, and parts of Pennsylvania. In Pennsylvania, several railroad bridges were washed away and landslides delayed train service between Harrisburg, Pa., and Buffalo, N. Y.

Flooded streets delayed traffic in most of the larger cities, and flooded sewers and cellars were reported. At Buffalo, the rainfall was 2.72 inches; at Pittsburg, 1.64 and at Scranton, Pa., 1.16 inches. On Staten Island, nearly one inch fell in seven minutes.

CROWDS WAIT AND WATCH IN SQUARE

While Argument in Jury Room Goes On as to Fate of Gangsters, Interest of Spectators Is Tense.

BY FREDERICK H. BRENNAN.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Ill., July 24.—When the jury in whose hands rests the fate of Charlie Birger, Art Newman and Ray Hyland, gangsters, charged with conspiracy in the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City last December 12, had failed to reach a verdict at 12:15 o'clock this morning, 10 hours after it began its deliberations, Judge Miller announced that a verdict if reached would not be received before 6:30 this morning.

The jurors still were balloting at 1 a. m. and were ordered to remain in the jury room. If they decide on a verdict before 6:30 a. m., they are to retire to their hotel, still in charge of deputy sheriffs, and report to the court later in the morning.

No word had come from the jurors since they were sent to their room at 2:20 p. m. yesterday. All the time had been spent in deliberating except for the hour they were out to supper, between 6 and 7.

A verdict may be received by the Court on Sunday as a magisterial function, but cannot be legally entered on the record and sentence officially pronounced until Monday.

A tense, nerve-tiring atmosphere came upon Benton last night as the afternoon faded out and lights were switched on in the gray and ancient courthouse. The lights from its high, narrow windows flooded out upon the town square. Figures of the jurymen in their west room could be seen, there being no curtains on the two windows of the chamber. Into the square poured a throng, attracted by the Saturday night diversions of a country town and by the drama taking place in the jury room.

A Restless Crowd Waits.

Automobiles were banked two deep about the square, and hundreds of others, moving in from the four high roads which meet at the courthouse, began circling the building in a restless hubbub. Hundreds of curious citizens paraded the streets, gathering in knots on the west side to stare up at the jurors in their room. Groups assembled on the broad sidewalks in front of stores—men, women and children—while newsboys cried the names of papers and merchants did divers tradings.

A short block away sat the men whose fate hangs in the balance, in jail cells talking with loved ones. Birger, the gang chieftain, was a melancholy figure, sweating and ashen-faced as he talked with his wife. Newman and his wife waited in another cell. In the first-floor block young Hyland kept watch alone. He seemed less disturbed by the suspense than the others and talked lightly with sundry prisoners who gathered about him.

The jurors held the center of the stage as they moved, mere silhouettes in the darkness and light. People who watched them endeavored to learn from their movements how went the balloting. Two or three jurors appeared to do most of the talking. One could see their heads shaking for emphasis and hands flung out to attract the attention of their fellows.

The jurors may vote for death, acquittal, life imprisonment or a term of years in the penitentiary no less than 14 as to each or all of the defendants. The State has demanded death for all three gangsters.

Deadlock, Crowd Believes.

It was a scene of deadlock in the jury room as the crowd below

DAVID MAY RITES WILL BE TUESDAY AT TEMPLE ISRAEL

Six Executives in Service of Department Stores Company 23 to 35 Years Will Be Pallbearers.

PRIVATE SERVICES TO BE AT CEMETERY

Establishments of Organization in Eight American and Thirteen Foreign Cities to Close.

The funeral of David May, chairman of the board of the May Department Stores Co., who was regarded as the leading retail merchant of the United States, will be conducted Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. from Temple Israel. Private services will be at New Mt. Sinai cemetery. Rabbi Samuel Sale will officiate at both services.

Mr. May died unexpectedly Friday afternoon at his summer home at Charlevoix, Mich. He had been ill for several months of heart disease.

A special train scheduled to leave Charlevoix tonight will bring the body to St. Louis.

May stores in St. Louis, Cleveland, Denver, Los Angeles and Akron and offices in New York, Boston, Chicago and 13 foreign cities will be closed all day Tuesday. The organization has 14,000 employes in the cities named.

Executives to Be Pallbearers.

Six of nine pallbearers have served in the May company as executives from 23 to 35 years. They are Louis M. Monheimer, Fred Z. Salomon, Samuel B. Butler, Max Koenigsberg and Roy K. Lockhart. The other pallbearers will be Alvin D. Goldman, Leo Keller of Paducah, Ky., and Charles M. Rice.

The May Department Stores Co., capitalized at $30,000.00, last year reported a gross business of more than $100,000,000. Mr. May, who founded the company in Denver, retired as president in 1917, being succeeded by his son, Morton J. May, who has been actively in charge since, although Mr. May did not completely cease his attention to its affairs until a few months ago. He was 79 years old.

His wife, Mrs. Rose Schoenberg May, and a daughter, Mrs. Florence E. Strauss of Chicago were with him at Charlevoix. Of four children, Morton J. May was on his way to spend the week-end with his parents, as has been his custom since the illness of his father. He was apprised on the train of his father's death. Thomas and Wilbur D. May, vice president and treasurer, respectively, of the department store organization, were in Los Angeles and have left for St. Louis.

"Work" His Motto.

Mr. May's career was an absorbing one. He came to America from his birthplace, Kaiserslautern, Germany, when 15 years old. He studied to learn the English language in Cincinnati, earning his schooling by part-time working. On his seventy-fifth birthday, to a Post-Dispatch reporter who inquired his recipe for success, Mr. May responded in one word: "Work."

His motto hung before him in early youth. A presidential campaign occurred during his schooling and part of his earnings came from selling lithographed pictures of the candidates. One of his sales was to a man named Kirschbaum, who was attracted by the selling methods of the youth. He offered young May a job at $25 a month, board, room and washing, as clerk in a store in Hartford City, Ind., in which Kirschbaum had an interest.

The hours were from 7 a. m. until closing time and closing time was as late as people cared to buy —sometimes as late as 11 o'clock. At the end of two years, young May asked for a raise.

"Raise," echoed Kirschbaum's partner, who was running the business, "David, you should be a member of the firm."

Young May was flabbergasted, but he went to Cincinnati to see Kirschbaum and told him that he had worked hard and perhaps he should be a partner in the business.

His First Partnership.

Kirschbaum threw his head back and roared with laughter. Then he eyed the young man and sobered. "You are a good boy, David," he said. "You are a one-fourth partner."

Mr. May's first $25,000 was achieved as the one-fourth partner in that Indiana store. In 1877 his health broke under the strain of pursuing his motto, "Work." He went to Manitou, Colo. Shortly afterward silver was discovered in the nearby town of Leadville and May joined the rush. For some time he panned a barren mountain side. In the middle of one weary day, he looked at his blistered hands and said to his partner: "I am not a miner; let's start a store."

Leadville in Boom Days.

He did and went to Chicago to buy a stock, which he placed in a shack lined with calico. The stock was sold out in a few weeks to the gathering hordes of fortune hunters. May returned to Chicago and bought another stock, which included a collection of women's gowns, so gorgeous and expensive that they had failed to sell even in Chicago. May took them to Leadville, where the quick-rich miners' wives bought them like hot cakes.

May remained in Leadville for 11 years. One day on a visit to Denver he ran across a bankrupt sale. He bid $31,000 and got the stock and business. By afternoon of the same day he had a brass band on the streets. He sold the stock in a week and replaced it with a new one in a remodeled building. It was the first of the May chain of stores. Today it is the May Co. of Denver, third largest in the chain.

It was in 1891 that Mr. May came to St. Louis. He was on a buying trip to New York. A man, who said he had a business in St. Louis, said that he couldn't make it pay, but he thought that May could. May paid $150,000 for the store at Sixth and Washington. With two other stores which Mr. May later bought — Barr's and Crawford's — he established the Famous-Barr Co., second largest of the May chain, the largest being the Cleveland store, which he purchased in 1898.

Found Happiness in Friends.

His associates give as his outstanding personal attribute, his desire for friends and his satisfaction in friendships. In his later years he had a fondness for mixing upon the floors of his store with customers and his employes, for whom he had a fondness, particularly those long in service whom he called by their first names. Many of the company executives and employes have been in its service 25 years or more.

Much of Mr. May's later life was spent in Los Angeles where he formed friendships with motion picture stars. He was particularly fond of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford and a photograph of himself with these two hangs in his office in Famous-Barr.

His St. Louis home at 5 Washington terrace was sold recently and upon his visits to St. Louis, Mr. May stayed with his son, Morton May.

Jacob J. Pflueger Files Suit to Restrain City From 6 Per Cent Levy.

Suit to restrain the city from adding 6 per cent for engineering and inspection costs to tax bills for the improvement of Richard place, between Carter avenue and Kennett place, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Jacob J. Pflueger against the Board of Public Service.

Fred J. Hoffmeister, attorney for Pflueger, said his client would contend that an ordinance authorizing the 6 per cent inspection and engineering cost is void for the reason that it does not create a benefit district for this assessment.

GREEN PLEDGES LABOR'S AID FOR LATIN AMERICA

President of A. F. of L. Tells Pan-American Delegates of Desire for Friendship at Closing Session.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The American Federation of Labor will continue to use its influence so that United States policies will be such as to hold the friendship of Latin American countries, President William Green today told the fifth Pan-American Labor Congress before it adpourned.

There exists in the minds of Latin American people a distrust of the attitude of our people," said Green. "That distrust must be removed if we are to develop commerce and understanding. This can be accomplished by pursuit of a policy recognizing justice as an elemental principle. It is the desire of the American Federation of Labor, representing 5,000,000 workers, that such a policy should be followed."

Adoption of routine reports condemning communistic propaganda and reaffirming previous exceptions to State Department policies toward Mexico and Nicaragua occupied the last session. Outbursts such as marked previous meetings were lacking, as the delegates calmly assented to reports of the resolutions committee read by Chairman Woll.

Ricardo A. Martinez, of Venezuela, explained his attack on the United States yesterday by saying he believed that President William Green, "has helped to conceal rather than expose American imperialism." Martinez stated that yesterday he had been given the opportunity to explain his attack but that he considered "the American masses just as much a victim of imperialism as the oppressed peoples all over the world."

The congress recommended to the Executive Board to continue efforts to effect revision of the pending United States treaty with Pan-American countries to avoid "inflicting injustice in international relations." A resolution also was adopted urging that efforts be made to help settle the Tacna-Arica dispute between Peru and Chile peacefully and justly.

TEXAS KLANSMEN ATTACKED

Officers Sent From Dallas When Crowd Fights Marchers.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND PRARIE, Tex., July 23. —Ku klux klansmen on parade here tonight were attacked by a number of spectators and several persons, including klansmen, were reported injured. The affair was little more than a free-for-all fist fight with one pistol and one knife being drawn. The klan continued to parade.

One man was arrested and held by seven deputy sheriffs who came here from Dallas, 12 miles away. None of the participants in the affray was seriously injured.

TENANTS RESIST BLUE LAW RULE OF OCEAN GROVE, N. J.

Charge Outgrown Moral Regulations Work to Detriment of Persons Engaged in Business.

WHITE-HAIRED WOMAN LEADER

Hotel Owner Says Resort Is Locked to Outsiders Over Sundays—Even Curtailed Street Lights.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 23. —Into this unique religious resort, where Methodism sponsors, alike, mass worship, Billy Sunday, merry-go-rounds, skee-ball alleys and vendors of seaside trinkets, has come once more the voice of dissension.

This time it is white-haired, blunt Mrs. Martha F. Kunst, proprietor of a small hotel who protested against what she terms "the outworn business and moral standards of 50 years ago."

It is not her first venture in rebellion against the 26 trustees of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, all Methodist preachers or laymen. They rule the 600 acres of Ocean Grove, with its permanent population of 3000 and its 40,000 summer residents, as an autocracy under a perpetual franchise from the State of New Jersey, and for years she has been one of their most bitter antagonists. But on this occasion she believes she and the 108 leaseholders and "renters," who she says have joined her, will win.

Head of Association Not Afraid.

But of her activities and the sources of her complaints, the Rev. Charles M. Boswell, president of the association, professes complete ignorance. A large, basso profundo man, who calls strangers "brother," he tucked napkin into vest and announced solemnly:

"I will make no answer to anything that woman cares to say. I do not have to. I know nothing about her nor the organization she says she heads. We're not on the defensive. We're not afraid of her. Our charter is rock-ribbed, iron chained forever. Why should we be afraid of what she says?"

What she had said was a good deal. She declared that because the association does not sell but leases building lots for 99 years, building loan and mortgage companies cannot lend money on such lots and leaseholders are forced into the hands of loan sharks, who charge 17 per cent interest a year.

Numerous Other Complaints.

Other allegations are:

That no playgrounds are provided for children, that street lights have been reduced in numbers and power, that gates to the resort are closed from midnight Saturday until Monday morning, keeping visitors away, that no Sunday bathing is permitted, that no Catholic, Jew or Christian Scientist may purchase property in the resort, that a convention of 8000 Lutherans was turned away because a clergyman said prohibition was the business of the churches, that all automobiles must be removed from Ocean Grove over Sunday, that armed private policemen are insulting, and that dancing and card playing are prohibited.

But the camp meeting association still holds the fort.

24 Girl Scouts Sail for Europe.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Twenty-four little girls, many of whom never before had seen an ocean liner, boarded one today as delegates to their own international convention in Europe. They are Golden Eaglets, highest rank awarded Girl Scouts, and sailed on the liner Minnekahda for Boulogne to attend the international camp for Girl Guides and Girl Scouts at Parc D'Ariana, just behind the new League of Nations building in Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 5 to 16. The girls are from 15 states and represent every section of the country.

200,000 Communications To Lindbergh Answered

Chamber of Commerce, After Six Weeks, Virtually Completes Task of Acknowledging Letters to Flyer.

Climaxing six weeks' work, the Chamber of Commerce has virtually completed the task of sorting and acknowledging the avalanche of mail that descended upon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the occasion of his successful flight from New York to Paris.

More than 200,000 letters and packages, originating in virtually every section of the civilized world and directed to the flyer, were answered on his behalf by the Chamber. The work, which was personally supervised by Secretary William T. Findly of the Chamber, was undertaken at the request of Col. Lindbergh.

Opening and sorting the mail was begun immediately after the festivities incident to the return home of the flyer had been concluded. The mail was classified into two branches; first, communications requesting autographed likeness of the flyer, which the Chamber, in co-operation with the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, had announced would be sent to all who desired it; and second, all other mail, including messages of congratulation and felicitation, post-cards, presents, etc. This work alone required two weeks to complete.

Then began the work of acknowledging the communications. Because the great volume of mail made it virtually physically impossible for the flyer to answer it himself, the communications were answered in the name of the Chamber of Commerce.

Every piece of mail sent to Col. Lindbergh was responded to with an individual letter, a post-card or a picture. To those persons requesting photographs, a picture of the flyer standing beside his partner in fame, the "Spirit of St. Louis," was sent. Across the front of each picture was the following notation, written and signed by the flyer himself: "I am proud to have done it for America. My reward will be your continued use of 'Air Mail.' "

Fifteen additional girls were employed to assist in handling the mail. When the work of acknowledging it has been fully completed, all of it will be turned over to the flyer himself for ultimate disposition.

WHISKY AND VERMOUTH IN GARAGE SEIZED IN RAID

Prohibition Agents Find Liquor in Bottles and Cans; Also Supply of Labels.

Whisky and vermouth estimated to have a value of $2500 were found by prohibition agents yesterday in a raid on a garage in the rear of 3633 Hickory street. The stuff included six cases of whisky labeled "Old Judge" and "O. F. C."; 26 gallons of whisky in cans; six quarts of "imported" vermouth, a five-gallon keg of vermouth, and a stack of fancy labels.

Patrick Ford of the Hickory street address told the agents he had rented the garage to several men three months ago, and did not know what they put there. He was not arrested.

sine they climbed into the shaky wagon, and onto spring seats covered with bright Indian blankets. The driver pulled the reins and clicked his tongue and with a heavy jerk the two work horses started the steep climb with their distinguished burden.

After the fishing and gold panning expedition was over, the President returned to the McKelvie lodge and rested from his strenuous day before beginning the journey back to the summer White House. He elected to walk back to Mystic, going over a mountain that wen up 200 feet and then dipped 500 feet on the other side. Here again he shed his coat, for the trail at times was so steep it appeared that only stairs would get one to the top.

Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. McKelvie also panned some gold from the stream. Mr. Coolidge did not wear his regular fishing costume, merely slipping rubber hip boots over his regular business clothes. He wore a straw hat.

out unprecendented crowds, the welcome of the city and state came to an uncomfortable end soon after noon today. At that time Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, first of the airmen to arrive, was winging his way North, continuing his tour despite the advice of the airport officers.

Also at that time Commander Richard E. Byrd, Lieut. G. O. Noville, Lieut. Bernt Balchen and Pilot Bert Acosta, of the America, Clarence D. Chamberlin, of the Columbia, and Lieutenants Lester Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, of the Army Pacific flight, were in Parkman bandstand, the one dry spot in the whole common.

Ten thousand persons had gathered to greet them despite the threatening sky. Ten thousand persons were soaked by the sudden downpour. Two thousand, perhaps more, stood stolidly for more than an hour, rain trickling down inside sodden garments, to wait for the time late in the program when the aviators stepped forward, to greet them with a prolonged cheer.

The day began with an aviation breakfast given by Mayor Nichols and attended not only by the eight distinguished guests, but also by a score of other aviators whose names are not without fame in their own country although their feats have been less spectacular.

There followed the review of the Twenty-sixth Division, Massachusetts National Guard, when 6500 men bronzed by two weeks' encampment, swung by the stand which the flyers shared with Mayor Nichols. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur was in the Governor's stand at the State House.

Col. Lindbergh then left for the airport to resume his flight. The others were escorted through crowds still madly cheering to ceive from the Governor similar to that conferred on bergh yesterday.

Boston hailed two of the as its very own. Lieut. O. berger lives in South Boston Commander Byrd married a girl. Both Mrs. Byrd and Hegenberger attended the ceremonies as did Mrs. Chamberlin.

South Boston has planned a long program tomorrow in of its son, Lieutenant Hegenberger which his companion, Lieut. land, will share. Semiprivate engagements will occupy the the crew of the America. Commander Byrd let it be known there were many things in tion with his proposed flight demanding his immediate tention and he was not lingers in the city.

RUMANIAN EDICT SAYS CAROL WON'T ATTEND FUNERAL

Former Crown Prince Apparently Has Given Up Hope of Laying Claim to Throne He Gave Up.

BUCHAREST REPORTS EVERYTHING CALM

People Continue to Pass in Large Throngs Before Bier of Late King—To Be Buried Monday.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 23.—"Perfect calm reigns in Rumania," says a telegram which the Rumanian legation received today from Bucharest. The message continues:

"The people, in great masses, are passing by the mortal remains of King Ferdinand, in the marble hall of Cotroceni Palace.

"Former hereditary Prince Carol has not come to Rumania and he will not come here.

"King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and the Jugo-Slav mission which will attend the funeral arrived yesterday evening.

"The funeral services will be held in Bucharest tomorrow. The remains will be taken to Curtea de Arges, where the burial will take place Monday.

"All parties, without distinction, have recognized the new state of things, and the regency has denied all rumors emanating from Germany, pretending that disorders are taking place in Rumania."

Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, whose first impulse on the death of his father was to return to Rumania, not only to pay his last tributes to the late King but with the idea of seeking the throne he renounced, apparently has reconciled himself to being an exile, at least for the time being.

Carol remains in seclusion in his Neuilly home today, and now it is too late for him to attempt to reach Rumania for the funeral. It is expected he will attend the two services to be held in his father's memory tomorrow, in the little Rumanian Church in Paris. If he does, it will be the first time he has left his place of residence since word of the passing of Ferdinand was taken to him, a few hours after the King's death.

The Rumanian Government, over which Carol's little son Michael is sovereign, broadcast to the world today that Carol would not come to Bucharest—the diplomatic way of saying he will not be permitted to enter the country, whatever his own wishes may be.

Apparently the former Crown Prince has assured the French Government, which gave him asylum, that he will not try to make a break for Bucharest, for, since he secluded himself in sorrow, the detectives who have watched his comings and goings at Neuilly for months have been withdrawn, or are making themselves more inconspicuous than usual.

Queen Marie Denies She Sought Share in Regency.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, July 23.—Queen Marie sent for the Associated Press correspondent tonight and, in a long interview which took place in a room adjoining the improvised chapel where Ferdinand lay dead, discussed her present and future plans for carrying on the work which death had forced the King to abandon.

With marked emphasis, the Queen declared she never had sought nor would seek in the future the regency of Rumania.

"Had I desired to become a regent," she said, "I need only have told the King and he would have arranged it, either immediately or in his testament. As his widow and one who shared the responsibilities of the throne with him for 13 years, it is my duty to give all my energy, strength and devotion to the good of my country. That was the King's dying wish.

"I am sure I shall be able to render valuable help to the existing regency, the infant King and the Princess Mother, Helen. Of course, I am now only Dowager Queen, and the real power rests with the regency, but I am confident that my people and my country will continue to honor me with their unswerving loyalty and confidence."

When the correspondent asked the Queen if Prince Carol had expressed any repentance before the King died she broke down and between sobs said:

"Neither the King nor myself received a single word from him. It was his pitiless indifference, silence and continued indiscretions in Paris which broke the King's heart and hastened his death. But the King in his will and final letter to Premier Bratiano expressed toward his first born the same extraordinary generosity and forgiveness which formed such a striking part of his character.

"Carol's single act when he learned that the King had died was to telegraph to his sister, Marie, asking her to place a wreath of white roses as near as possible to the King's body."

Birger Case Jury Still Deliberates on Fate of Three Gangsters

interpreted the picture. The lights of the chamber were garish against the somber, weatherstained walls. A dead tree in the courthouse yard was stark in shadow against the slender windows. Fascinated by the questions the gesticulating men above presented, crowds continued to gather and stare. Deputy Sherriffs under instructions from the court made them move on and kept that side of the square clear of loitering groups.

In the room, shirt-sleeved farmers and miners were talking of life and death for three human beings. Would Birger hang? Would the jury turn them all loose? What was that juror saying which made him point a finger at some one out of sight?

On the west side of the square is the street that leads to the jail. Opposite the jury room and across the street is a five and ten-cent store. It did business as usual last night. Little girls in twos and threes and fours, oblivious to the grim courthouse or the anxiety-torn men in the jail, bought bags of chocolate drops and trinkets in the five and 10-cent store and went away, chattering. Families from all the surrounding country drove into town and swung about the square to get a look at "them." They stuck their heads out to see the jurors better and then, casually, passed into the gloom.

Would Charlie Birger hang? Would Art Newman hang? Would Ray Hyland hang?

A juror could be observed collecting ballots. What were the white papers saying as they dropped into some receptacle he held? Guilty or not guilty?

Attorneys Karch, Dial, Dillon, Smith, Thompson and Goodfellow, who defended the gangsters, appeared at intervals on a corner or in an office building hallway. They were nervous, restless, in the way of all the town. Assistant State's Attorney Nealy Glenn was seen, discussing the case with friends in an automobile.

Judge Waits at Home.

Judge Miller waited at his home, a short walk from the courthouse. State's Attorney Martin, who was feeling ill today, did not come to the square but rested after the long ordeal in the courtroom.

Tick tock, tick tock, tick tock, time droned on without word from the jury. Everyone waited for the verdict. Outsiders to whom it meant only a news sensation, lawyers to whom it meant a victory won or lost, and Birger and Newman and Hyland, to whom it meant life or death.

When Birger and Hyland were being handcuffed together on the courthouse steps at noon, after State's Attorney Martin had concluded his argument for the death penalty and court had recessed for luncheon, Birger remarked: "Well, we have almost reached the end."

Hyland Awaits "Necktie Party."

"Yes, it looks like a necktie party," Hyland replied.

During the argument of the State's Attorney, Birger, attired in his usual light gray suit, sat motionless with a finger over his lips. He divided his attention between the prosecutor and a jumbled pile of books on the lawyers' table. He had stopped scowling and his face was set in what seemed to be passive determination.

Hyland, sitting at his leader's left, alternately smiled and scowled. He smiled nervously when Martin described again how Hyland was alleged to have crossed and poisoned the fatal bullets.

Newman was quiet and seemed thoughtfully attentive.

As the epithets allegedly used by the gangsters were repeated by Martin, the gangsters showed no change in demeanor. They said no word in open court while their lawyers conducted their defense.

Judge Instructed Jury Verdict Might Be in One of Four Forms.

Judge Miller read his instructions to the jury when court was convened at 1:30 p. m., after a forenoon session devoted wholly to the State's closing argument by State's Attorney Martin, in which he demanded the death penalty for Birger, Newman and Hyland.

He told the jury that the verdict might be for death, life imprisonment, a prison sentence of not less than 14 years, or acquittal.

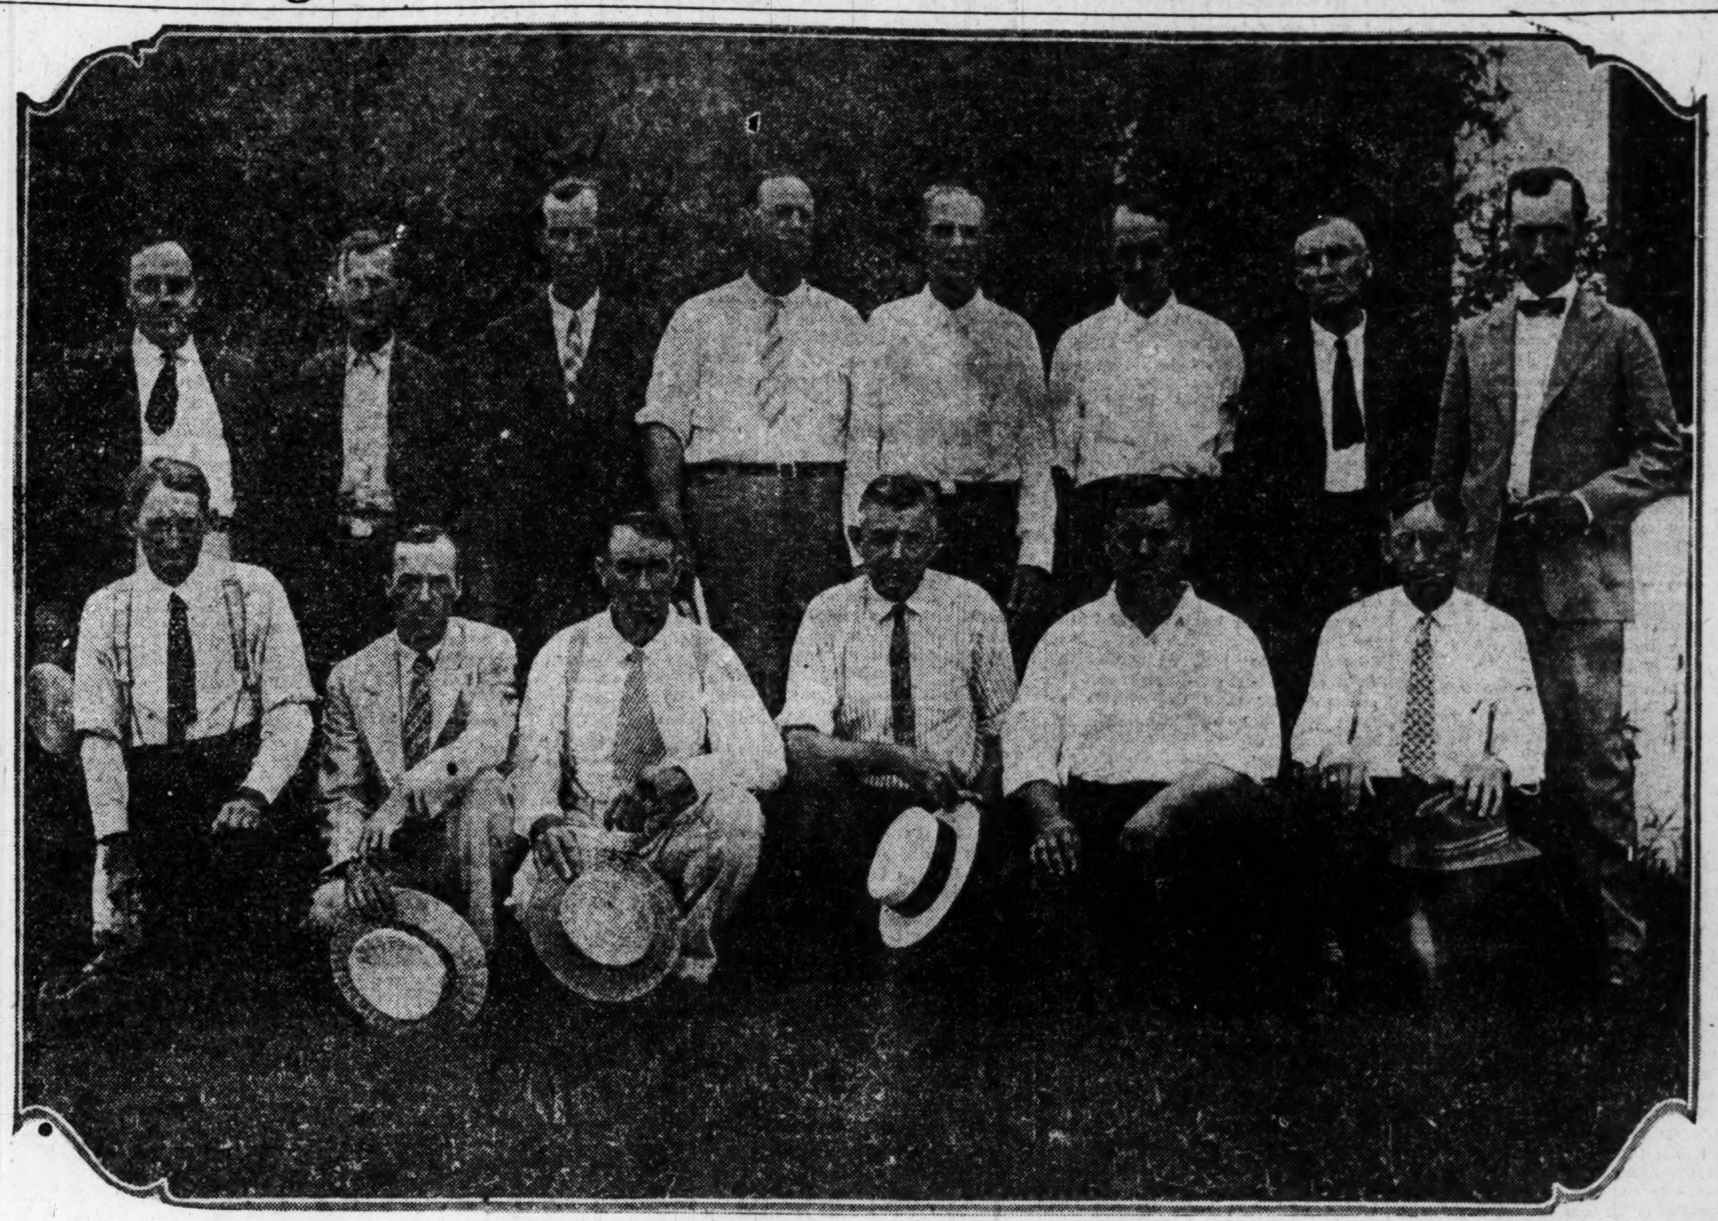
Judge Miller's instructions followed the routine admonitions concerning "presumption of innocence," and "reasonable doubt." The burden of proof was upon the people, Judge Miller instructed, and the defendants must be proved guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

An important instruction bore upon the defendants' failure to take the stand. The jury was charged to remember "the defendant is not obliged to testify. Failure to do so is no presumption against him."

The defense obtained an instruction reminding the jurors that "these defendants are charged with murder of Joe Adams and no other person."

Judge Miller added that membership in "some organization for evil purposes" should not obtain against the defendants.

One of the instructions bore upon the testimony of an accomplice, warning that "such testimony should be viewed with great caution." As to credibility the court admonished the jury to take into account the hearing of the witnesses on the stand and their interests or lack of interest, and also whether witnesses have been convicted of a felony.



THE JURY IN THE BIRGER GANG TRIAL

Defines Crime of Murder.

Judge Miller then described the crime of murder as "the willful, malicious and deliberate taking of human life" arising from "personal animosity or the motive of a malignant and wicked heart."

The State had an instruction covering "conspiracy," pointing out that "it is not necessary to show that the said conspirators were present on the scene of the crime if the jury is satisfied that the conspiracy existed."

Another State instruction covered circumstantial evidence, pointing out that this is legal evidence.

Exhibits Handed to Jurors.

Following the reading of Judge Miller's instructions the exhibits offered in evidence during the trial were handed to Jurors Harry Simpson and Milo Hopper. They included a revolver used in the murder, an automobile hubcap and a decoy note.

The west room off the court room was selected as the jury room and the jury filed out to begin its deliberations, after 15 minutes had been consumed in preparing the jury room.

The jury began its deliberations at 2:20 p. m. and the courtroom was cleared. Deputies cleared the west side of the courthouse square which lies below the open windows of the jury room.

Birger, Hyland and Newman, under doubled guard, filed from the courthouse to the jail to await the verdict in their cells.

When the fate of the three gangsters was placed in the hands of 12 Franklin County farmers, the trial was in its fourteenth day, and the State had presented 44 witnesses; the defense none.

Gangsters "Built Their Own Gallows," Prosecutor Says.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Ill., July 23.—State's Attorney Roy C. Martin yesterday wound up five months of intensive effort to bring to justice the murderers of Mayor Joe Adams of West City when he delivered a scathing arraignment of Charlie Birger and two of his notorious gang, Ray Hyland and Art Newman.

The State's Attorney began his final argument with a statement designed to remove any scruples the jury might have against a death penalty when he cried:

"This jury will not be hanging Birger and Hyland and Newman. They are hanging themselves. When they came into Franklin County and murdered Joe Adams, they built their own scaffolds; they walked upon these scaffolds and put the rope around their own necks. They stood over the trap. I am asking you, gentlemen of the jury, not to lead these men to safety, not to take them down from the peril in which they placed themselves."

End Gang Terror in State.

Thus did the State's Attorney place responsibility for a hanging verdict on the heads of the defendants, and then he declared:

"If you men of the jury return the verdict that the people of the State of Illinois are demanding, you will put an end to the terror of the machine gun and the gang war, not only in Southern Illinois, but throughout the entire State."

Not only the jury, but everyone in the crowded courtroom leaned forward to drink in every word.

"They plead for mercy," Martin continued. "The State pleads for justice. This is a perfect case. Nobody denies it. Not a word of testimony has been presented to contradict it. The eyes of the State are on this verdict. It will decide whether law has come back to Southern Illinois."

The State's Attorney was speaking solemnly in measured tones. The accused gangsters called it "bearing down" on them.

"I had in mind to get a jury in favor of enforcement of the laws of this State," he continued, "and each of you said you were in favor of law enforcement. Each of you said you were in favor of the death penalty under the law as it exists. I said to each of you, 'Can you imagine a case bad enough and strong enough for you to inflict that penalty?' and you said you could. It was my duty to get a jury of 12 men who said they woud do it, who had the nerve to do it.

No Sympathy, He Warns.

"I could see that the defendants' lawyers would appeal to your sympathy. In order to get a jury that would withstand this bombardment, I asked if you would let sympathy interfere and you said you would not. I had confidence you would do what you said, and I have that confidence now."

The State's Attorney denied he hoped through this case to further a political ambitions, as charged by a lawyer for the defense, and continued:

"The only thing I have hoped is that I might rid us of the gangster forever and let law and order reign instead. I have no fear of what you will do. The only evidence you have in this case is the 44 witnesses brought here by the State. Judge Dial (of the defense) himself said the people's evidence stands before you undenied and unimpeached.

"They told you the law was changed and provides for electrocution in the future, but the death penalty hasn't been taken away.

Wants Only Justice.

"I come before you pleading for nothing but justice. We didn't wait for the defense to prove a record against the witnesses we brought from Pontiac reformatory; we proved it ourselves.

"One lawyer said Harry Thomasson was born a criminal, but he was left alone in the world without father or mother at the age of 12. In our communities here, he'd have to be an unusual boy to go absolutely straight.

"No soldier," Martin continued, "ever fought a greater battle for the Stars and Stripes than you men will. It is a question whether the machine gun and gangster shall terrorize this country, or the Government shall prevail."

Taking up the defense arguments on the credibility of State's witnesses, Martin discussed evidence of Ray Thomasson, brother of Harry and Elmo Thomasson.

"Ray Thomasson has not been impeached," Martin said. "Mr. Smith of the defense admitted Ray was a nice young man, but he neglected to repeat Ray Thomasson's testimony. What was that testimony? He related how Charlie Birger had come to him in March, 1927, and had said, 'Tell Harry not to talk about the Adams deal. If this gets out on us it's more than likely they will hang us both.' Charlie Birger admitted his guilt and fixed his own penalty."

Martin talked swiftly, quietly. He was a cold detailist, implacable and impersonal.

Answers Bible With Bible.

Seizing upon the point that the defendants had failed to take the stand, he used the phrase, "And this testimony is not denied," again and again. When he got to the speech of Dillon, Newman's counsel, who had quoted Scripure, Martin produced a Bible. He read from a verse in Deuteronomy, which contained the sentence, "Whosoever striketh his neighbor with a stone, so that he falls down dead, he is a murderer and shall surely die."

"Here is Divine Word for the death penalty," said Martin, "but Scripture has nothing to do with this case; this is a case for the law of Illinois.

"They talked about Harry Thomasson's demeanor on the stand; they admitted they had been unable to shake him on cross-examination; they suggested that someone trained Harry.

"Do you suppose a 19-year-old boy could withstand the cross-fire of such men as Judge Dillon and Charles Karch unless he was telling the truth? The truth held Thomasson unshaken on the stand. His story is not denied. No one has contradicted it. Cross-examination failed to shake it.

Defense Objects.

In the final summing up State's Attorney Martin reviewed the alleged murder plot from start to finish and whenever he got to a forceful point, he shouted, "and that evidence is not denied!"

Twice Attorney Karch of the Birger defense objected, saying, "This is and improper and indirect reference to the fact that the defendants did not take the stand."

"Objection overruled," said the Court.

Two more objections by Karch were overruled and State's Attorney Martin dinned into the jurors' ears, "The State's evidence in uncontradicted and undenied."

"Mercy? I want you to show the same mercy to them as they showed to Joe Adams, when they poisoned and split those bullets. Evidence? They criticized the State's witnesses, but the State's evidence is unchallenged and undenied. It has not been contradicted by anyone.

"You men said you would enforce the law," Martin continued. "You said you would vote for the death penalty in an extreme case. This is an extreme case. These men shot a man down with poisoned bullets in his own home in the presence of his aged mother, his daughter and his wife.

"The defense lawyers haven't tried to tell you this is not a hanging case, not a one of them. They have tried to steer you away by appealing to your sympathies and telling you a death verdict will bother you.

"Charlie Birger said the Franklin County law was not big enough to stop him killing Joe Adams. But the law was big enough to indict Charlie Birger for murder. And I know you men are big enough to try Charlie Birger and fix his punishment at death.

"This was an atrocious, poison-out murder. I can see with your verdict the passing of the machine gun and the gangster. It will mean an end of gang war. Leave the defendants where they have put themselves. The evidence in this case finds them on the gallows. Leave them there."

PARTS OF BODY IN OPEN TRUNK FOUND IN RIVER

New York Harbor Police Believe Other Parts Were Lost—Only Marks "J. C." on Cover.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Parts of a human body, floating near an open trunk, were found in the Hudson River, near Weehawken, N. J., tonight, leading marine police to believe that they had come across another "trunk murder mystery."

The parts recovered consisted of a left arm severed above the elbow, the hand missing, but with an elastic band drawn tightly around the wrist and a part which might have been either from a leg or arm. It was believed that other parts of the body were in the trunk, but were lost when the trunk was broken open by action of the water.

Other than the initials, "J. C." inscribed in white paint on the top of the trunk, police said they found no marks of identification.

Keeps Dates, Far Apart, by Plane.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Clement F. Wade, Chicago business man, got his dates mixed today. He had a date to play golf in Moline, Ill., nearly 300 miles from here, in the afternoon and another to take his children to the circus tonight. With the aid of an airplane, he kept both dates, flying to Moline shortly after noon and joining his golfing friends, then flying back to Chicago in time to take his children to the circus.

CITIZEN SOLDIERS FACE BUSY WEEK

Review by Commander of Area to Include Physical Efficiency Test.

"Zero hour" for students of the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Jefferson Barracks will be 10 a. m. Tuesday, when they will march in review before Major-General William Lassiter of Chicago, commander of the Sixth Corps Area.

His scrutiny—an. the students' anxiety—will begin several hours earlier, for the corps commander is going to spend the lay in an inspection that will take in everything.

He will have an eye for their marksmanship on the rifle and machine gun range, and the orderliness of their tents and company streets. He will take dinner with them. In the afternoon he will watch a physical efficiency test which will include a 100-yard dash, running broad and high jumps and pole vaulting

Dance in the Evening.

Needed relafation for the students will be provided in an outdoor dance that evening. A dance also will be given for officers of regulars and reserves.

Second of the regular Saturday reviews yesterday convinced officers that the students will make excellent showing before Major-General Lassiter. They also are having daily practice on the firing ranges. In the first four days, on the 200-yard rifle range, P. R. Miles of Urbana, Ill., has shot 1 out of a possible 75, and John A. McGuire of Texarkana has shot 95 out of a possible 100.

Col. Moor N. Falls, commander of the Barracks, especially praised Charles W. DeBore of Fort Smith, Ark., for a score of 45 out of 50, remarking that the youth was only eight inches taller than his rifle. None of the three had handled a high caliber rifle before.

Day of Athletic Events.

Friday will be Field Day. All the students will spend the day in track and field events at Francis Field, Washington University, returning to another outdoor dance at the barracks.

A crowded program has been made up for next Saturday, which will be Arkansas Day. A review commanded by a former Arkansas reserve officer—Col. Robert L. Floyd of Chicago—with the Arkansas Club and many of the Arkansas students' parents in attendance, will be followed b ya swimming meet, a tennis tournament, a visit to Sportsman's Park for 700 students to see the world's champion Cardinals in action, and, in the evening, an amateur show by the students.

FORMER MAYOR NOONAN ILL AT CITY HOSPITAL

Suffers From Neuritis Caused by Auto Accident of Several Years Ago.

Former Mayor Edward A. Noonan, 78 years old, who held office from 1889 to 1893, has been a patient at City Hospital since Thursday, suffering from neuritis due to an automobile accident several years ago. Pains in his left leg made it impossible for the city's oldest ex-mayor to go about his usual legal practice, in the Times building, and on the advice of friends he went to the hospital. He is in no immediate danger, according to physicians.

Noonan was knocked down by an automobile in 1917 at Compton and Olive streets, and suffered a skull fracture, internal injuries, and a badly wrenched left leg.

Noonan lives at the Park Hotel, Thirteenth and Olive streets.

KANSAS CITY, July 23.—A stay of execution pendin. appeal to the Supreme Court, today was granted by Judge Southern to Cleo Williams, Negro, sentenced to hang Aug. 17 for criminal assaults on a 14-year-old white girl and a young married woman. The Judge denied a motion to set aside William's plea of guilty.

POLICE ACCIDENTALLY FIND LIQUOR CARGO

Alcohol Deposited on Shore From Motorboat While Officers Look On.

Two St. Louis policemen, who happened to be sitting in their automobile on the bank of the Mississippi at Chain of Rocks at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening believe they have one explanation of the fact that close watch on the bridges fails to keep East Side liquor out of St. Louis.

At that hour they heard the chugging of a motor boat. A moment later it came in sight on the dark expanse of the river. It was heading toward an isolated clump of trees.

That interested the policemen, Sergeant Bambrick and Patrolman O'Connell of Angelica Street Station. When the boat nosed in they crept toward it.

A man on the bank whistled and ran into the grove. The boat pulled away. And it left, on the bank, six five-gallon cans of alcohol.

A moment later the policemen came upon a young man. He declared he had been fishing. "Where is your tackle?" scoffed the policemen.

"Oh, they wouldn't bite," he explained, airily, "so I threw it away."

They arrested him, and at his home learned that he had gone on a motor boat trip with his two brothers. The police had discerned in the boat as it shoved off the shadowy figures of two men.

ANTI-VICE LEAGUE LOSES MOVE TO OUST POLICE CHIEF

Pittsburg, Pa., Mayor Tells Citizens' Organization Its Charges Are Unfounded.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 23. — Mayor Charles Kline today rejected the demand of the Citizens' League of Allegheny County to dismiss Police Superintendent P. P. Walsh, holding that the League had "utterly failed" to substantiate charges it made against the police head.

The mayor, in an extended communication to the Rev. Dr. Alvin Orr, League director, upheld the police and labeled league investigators as men from outside of Pittsburg who came here and enticed young boys and girls.

The league demanded Walsh's dismissal after W. L. King, its executive secretary, made a hurried trip to the West by rail and airplane. He married a Des Moines, Ia., widow, and upon his return, said he had been blackmailed out of the city by gamblers and other underworld characters. The League charged Walsh with inefficiency, failure to co-operate with the organization in its drive against vice, and with protecting vice resorts. It wa salleged that Walsh sent investigators West to look into King's activities in that region.

UNIVERSITY CITY TO PROTEST

C. of C. Will Seek to Prevent Closing of Delmar by Wabash Viaduct.

A meeting of the University City Chamber of Commerce will be held at City Hall, 6620 Delmar boulevard, Tuesday at 8 p. m., for the purpose of considering the question of discontinuing the "White Way" lighting on Delmar boulevard and to discuss means of preventing the two-year closing of that thoroughfare, threatened by the construction of the viaduct at the Wabash Railroad crossing by St. Louis.

It is believed that closing Delmar to traffic during work on the Wabash crossing would seriously hinder business activities in University City.

BRITISH CABINET TO DISCUSS GENEVA POLICY AGAIN MONDAY

Winston Churchill Says No Effort Should Be Spared to Make Conference Successful.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 23.—Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will preside at the Cabinet Council Monday morning for further consideration of the naval question. The Secretary may make a statement in the House of Commons Monday evening on the Government's policy at Geneva, but this will be decided at the Cabinet meeting in the morning.

A subject of anxiety to the Ministers is what they regard as the misconceptions voiced in both the American and Japanese press about the British policy, and it is supposed that Sir Austen's statement, if he makes one, will be devoted largely to trying to remove these misconceptions.

Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Bicton Park, Devonshire, today, said that no effort should be spared to bring the conference to a successful conclusion. He added, that however much an agreement was desirable, an agreement to spend gigantic sums on naval construction for many years to come might be worse for all concerned than moderate expenditure following upon freedom from any agreement.

J. L. Garvin, editor of the Sunday Observer, in an article in that paper, strongly advocates the suggestion recently made by the American Ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton, to Harvard University —"A people's pact for a hundred years." Garvin declares that Great Britain is ready.

STEPHENSON'S 'BLACK BOXES' REPORTED FOUND IN INDIANA

Klansman Serving Murder Sentence Has Said They Hold Proof of Political Corruption.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Ind., July 23.—The two "black boxes" belonging to D. C. Stephenson, convicted slayer and former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, long sought by investigators into alleged political corruption in Indiana as likely souces of proof of reported "deals" apparently have been found. But whether they will throw any light on corruption charges has not been learned.

Emsley W. Johnson, special prosecuting attorney in the investigation into Indiana political conditions, is in possession of two black boxes, whose contents "are very interesting." it was learned today. Johnson, on a vacation at the home of a relative near here, displayed the boxes to newspaper men with the observation that "if the reporters on the Stephenson case knew they were here, the woods would be full of them taking pictures. "He declined, however, to discuss their contents, until Prosecutor William H. Remy of Marion County, chief investigator in the inquiry, has had an opportunity to peruse them.

Johnson refused to say who delivered the boxes and documents to him.

At City Hospital he was found to be suffering from a fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

The driver of the automobile was Dan Nichols of 2821 Clark avenue, Negro clerk, who said he did not see the boy. He was held by police on a charge of felonious wounding.

SEEKS TO TRANSFER VOTE RECOUNT FIGHT

Counsel for Reed Committee Files Writ to Have Appellate Court Make Ruling.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—Jerry C. South, counsel for the Reed Investigating Committee, today filed a copy of a writ of certiorari with the clerk of the Federal Court for the purpose of having transferred to the Court of Appeals the fight of the Committee to obtain ballots cast in the Vare-Wilson senatorial election contest last year. No action was taken on South's move today.

South's writ sought to have the record of proceedings before Judge J. Whitaker Thompson two weeks ago, in which the latter disclaimed jurisdiction on the petition of the Reed Committee to have all ballots cast in the senatorial election in Delaware County turned over to the Court of Appeals. Judge Thompson gave as his opinion that the question at issue was for the Senate rather than the Federal Court to determine.

Senator-elect William S. Vare yesterday issued a statement in which he urged that the entire vote cast in the disputed election be recounted by the Senate's Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections, and offered to aid in meeting the expense. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania is expected here Tuesday for a conference with Vare.

FORMER AMERICAN TO RESIST EXCLUSION FROM COUNTRY

Kansas Woman War Writer, Praised by Generals, Lost Citizenship Through Marriage.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Mrs. Peggy Hull Kinley, a native of Bennington, Kan., who won commendation from Gen. Pershing and Gen. Peyton C. March for her work as a war correspondent with American troops in France and Siberia, has been notified by the immigration authorities that an extension of her admission to the United States on a visitor's visa has been denied.

Mrs. Kinley was married in 1922 to Capt. John C. Kinley, British officer residing in Shanghai. Later when she wished to return to America she was informed that she had lost her citizenship and could be admitted only on a visitor's visa, which expires Aug. 15.

She announced today that she intends to fight exclusion and said: "If I leave this country on or before Aug. 15 immigration authorities will have to carry me out bodily. I will not obey the order."

BUENOS AIRES GUARDS AMERICAN BUILDINGS

Precautions Follow Explosion of Bomb, Laid to Sacco-Vanzetti Sympathizers.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, July 23.—All important American buildings in Buenos Aires, including the United States Embassy and the home of Charge d'Affaires P. L. Cable, were under heavy guard today as a result of the explosion of a bomb at the statue of George Washington last night, which was attributed to Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Police this afternoon raided several radical centers and arrested several men for examination. The Chief of Police said that nothing would be left undone to discover the perpetrators.

An unexploded bomb was found in front of the Ford automobile agency. It was wrapped in newspapers printed in Italian and containing articles concerning the Sacco-Vanzetti trial.

The United States Embassy, the American Consulate and other American institutions, have been receiving threatening letters which have increased in number during the last few days, it was stated.

KICKS BURGLAR TO DEATH

Canadian Farmer Kills Robber in Fight.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., July 23.—Kicked to death in a fight with a Beeton farmer, whose house he had entered, the body of an unidentified robber today was taken to an undertaking establishment in Beeton, while provincial police sought to learn his identity.

Alex Hodges, the farmer, who told police he had killed the robber in a fight in the darkness of his farm kitchen, said the man had covered him with a revolver, but that he had pushed the weapon aside, engaging in a struggle in which the kitchen was wrecked. Examination showed the robber had died from a fractured skull. Hodges said he had just received $600 in payment for cattle and had just entered his home, when he was confronted by the robber.

1,930,000 SAW BALL GAMES IN CITY PARKS

Last Season's Attendance at Contests on 45 Municipal Diamonds Shown in Report.

Approximately 1,930,000 persons attended baseball games in the parks of the city last season at a per capita cost of two and a half mills, according to a report of Park Commissioner Pape, issued yesterday, for the fiscal year ended April 12. The maintenance of the 45 municipal baseball diamonds, the report sets forth, cost the Park Department $4,371.

The estimated attendance at soccer games of municipal teams last season is given at 1,010,000, at a per capita cost of less than two mills. On the two golf courses in Forest Park, maintained at a cost of $38,554.52, the number of games totaled 128,615 at a cost per game of 29 cents. On the municipal tennis courts, 207,149 games were played at a cost per game of eight cents. Tennis permits for the year totaled 9174, and annual golf permits, 627.

An appeal for larger appropriations for park maintenance is made in the report, which points out that appropriations are growing smaller each year in the face of steadily growing park activities. The need for more baseball diamonds to accommodate the 191 regularly registered municipal baseball teams is especially stressed. The need of additional grounds for the 34 municipal soccer leagues also is emphasized.

For improvement of roadways and drives in the parks, inclusion of an item of $1,000,000 in the next city bond issue is recommended by Commissioner Pape, who explains that no money is now available for such reconstruction. He suggests that roads carrying heavy traffic be paved with hard surfaced materials, instead of tar preparations and gravel.

The report sets forth that 30,000 trees and shrubs were planted in the parks during the year. Concessions operated under park management closed the year with a net profit of $17,000, their receipts totaling $99,619.68. Attendance at playgrounds, open from June 15 to Sept. 1, was 1,894,361, a decrease of 205,425 from the figure of the previous year. The cost of maintaining these playgrounds was $91,346,54. Picnics held in the parks numbered 263—93 in O'Fallon Park, 62 in Carondelet and 108 in Forest Park.

YOUNG STILLMAN TO WED CANADIAN GIRL TUESDAY

Objections of Prospective Bridegrooms's Family to Catholic Ceremony Reported Settled.

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, July 23.—The marriage of James (Bud) Stillman and his Canadian sweetheart, Lena Wilson, will take place at Grande Anse, Quebec, Tuesday morning. The Abbe Lamy, Cure of Grandes Piles, near Grand Mere, will officiate, it was learned today.

This information was obtained by long distance telephone from the Cure of La Tuque, Que., who declared he knew of no drastic quarrel between the Stillman family and the Wilson family as reported in the United States.

The only issue he said, was religion, young Stillman's parents at first, not being willing that children of the union should be Catholic. This has been satisfactorily settled, the Cure said. The Cure said that Miss Wilson was at the Stillman home at Grand Anse where he had spoken with her. He also said he had a conversation with Bud. He understood that the Wilson family would be present at the ceremony.

During the week Abbe Lamy, who is a personal friend of the Wilson family had a conference with the Bishop of Three Rivers where the necessary preliminaries of the ceremony were arranged.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—A total of 44,976 candidates for military training this summer had been accepted by the War Department on July 20 out of 56,094 applications received.

The number of accepted candidates exceeds that in any previous year of the summer military training records. Thirteen camps in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and Arizona remain to be opened during this month and August before the summer training work is completed.

Historic Grave Reported Found.

RICHMOND, Va., July 23.—The lonely, weed covered grave of Betty Washington Lewis, only sister of George Washington, is believed to have been located in Culpeper County. Betty Lewis, wife of Col. Fielding Lewis, owner of "Kenmore," in Fredericksburg, died in 1797 at "Western View," the home of Charles Carter in Culpeper County, and was buried in the family cemetery there, those who have been searching the records, say.

RS-1 PLANS START OF 2800-MILE FLIGHT TODAY

Weather Permitting, Huge Dirigible Will Leave Scott Field This Morning for Tour of East.

WILL CARRY CREW OF 14 OFFICERS AND MEN

"We're Going to Find Out What Ship Will Do," Says Commander Paegelow—To eB Its Longest Trip.

The RS-1, largest semi-rigid airship in the world, will leave Scott Field at 8 or 9 o'clock this morning, weather permitting, on a 2800-mile Eastern tour.

This will be the longest trip the huge dirigible has made. Last year it made a 1200-mile flight to Detroit and return, and many shorter flights in Missouri and Illinois have tested out its equipment.

"Now we're going to find out what the ship will do," said Lieut.-Col. John A. Paegelow, Scott Field commander, who will be in command of the ship on the Eastern flight, with a crew of 14 men and officers.

The vacation-time flight will take a week or ten days, and the airship will take in "all the Eastern resorts." Boston probably will be the furthest point reached from St. Louis.

First Hop to Langley Field.

The first hop will be to Langley Field, near Norfolk, Va. Thence the route is to Washington, New York, north for a distance to be determined by the conditions of the flight, south again to Lakehurst, N. J., and up the Hudson River to West Point and Albany, then up the Mohawk Valley to Buffalo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and the home field.

Nothing but bad weather, Col. Paegelow said, will delay the start. Advance reports were highly favorable. He said he would consider any wind "very good" up to 25 miles an hour.

The 1000-gallon fuel tank has been filled. Gallons consumed per hour depend, of course, on flying conditions. The cruising air speed of the ship is 40 to 50 miles an hour. Last year it averaged 43 miles an hour on the 575-mile trip back from Detroit.

Many St. Louisans had a view of the RS-1 when it flew over St. Louis in several night test flights last Summer, pausing, on two visits, over the Municipal Opera shortly after the show had begun.

Ship 282 Feet Long.

The gas bag of the RS-1 is 282 feet long and holds 755,550 cubic feet of helium. The control cabin, suspended forward, is 8x35 feet, with one compartment for controls, and another for the crew's bunks, a radio set, bomb and photography pits. Two power cars aft each carry two 400-horsepower Liberty motors, and each car has a single push propeller, 17 feet six inches in diameter, the largest ever used by the Army. Each "prop" is driven by one or both of its two motors, and can be reversed.

The semi-rigid principle was a novelty when the RS-1 was built at Scott Field in 1925. Its bag is not kept in shape by internal bracing, as in the rigid type, but by gas pressure. Control and power cars are suspended from a rigid keel, distinguishing this type from the non-rigid airship. Its wartime use would be in night bombing and scouting.

CONTRACT LET FOR DOUBLE TRACK JOB

Pennsylvania Railroad Will Spend $4,000,000 on Work Over 60 Miles.

Contracts have been let for the building of double tracks over the first 60 miles of the Pennsylvania Railway System between St. Louis and Indianapolis. The cost of the work on the Illinois section of the line is estimated at $4,000,000. This figure also includes the cutting down of grades, taking out short curves and building steel and concrete bridges in place of wooden trestles.

An entirely new line will be built between Collinsville and Highland, to eliminate grades and curves, which are more numerous there than on any other stretch in the State. At Greenup, where the Pennsylvania crosses the Illinois Central on a grade, a viaduct will be built over the latter company's tracks.

The automatic signal system, now in use between Pittsburg and Columbus, also is being extended westward. Work began yesterday on the installation of automatic train-control devices, including position light signals of the latest type. One feature of the system is the reproduction in the cab of each locomotive of all wayside signal indications.

A hearing on the discontinuance of four trains which pass through Collinsville will be held by the company before the Interstate Commerce Commission at the city hall in Collinsville at 10 a. m. Friday. The city will present witnesses from Greenville, Pocahontas, Highland, St. Jacob, Troy and Collinsville, in an effort to show the four trains are needed to accommodate residents of those cities. The railroad claims the number of passengers does not justify continuance of the service.

U. S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE REJECTS SOVIET TRADE PLEA

Says Government Has Refused to Recognize Regime and Organization Is of Same Mind.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 23. — The Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today rejected the suggestion of Ivy L. Lee, that the chamber establish a bureau in Moscow for the purpose of advising both American business and the Russian Government regarding business relations with the American people.

In a letter to Lee, in response to a communication from him, Lewis E. Pierson, president of the Chamber, stated that the Executive Committee "instructs me to advise you that in its opinion nothing but propaganda harmful to our country would result from such a move." He adds: "* * * Since our own Government has refused to recognize the Soviet regime your suggestion amounts to asking the representatives of American business to repudiate the position of the representatives of the American people."

The letter expresses resentment over the implication that American business for commercial gain, should recognize the Soviet regime, and continues: "We do not believe that it is possible to bring the Russian people back to normal conditions through trade relations as long as they are under the control of insincere, unrepentant and misguided rulers * * * who have lowered the living standards of 140,000,000 people."

HOG PRICES BETTER ON LIGHT RECEIPTS

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Last Year.
Cattle and calves	36,315	35,938	32,843
Hogs	54,491	59,233	63,410
Sheep	17,028	28,847	15,984
Horses and mules	1,057	596	678
Totals	108,891	124,612	112,915

Cattle and horse and mule receipts showed a substantial increase the past week, but hogs and sheep showed sharp decreases. Due to this fact, combined receipts of livestock fell off sharply as compared with the previous week's supply. Prices were mixed in cattle, choice beef steers, yearlings and most cows ruling steady, while medium and plain steers ruled 25c to 50c lower; yearlings 25c off and medium beef cows 25c lower. Bulls were 50c lower, stocker and feeder steers 15c to 25c lower and veal calves $1.25 off. Top beef steers in mature flesh made $12.90; top yearlings $12.50. Bulk of native steers sold for the week at $9.25 to $12.35. Western steers were in larger volume than for any time the curent year, the week's run totaling but few loads short of 300. Top Oklahoma steers made $10.50, with a low of $4.50 and $5.50 registered on some mixed steers and stags from quarantine territory in Mississippi. Bulk of Western steers from Kansas and Oklahoma made $7.75 to $9.85. Heifers reached the highest top in two years, when three loads sold at $12, mixed offerings stopping at $1.75. Bulk of sales for the week in this class made $10 to $11.50. Beef cows registered a top of $9.50 on choice; bulk, $6.50 to $7.50. Cutter cows sold at $5 to $5.50 largely, with canners bulking at $4 to $4.50, strong kinds reaching $4.75. Bulls, after opening the week steady, dropped sharply and closing top on bologna bulls was $6.50. A common variety ranged down to $4.50. A decline of 15c to 25c was scored on stocker and feeder steers, the stuff of all kinds holding to a steady basis. Best feeders here made $8.90, with bulk of all sales at $6.50 to $8.35. Stock heifers made $6.25 to $8 mostly, with cows $5 to $5.50. Veal calves broke $1.25 during the week to a closing top of $12.75 on good and choice kinds, first cuts in proportion at $10 to $10.50. Heavy calves were not essentially changed; canner yearlings also about steady.

Light Hogs Higher.

Receipts of swine the past period were approximately 54,491 as compared with 59,233 last week and 63,410 corresponding week last year. Quality was pretty good throughout the week. Light receipts with a fairly good order demand again sent light hog prices to new high levels the past week. Packers were not prone to grant any advance and the medium and heavy hog trade on packer account was slow and showed little advance, except when there were orders for weighty hogs; then packers were forced to pay higher prices to secure supplies. The market on hogs carrying weight was extremely uneven throughout the week and at times it was very hard to judge the market. The heaviest full load of good hogs was a drove averaging 378 pounds that cashed at $9 in the Friday period. The highest paid Friday for several loads choice light pad Friday for several loads of choice light hogs. As compared the year's low time which was June 8 last, all weights and classes show a considerable gain. Pigs and light lights featured the trade with an extremely poor demand. Prices were sharply lower each day with the exception of Friday. That day pigs were scarce and the demand was fair. This caused a rally and most sales uncovered a gain of 25c to 50c. Low point on light pigs was $8 and Friday this was up to $8.50. There was virtually no stocker demand the fore part of the week and very little at the close of the week. Bulk of pigs 90 to 130 pounds sold at $8.50 to $9.50 for the period under review. Inferior kinds sold down to $7. Packing sows advanced slowly under a moderate inquiry and a fair supply. Bulk sold for the period at $8 to $8.10, with light choice kinds up to $8.25. Stags sold principally at $7.25 to $7.75, showing little if any change each day. Trading Saturday was generally steady. Practically no heavy and extreme heavy hogs were on sale. High top for the week was $11.10. Low top $10.75. Bulk light hogs sold for the period at $10.75 to $11. Light hogs closed the week 40c to 60c up. Medium and heavy hogs 40c to 65c higher. Pigs and light lights steady to lower. Packing sows mostly 25c up; stags steady.

Receipts at the local sheep and lamb market the past week were approximately 17,000 as compared with 28,847 last week and 15,984 same week last year. Quality averaged medium to good. There were few Tennessee and Kentucky lambs on sale. After declining the fore part of the week, values reacted to lighter receipts and recovered almost all of the loss earlier in the week. As compared with last week's close choice grades of lambs are steady, while good kinds are steady to 25c lower, all other classes are steady. Top lambs at the close were quotable at $13.50, although $13.25 was top due to the absence of choicer stock. Packers were well stocked the early part of the period, and prices were tending lower. The latter part, the supply was barely enough to go around, and buyers were forced to grant an advance. Good to choice grades this week closed at $12.75 to $13.50 as to $13 to $13.50 last week. Bulk of spring lambs sold for the period at $12.75 to $13. Top lambs made $13.25. Medium grades went to the scales at $10 to $12.50. Culls made one price the whole period, going to the buyers' pens at $8.50. Throwouts mainly at $5 to $7. Aged sheep were not in large enough supply to warrant a change in price. Best ewes weighing under 120 lbs. made $5.50, 120 to 140 lbs., $5, and over 140 lbs. $4.50. Choppers mainly at $3, bulk $3.50, and canners and throwouts $1 to $2.50. Few yearling wethers made $9 to $11.25. Virtually no lambs or other classes of wethers were on sale. Quotations slaughter stock: Good to choice spring lambs, $12.75 to $13.50, medium to good, $11.50 to $12.75, plain to medium $10.50 to $11.50, cull and common $8 to $10. Good to choice yearling lambs (dry lot fed) $10.50 to $11.50, medium to good $9.50 to $10.50, plain to medium $8.50 to $9.50, cull and common $7 to $8, skips $4 to $6.50, grass fed kids discounted $1 to $1.50 under dry fed kinds. Good to choice aged western wethers $8 to $9, good fat southern kinds $7.50 to $8.50, thin to fair kids $4 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes $4.50 to $5.50, plain to good $4 to $4.50, choppers and bucks $3 to $3.50, canners $1 to $2.50. Fat goats $3 to $4. Fair to good kids $4 to $7, thin to fair kids $1.50 to $3.00.

Horses and Mules.

A run of 1057 horses and mules during the past week represented the largest supply seen here in some time, range horses making up the big end of supplies. Prices held steady with the possible exception of some of the thinnest kinds of which a goodly percentage of supplies consisted. The week's best price for unbroken range mares was $41 per head while some good geldings made $42. A low of $6.50 was registered for some thin yearlings.

Any good sized broke mule sold very well in active trade but thin small mules were slow movers.

WHEAT PRICES DOWN ON ANTICIPATED BIG RECEIPTS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Indications of big arrivals of new winter wheat next week led to a material setback in wheat prices today after an early advance. The finish for wheat was heavy, ⅝c to 1⅛c net lower, with corn ⅝c to 1⅝c down, oats ⅛c to ⅝c off and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 5c.

Both at Omaha and Chicago a large-scale movement of freshly harvested wheat from the domestic winter crop region was looked for. Omaha receipts on Monday were expected to total 1200 cars, and shipments to Chicago in time for delivery on July contracts appeared likely also to prove liberal. Under such circumstances, buying demand became too slow to absorb the selling, and price gains which had been scored during the first hour of trading faded rapidly away.

Announcement that 800,000 bushels of North American wheat had been bought today for shipment to Europe had but little if any market influence as a check on declines, due to prospective increasing movement of new domestic winter wheat. For a time, however, prices showed a decided upward slant on account of chances that black rust might receive a sudden impetus should high temperatures move eastward over the Rockies. Winnipeg dispatches gave assurance, though, that the weather today on the Canadian prairies was clear and not likely to promote rust.

Corn and oats gave way when wheat values turned downgrade. Cool temperatures in the corn belt last night were offset by a forecast of warmer weather and showers. Oats prices were somewhat weakened by the fact that arrivals of new oats here today show good quality.

In the absence of any aggressive support, the provision market was inclined to sag.

CORN CLOSES LOWER ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, July 23.—Wheat closed mixed on the local market, September lower and December held higher. Corn futures closed on lower basis.

The wheat market anticipated heavier movement of wheat to market and this exerted influence. Export sales were estimated at 800,000 bushels of North American wheat. Forecast of warmer weather and showers in corn belt offset the cool wave report of last night.

After opening fractionally higher, September wheat reacted to below previous close. First strength was credited to 1¼d to 1⅝d higher close at Liverpool. Winnipeg was up fractionally early. High temperatures in the Pacific Northwest, suggesting spread eastward, caused apprehension for spring wheat situation in such event. Corn opened higher and then sold net lower.

September wheat opened at $1.40, September corn $1.09⅝ and December corn $1.10⅝.

Local wheat receipts, which were 21,700 bushels, compared with 100,800 bushels a week ago and 38,500 bushels a year ago, included 143 cars local and 12 through. Corn receipts, which were 50,400 bushels, compared with 70,000 bushels a week ago and 63,000 bushels a year ago, included 26 cars local and 10 through. Oats receipts, which were 58,000 bushels compared with 60,000 bushels a week ago and 24,000 bushels a year ago, included 26 cars local and three through. Hay receipts were seven cars local and seven through.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 593 cars of wheat, compared with 1498 a week ago and 512 a year ago, Minneapolis receiving 137 cars, Duluth 94 and Winnipeg 362.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators amounted to 521,045 bushels of wheat, 1,979,275 bushels of corn, 87,471 bushels of oats.

Grain stocks comprised 247,937 bu of No. 1 red winter wheat, 84,938 bu of No. 2 red winter wheat, 9749 bu of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 6497 bu of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 59,444 bu of No. 2 corn, 595,898 bu of No. 2 yellow corn, 135,546 bu of No. 2 white corn, 234 bu of No. 2 oats, 21,584 bu of No. 2 white oats, 23,502 bu of No. 3 white oats.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago. Corn receipts were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Oats receipts were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago. Wheat shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Oats shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,428,000 bushels, compared with 1,424,000 a week ago and 3,466,000 last year. Corn receipts were 468,000 bushels, compared with 582,000 a week ago and 414,000 last year. Oats receipts were 272,000 bushels, compared with 252,000 a week ago and 355,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 1,673,000 bushels, compared with 1,117,000 a week ago and 1,277,000 last year. Corn shipments were 473,000 bushels, compared with 349,000 a week ago and 385,000 last year. Oats shipments were 382,000 bushels, compared with 309,000 a week ago and 357,000 last year.

In the local cash grain market Saturday, after a few early sales at steady prices, the late trade was 2c to 3c lower. Milling demand was slow. Elevators bought No. 3s and off grades at the lower scale of prices, mostly $1.37 for ordinary No. 3 red, $1.34 for average No. 4s. Starchy 58-pound No. 2 red sold late at $1.43. Garlicky grades and smutty wheat were at widely varying discounts, according to condition. Scattered cars of No. 1 red and No. 2 red were carried over. Hard wheat declined 1½c. There was fair elevator demand. Protein wheats were quoted basis 11½c over Kansas City September price for 13 per cent, 8½c over for 12½ per cent, 6c over for 12 per cent, f. o. b. Kansas City. Corn was unchanged to ½c lower on yellow corn and ½c to 1c higher on white. There were no sales of mixed. There was only a fair demand. A glucose plant took most of the low grades, but otherwise purchases were confined to filling scattered local and outside orders. There was a fair demand for oats and reduced levels on damaged stuff led to a better clearance. Lower grades were weak and ½@1c lower, but No. 2 and No. 3 white sold at unchanged prices.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The broad upswing in stocks early this week attracted wide attention but far more interesting was the unexpected relaxation in all departments of the money market. Coming at a season of the year when firming tendencies or normal, this softening in rates compels the financial district to view the future from an entirely new base, and yet the evidences of just such a downturn in money rates might have been seen by a few a month ago. From a high of about one hundred million dollars in May the floating supply of bankers' acceptances had gradually diminished until a few days ago it fell below thirty million dollars, the smallest outstanding volume since the war. New bills were not coming out at prevailing market rates, and this condition of famine, taking all things into account, must have impressed dealers with the necessity for readjustment. At least it showed that without some such change no increase in the supply was likely to develop for the time.

Several Forces at Work.

"Simultaneously the supply of funds had been substantially swelled by several forces which this week brought the inevitable reduction in money rates. Outstanding among these was the contraction in the volume of currency to a level roughly one hundred million dollars below that of a year ago, introduced by a cut in payrolls. A return of currency increases the flow of funds available for the money market and tends to ease rates more promptly than similar changes in the credit volume. It so happens that still another influence for ease was presented by the liquidation of syndicate bonds recently offered but not immediately distributed. When these things are borne in mind it is not so difficult to understand a drop in the rate for call funds to 3½ per cent and this week's decline even in the renewal rate to 3¾ per cent, lowest since June 17, 1926, or the reduction this week in the bill rate for the first time since late last year, and a similar decline in the rate for commercial paper. The effect of cheap money has not yet been seen in any substantial increase in the supply of bills but doubtless the coming week will bring just such a change."

Await Time Money Action.

"Nobody takes very seriously flurries in the market for call money, but if the reductions at this time of the year in bills and commercial paper are extended to the market for time money the week may go down in 1927 history as important for the turn it brought in the general money trend. While the cycle of relaxation in the different departments of the money market will not be complete until time money rates fall, signs already are at hand that this may come. The ninety day rate for time money already has been lowered and usually such rare and broad changes in the market as have been noted this week, lead to lower rates in money loaned for a longer time. It is, too, a definite reduction in time money that the financial district now looks for the sign it wants, that cheap money is a possibility for the remainder of 1927. The line of reasoning is that if rates for money loaned on time fall, it will indicate pretty plainly which way those closest to the situation expect the wind to blow.

Hope For Stability.

"No final judgment of the autumn movement in money can be made until late next month when the seasonal demand for funds begins in earnest. It would be only natural for money to harden somewhat as the crop movement proceeds, but if the present situation persists these autumn influences for higher rates may be offset in part. Hope is expressed in the financial district that the unprecedented stability in money rates at a comfortable level, noted during the first half of 1927, may continue during the second half. When and if it becomes clear that the present recession in money rates is more than a temporary change, there will be time enough to discuss its possible effects on the security markets and on business. How the stock market will take such an unexpected turn in affairs nobody knows, but it is plain that business will be helped by a stabilization of money around the present comfortable levels.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—A wave of selling which set in during the first half of today's two-hour session of the stock market was promptly checked when heavy buying of motor and railway equipment shares developed in the final hour. Trading for the most part was of a professional character, based upon continued easy money conditions.

American Locomotive preferred and American Brake Shoe and Foundry both touched new peaks, and pressed Steel Car common and preferred sold up 2¼ and 3 points, respectively.

General Motors started the day with a bad sinking spell, but quickly recovered and surged upward to 218¼, completing its record of establishing a new high for all time every day this week. Chrysler continued to move forward until it touched 52⅝, a new top for the year, and Hudson sold as high as 86.

Railway shares were generally inactive, although Pittsburg & West Virginia went up about 2 points on a few sales and Lackawanna was subject to realizing.

Case Threshing Machine was one of the features of the day's trading, scoring an extra gain of 10 points to 257, a new maximum, and closing around 255. New peaks were also reached by National Tea, International Paper 6 per cent preferred, Sears-Roebuck, Timken Roller Bearing and several others.

Although oil issues were irregular in consequence of further unsettling of the Seminole situation through opposition to the Oklahoma Corporation Commission's curtailment order, Houston Oil developed individual strength. Barnsdall "B" sagged to 22⅝, a fraction above its low for the year.

Weak spots included American Safety Razor, which lowered its 1927 minimum, International Mercantile Marine preferred, Gotham Hosiery and Bayuk Cigars.

Easing tendencies ruled in the foreign exchange market, which was featured by a break of 14 points to 46.91 cents in Japanese yen. Demand sterling was slightly lower around $4.85 1-16, and French francs easy above 3.91 cents.

The weekly Clearing House statement showed excess reserve of $38,164,270, an increase of $15,591,020 over last week. Aggregate reserve totaled $661,736,000. The detailed statement of actual condition this day showed increases in all the principal items except loans, discounts and investments, which declined $10,328,000. Net demand deposits gained $9,729,000 and time deposits $12,019,000; cash in own vaults, $2,684,000, and reserve in Federal Reserve Bank of member banks, $17,149,000.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF WEEK.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 23.—The stock market successfully weathered several selling attacks this week, with new leaders brought forward whenever the old favorites showed signs of tiring, but the upward movement appeared to have lost much of its momentum. Both the rail and industrial averages attained new high levels early in the week, and then forfeited part of their gains, although each day a flock of individual high records was established.

One of the most interesting developments of the week was the marked softening in money rates. Call loans opened on Friday at 3¾ per cent, the lowest renewal rate since June, 1926, although two days before the rate had slumped from the renewal figure of 4 to 3½. Bankers acceptance rates were quoted ⅛ of 1 per cent lower and an easier undertone was apparent in the time money and commercial paper markets. The New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate was maintained at 4 per cent, although a reduction had been looked for in some speculative quarters this week. The ease in money reflected the large accumulation of gold here, the recent decrease in rediscounts and the dissolution of several bond syndicates and the relatively small commercial demand for funds at the present time.

Cotton prices advanced to new high levels for the season this week in reflection of reports regarding boll weevil and the sharp increase in domestic consumption. At the top price around 18⅝c a pound, the quotation was 6 cents a pound above that of last December. Wheat prices showed little change on the week.

Chief interest in the foreign exchange market centered in the further rise in German reichsmarks, said to reflect the movement of capital to Berlin, where higher interest rates are available. British and French exchanges held fairly steady.

MONETARY OUTLOOK IS LONDON MAIN INTEREST

Special to New York Evening Post and Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 23.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post in weekly financial review says:

"In the Austrian crisis and the death of the King of Rumania, the market had a reminder during the week of the unsettled condition of Europe, while in larger affairs, even the naval discussions at Geneva had some disturbing effect.

"To understand this latter situation, New York should exercise its imagination slightly and remember that not merely the recent war strain is on Britain's nerves, but the sudden realization of the tremendous change in her vulnerability to attack by air and her complete dependence upon oversea countries for food supplies.

"Nevertheless, no one doubts that America and Britain will arrive at a complete mutual understanding concerning naval matters, while as regards Europe, Britain and America also, have long been aware that the bolshevik influences there will want persistent watching and opposition.

"It is also increasingly evident that the League of Nations requires every possible support, and while the United States may abstain officially from participation in the League, your moral support in every movement against war is fully acknowledged. In fact optimists would affirm that without any formalities of alliance America and Britain will do everything possible separately and unitedly to prevent war.

"Lassitude in the markets is now likely to continue for the next two months unless any detached activity is stimulated in some one particular market.

Chief Interest in Money Outlook.

"Apart from politics, the chief interest attaches to the monetary outlook, and the return of Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is awaited with much interest, as it is thought likely that the monetary policy will then be shaped in accordance with recent discussions.

"We have no knowledge here as to whether any important agreements in the monetary policy have been reached between the central banks as a whole, and in absence of such knowledge we are rather prepared for an early rise in money rates in view of the foreign absorptions of gold and adverse exchanges. Moreover, the somewhat unnatural steadiness in American exchange around $4.85½ occasions conjectures as to whether the rate is artificially maintained, though I cannot find definite evidence of pegging.

"It is considered that monetary conditions must necessarily be affected at all centers for the next year or two until the French currency is definitely stabilized and its effects tested.

"In credits and gold accumulated at foreign centers, France must now have a strong bulwark both as regards the impending dollar maturities on your side and the effect of the stabilization of currency, though some think that a definite stabilization scheme might be accompanied by arrangement for some dollar and sterling credits.

"Iron and steel and some other industries are rather better, but mostly because of filling up of orders where stocks have run dry and there is no definite evidence yet of a strong trade revival.

"Nevertheless, the present proportion of banking loans to deposits is almost the highest ever recorded. This is probably due to the following combination of circumstances: First, aid to depressed industries; second, financing of new and various prosperous industries; third, great increase in overdrafts to the general public, whose demands are stimulated by heavy taxation and high cost of living; fourth, to increased activity in the stock markets where large purchases during recent years have been partly on borrowed money."

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"With the exception of a sharp display of strength in German reichsmarks in the first half of the period, a pronounced dullness prevailed in foreign exchanges in the week just closed. Wednesday's session, it was stated, was probably the most inactive witnessed in many years. German documents, following the successful flotation several days ago of a $30,000,000 bank loan here, were in sharp inquiry on the belief that further large loans for German account would be floated in this city. Another important feature aiding the reischsmark is the scarcity of funds in that country and the high money market. This, it was said, tended to keep funds at home and also to attract considerable foreign funds to the German capitol. Reichsmark sold up to 23.79¼, a high.

"Sterling was well maintained around $4.85½ during the greater part of the dealings, but relapsed toward the close. In other leading European currencies rate changes were slight, although as a whole rates showed improvements over the previous week.

"In the Far Eastern group, Japanese yen dropped early to 46.92, quickly recovered, but today sold down again. Silver currencies fluctuated with the movement of bar silver.

"Rumanian lei, on news of the death of the Rumanian King, slumped sentimentally to .58 and then rallied to 61. South Americans were dull and uninteresting.

"Canadian funds in New York were easy at 11-64 per cent discount. It was stated that if the rate continued at this level for any length of time it was likely that gold would begin to find its way down to New York from the Dominion."

COTTON MARKET TURNS EASY LATE, CLOSES OFF

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—After selling up to 19.21 for December or into new high ground for the season, the cotton market turned easier today under week-end realizing promoted by prospects for clearing weather in the South. December declined to 18.98 or 3 points net lower and closed at that figure, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 2 to 6 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 10 to 17 points on a renewal of yesterday's buying movement, supposed to be based on the rains reported in the South and increasing apprehensions of crop damage by bool weevil. Liverpool did not fully meet the local advance of Friday afternoon, but showed a sufficient gain to suggest that the trade there was more or less nervous over coming crop prospects, and for a time the demand locally was urgent.

October sold up to 18.95 and January to 19.25 new high records on all active positions and net advances of about 14 to 17 points. There was enough week-end realizing to supply buyers around these figures, however, and as demand tapered off, rather a reactionary sentiment developed. Prospects for clearing weather in the South probably increased the disposition to take profits on long cotton and while selling otherwise was said to be restricted, prices worked off 15 to 20 points from the best, October reacting to 18.72 and January to 19.03 in late trading. Last prices were within a few points of the lowest, although there may have been a little buying in the last few minutes on weather reports indicating rather heavy rains in some sections of Georgia during the past 24 hours.

The official forecast was for generally clearing weather over Sunday, following further showers in some sections tonight, and this was the view of the Outlook which appeared to be taken by local map readers.

Some Southern selling was reported here during early trading which was said to include a little hedging against prospective new crop receipts.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 56,000 bales, against 39,000 last year.

Private cables said speculative buying and trade calling had been supplied by realizing in the Liverpool market.

The rather heavy realizing sales which made their appearance in the coton market as prices approached the 18⅞-cent level for October and 19 cents for January contracts during the past wek, were absorbed on comparatively moderate reactions. A continuance of showery weather in the South, particularly in the Eastern belt evidently served to increase apprehensions of boll weevil, following the Government report on cotton insects in the fields prior to July 1 and the weekly report of the Weather Bureau which mentinued the boll weevil in connection with the crop's progress in various sections of the belt. This seemed to offset private reports indicating that the condition of the crop was holding well up to the end-June average, and the best prices of the week and movement were made late Friday when October sold up to 18.84c and January to 19.14c.

Except for the reports of heavy boll weevil infestation in parts of the South and some few complaints of grassy fields or rank growth, the crop news would appear to have been fairly favorable as a rule. Four of the private mid-July reports were issued, with condition figures ranging from 75 up to 77.4 and averaging about 75.8. These same reports at the end of June showed conditions ranging from 75.4 up to 77.1 and averaging about 75.9. So on the face of the figures, it would appear that the first half of July has passed without any appreciable deterioration in the condition of the crop.

This, however, evidently failed to modify the fear of a sharp falling off during the latter part of this month or August and local bulls are still talking a probable yield of around one-third of a bale to the acre. Only two of the private mid-July reports gave figures on the indicated yield, one of them placing it at 14,766,000 bales and the other at 14,833,000 bales.

Reactionary sentiment has been considerably in evidence based largely upon the price and the extent of recent advances but some of the earlier week sellers were credited with covering or rebuying their contracts on the adnave toward the end of the week.

Some authorities are now estimating the world's consumption for the reason at about 16,200,000 bales of American cotton exclusive of linters and the world's probable carryover at about 7,200,000 bales.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Butter production has passed its peak, and is showing the usual seasonal decline. General producing conditions, however, are more favorable this year than last for late summer production, and there is little likelihood that production will drop as sharply from now on as occurred last year.

At the close of the week the general tone on all markets with the exception of Boston was full steady to firm. Dealers, though, were operating rather conservatively owing to the reported favorable production conditions in the larger producing sections and because of continued heavy into storage movement. There was sufficient confidence in the market over the longer period, however, to prevent prices from going much lower.

In spite of lighter receipts, the net into storage movement at the four principal markets continues quite heavy, and the surplus in holdings is being gradually increased.

QUIET TRADE AT WEEK-END ON THE CURB EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—While the market on the Curb Exchange continued to exhibit the strong tendencies that have prevailed for a week or more past, the higher levels failed to produce offerings, which condition resulted in excedingly quiet trading in today's short session.

The movement to record quotations was resumed in several issues. Among these were Grand Stores, Aluminum Co. and Newmont Mining. Charles Freshman Co. rose 2⅝ points and American Rolling Mills gained 1¼ points early in the trading. Deere & Co. and Sanitary Grocery, both of which advanced substantially yesterday, were in moderate demand on advance of about a point.

Public utility shares also contributed some strong features on light dealings. American Gas and United Gas Improvement scored early gains of a point or more. Northern States Power "A" improved 2 points on small sales.

Oil shares held steady. Prairie Pipe moved up 2¼ points and other moved narrowly.

See Rising Wool Prices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—A rising tendency to wool prices and a favorable outlook for producers of winter lambs is indicated by present conditions, the Department of Agriculture said today in its July wool outlook.

"In view of the large increase in the crop of native lambs and the probabilities of less lamb feeding in the corn belt and increased feeding in the West," said the department, "prices of slaughter lambs this summer and fall are likely to be higher than during the corresponding periods of the past 12 months. Average prices for the coming year, however, are expected to be about the same as the past year.

"Domestic wool prices have shown some strength and are expected to show a rising tendency during the next sixth months, although no considerable increase is expected."

LOCAL STOCK TRADE VOLUME IS LIGHTER

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, July 23.—The trade volume on the local market the past week slackened some and transactions in no individual issue reached an aggregate of a thousand shares for the six days. The individual leader, as far as turnover, was St. Louis Public Service which on transactions of a little over 900 shares ranged between 30¾ and 27 for net loss of over 3 points. Not only did the traction stock react after recent advance but the United Railways 4s showed net change for week of 1 point on sales between 82 and 82¼.

Aloe common, Wagner Electric common and Hamilton-Brown were among the comparatively more active issues. The first named was unchanged while the shoe and electric shares showed gains for the week.

SEEKS SKIP-STOP PLAN FOR OLIVE CAR LINE

Director of Streets and Sewers Recommends System During Reconstruction of Street.

A skip-stop system for street cars on Olive street, to be effective during the reconstruction of that thoroughfare between Twelfth street and Channing avenue, was recommended yesterday by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks. The contract for the reconstruction will be awarded on July 26 and work started at once.

The skip-stop plan is deemed advisable not only to reduce accident hazards in the affected area but also to shorten delays to street car riders occasioned by the reconstruction work. With piles of material in the street and gangs of men at work, it is pointed out, the danger to passengers entering and leaving cars is unavoidably increased. To avert this as far as possible stops will be made only at Twelfth street, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-first, Jefferson avenue, Leffingwell, Garrison, Compton and Channing avenue.

Ninety per cent of the persons using Olive street cars, it is explained, do not get on or off between Channing avenue and Twelfth street. Of the 10 per cent who do, 90 per cent of them get on or off at the streets designated for stops. Thus the arrangement will mean that one person in a hundred will have to walk an extra block.

"As a further safety measure," says the statement, "the United Railways has been requested to resume operation over the old rails. This will not only make for greater safety for the car riders, but will aid materially in the reconstruction work in connection with the paving of the south half of the Olive street roadway."

DRILLING STOPS IN SEMINOLE FIELD, BUT OIL MEN DISAGREE

Order of State Commission Questioned by Some Operators, Supported by One Member of Body

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 23.—Oil operators in the Seminole Field of Oklanoma were reported today to be observing a temporary order of the State Corporation Commission prohibiting drilling and shooting of wells in certain parts of the field, although sharp difference of opinion as to the legality of the Commission's action had developed.

C. C. Childers, member of the Commission, announced he would not sign the order, issued Thursday by the other two Commissioners, Fred Capshaw, chairman, and Frank Carter.

Childers declared he did not believe the commission should take any action so long as operators could handle, without waste, all the oil produced in the field, which is spouting about one-fifth of the total output of the nation. No efforts had been made to test the authority of the Commission, although a protest had been filed by the Gypsy Oil Co., declaring the order unconstitutional.

The attitude of authorities and oil interests seem to be that the order, returnable Aug. 5, was temporary and that it would stand until permanent regulations are attempted.

Oil experts testified before the Commission that excessive production in the Seminole Field had upset market conditions and that waste was probable unless some means was used to force all of the operators there to abide by a decision of 17 companies to limit the output.

WOMAN SOUGHT IN KILLING OF MAN IN CHICAGO MYSTERY

Police Learn of Threats by Wife; Victim May Have Been Marriage Broker.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Police, in their efforts to clear up the killing of Michael Stopec, 28 years old, found dead in a kneeling position before a divan in a hotel, are searching for a woman.

Stopec, known to his associates as Harvey Foxton, had been dead one or two days, a bullet through his heart. Neighbors heard a commotion and a shot in the apartment Wednesday and reported having seen a woman leave it.

Police are working on a theory that Stopec was the victim of a bootleggers' feud. One of five women held for questioning asserted he had been selling liquor. Records showed that the slain man had served sentences for larceny and burglary. In addition to the five women, four men who had known Stopec were questioned.

It developed that Stopec was to have been married next week to Anna "Babe" Grady, one of the women questioned, although he had a wife. A relative of Stopec told police the wife had threatened to kill Stopec and a woman with whom he was said to have been friendly.

The police also were working on a theory that Stopec may have been acting as a marriage broker. A friend said he was arranging a deal to marry a pal to a woman whose husband was dying and who would collect insurance.

WOMAN AND MAN HURT BY AUTO WHEN CROSSING STREET

Mrs. Irene Utley and A. J. Winston Struck by Car Driven by Louis S. Dunne.

Albert J. Winston, 38 years old, a switchman, of 4832A Cote Briliante avenue, suffered a fractured skull and his companion, Mrs. Irene Utley, 36, of 4830A Cote Briliante, minor injuries, when they were struck by an automobile as they crossed Easton avenue at Marcus avenue, at 8:45 o'cock last night.

The driver of the automobile, Lonuis S. Dunne of 1143A Bayard avenue, was taken to city hospital for examination and was held by police. He said the pair walked into the path of his machine before he had time to stop it.

Mrs. Utley was treated for contusions and abrasions at city hospital and then sent home. Winston, in a serious condition, remained at the hospital.

The Dollar Princess" With New Prima Donna Comes to Forest Park

odman Players to End Their Season at the Garden Theater This Week With a Revival of "The Rivals."

UT in Forest Park this week the Municipal Opera Company, with still another new prima donna, will put on Leo Fall's operetta, "The Dollar Princess," which has not been played the outdoor company before, while the Goodman Players will ing their season at the Garden Theater to a close with a revival "The Rivals."

Business at the Municipal Theater during the past week was ellent up to Thursday night when the rain came, that old favorite, e Mikado," drawing in the usual nightly crowd, although the l figures would not have come close to approaching the tremen- s records established by "The Song of the Flame" and "Rose ie." The season has been by far the best in the history of the st Park organization and it seems likely to continue so until end, some five weeks away.

The excellent performances of the Goodman Players at the rden Theater have not drawn the crowds which they should have racted. Whether the classics are not wanted in the summer time whether the Garden has been smothered by the operas at Forest rk is a question. It seems probable that the cause of the light ndance is to be found in both reasons.

The production tomorrow night of "The Dollar Princess," the hth work of the ninth annual season of the Municipal Theater sociation, will serve to introduce the new prima donna, Char- tte Woodruff, who, during her career, has been seen in the ding roles in numerous Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and most ently has appeared in Shubert productions in New York.

"The Dollar Princess," a richly melodic composition, was as pular in its day as the eternal score of "The Merry Widow" and, ough with its languid, haunting melodies. it is typical of the auss school, and the libretto by A. N. Willner and F. Gruen- m has European characters, its story concerns the quest of American millionaire's daughter, and is one with appeal for diences of this country.

When the Olympic Theater was one of St. Louis' leading play- ses in 1910, both "The Merry Widow" and "The Dollar Prin- " played there for two weeks—proving such outstanding hits t they were the only two attractions at the Olympic that year remain for an extended engagement.

THE DOLLAR PRINCESS" as the title indicates, is an operetta built upon the romance of an American millionaire's daughter. It might, indeed, if its humor were not so broad, be ribed as a bright satire in which the American heiress' fond- for European titles is laughed at.

The opera opens at the estate of John W. Cowder, president the coal trust, whose millions are as endless as the coal beds t he has monopolized. It is a queer household that one en- nters at the Cowder home.

In the first place there are countless servants with each boat m Europe bringing more. For, be it known, the Cowder servants no ordinary menials; they are impoverished counts and barons m the continent who have found their way to this country in hope of resurrecting their fortunes by a profitable marriage.

Even in the case of these titled employes, however, Cowder idences the same acumen that has made him the wealthiest man America. Do his servants work? Indeed, not. So indolent is head groom that Cowder cannot take his daily dozen astride horse, simply because the head groom prefers taking his lovely ce, Daisy, for a ride.

For, while he supports these titled employes in jobs at which y are useless, he pays for their board by renting them out for ek-end house parties at Newport, thereby giving them an op- rtunity to free themselves from servitude.

The Cowder household is even more complicated because of two lovely young women, Alice, Cowder's daughter, and Daisy, niece, who rule the province served entirely by the nobility.

Alice, as the story reveals, is following the foosteps of her her to business success, having already despite her youth accu- lated some $20,000,000. And Daisy, on the other hand, leans a life of gayety, though she can discover no way of escaping uncle's supervision.

Into the midst of this eccentric dominion come two new ar- ls from the continent, Freddy Smythe, an Englishman, and rquis de Jolifontaine. Alice immediately pounces upon Freddy. has piqued her curiosity and engages him as her secretary Marquis, having been appointed groom, intrigues youthful sy, who sees in him a hope of escape to the gayeties of Paris.

Alice's interest in Freddy Smythe develops into something ater than business—so much so, in fact, that she tantalizes him having him take letters to an imaginary lover. And Daisy. dges the Marquis to an eternal platonic friendship.

AT this juncture of the story Tom Cowder, the coal king's elderly and loafing brother, arrives home with his son, Dick, and adds further complications to the plot by bringing with Olga Labinskia, alleged Countess, but in reality a sinuous lion er with a husband in the old country.

It takes only about two smiles and one glance from the im- ive Olga to upset the Coal Baron's ideas about being a widower. at the end of the first act he has proclaimed his intentions of rying her, even though the two feminine members of his fam- object.

In fact, the second act finds Tom Cowder and Dick, the two

Behind the Screens Out in Hollywood

By MARGARET POST NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, July 23.

IT SEEMS that whoever it is that makes our modern maps are entirely wrong. They would have us believe that the Yangtse-Kiang River is in China, whereas it is really here in California, we have seen it, and on it Richard Dix and lovely Mary Brian, surrounded by a horde of real and make-believe Chinaman have spent several week making "Shanghai Bound," a real Chinese thriller.

Then, too, the Sahara Desert, once supposed to be on the Dark Continent, is found in Central California, and a trip there yesterday found a full-fledged Arabian village of gorgeous colored tents bedecked with flags and rugs of every description and handsome Arab shieks roaming about looking very splendid indeed. There are several beautiful oases surrounded by palm trees, and resting under one of these was Noah Beery growing another villain's beard, and he told us confidentially that this was really a set for "Beau Sabreur" in which he is villaining to Gary Cooper's hero. Gary was very busy a short distance away with a fencing lesson.

ANOTHER geographical error is the location of the Pampas Country usually ascribed to South America, but actually in Hollywood. Today Doug. Fairbanks, looking more dashing then ever in loose baggy trousers, boots and spurs, was very busy between shots practicing "bolo" throwing under the guidance of a six-foot-five Argentine gentleman imported especially for the purpose. Fairbanks' new picture is called "The Gaucho," otherwise a South American cowboy.

WE arrived on the Pickford lot just in time to find Mary returning from her first day's work in a 10-cent store, seated on the floor of a truck. She was bareheaded and with her curls tucked up and her simple little dress she looked very lovely and childlike as she said good-by at the gate of her dilapidated home to the young man who had brought her there. But it's when Mary looks up at you and smiles that you know why she's as much a favorite off the screen as she is on it.

SEVERAL of the stars have their cottages on the lot. The Fairbanks, Barrymore and Talmadge cottages are in a group and when working all day at the studio, the owners have lunch or tea there and sometimes even a little rest, but the latter not often.

Richard Barthelmess is very particular that no visitors be allowed to see him filmed, so it was only by sheer good luck that a glimpse was caught of him, looking very young and collegiate, whispering sweet somethings into the ear of Dorothy Revier. His new picture, "The Drop Kick," is a story of college life and the cast is largely composed of college men.

CORINNE GRIFFITH, as easy to talk to as look at, is not making a picture at present, but instead was found at her home in Beverly Hills, making a garden, and though a gardener was assisting, it was the "Orchid of the Screen" who was pulling rocks from the soil with her own hands and admitting after a time that it made her back ache. Miss Griffith is quite an amateur gardener and has a giant oleander and a beautiful lime tree of which she is especially proud. She also shows with pride her three pals, a wire-haired fox terrier, a cairn and a Doberman Pincher. Next to her garden and her dogs, Miss Griffith is really interested in history, especially in anything concerning the life of Empress Josephine, a character part which it is her ambition to play some day.

She showed us one of her most treasured possessions, a slip of paper with Josephine's signature, acquired upon one of her journeys abroad.

Gertrude Ederle, the swimmer, is making her screen debut with Bebe Daniels in "Swim, Girl, Swim," a comedy of college athletics. Miss Daniels has a charming beach home at Santa Monica, where Trudy is a guest and whenever the two are not at the studio, they are to be seen in the ocean, Bebe becoming more and more proficient in the water each day under the champion's instruction.

"A Romance of Old Spain" will be D. W. Griffith's first production for United Artists, it has just been decided at the studio. Griffith, who was scheduled to have made "La Paiva" as his initial work since rejoining the organization, has temporarily postponed this vehicle in favor of the new choice. It is probable, however, that "La Paiva," a story laid in the period of Napoleon III, will be produced as his second picture. Estelle Taylor, who was to have had a leading role in "La Paiva," will be cast in a similar capacity in "A Romance of Old Spain." Negotiations are under way to secure the services of Lionel Barrymore for one of the leading parts. The production will be a costume picture, with medieval Spain as the background.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance," which Al Christie is going to reproduce, had in its original and ancient version a cast of then unknown players, for the most part. Marie Dressler, because of her popularity on the stage, was practically the only one whose name was familiar to the public. An obscure young man named Charlie Chaplin played the male lead opposite her. Other members of the cast who were given recognition in the opening titles were Mabel Normand and Mack Swain.

Three of First National's 10 college men who are seeking careers in the flickering tintypes have been given supporting roles in "American Beauty," Billie Dove's current starring picture. They are Edward Karges and Warner Smoot of Northwestern University and Stuart Knox of Yale. All are playing the roles of wealthy young men dragged against their will into a fashionable and expensive modiste shop.

Florence Vidor's current picture, still in production, has undergone a title change. It will be definitely known as "One Woman to Another," the tentatively title, "A Celebrated Woman," having been dropped. Hedda Hopper has been assigned the role of Olive Gresham in the picture. Theodore von Eltz, leading man, and little Joyce Marie Coad have been given important parts in this production.

The actress who has made more millions laugh than any other woman on the screen in the old days of the Biograph is playing the first dramatic role of her career. She is Flora Finch, and the picture in which she is playing is "The Rose of Monterey."

What We Laugh At, And Why

By ROBINSON NEWBOLD.

An outstanding favorite as the comedian of Municipal Opera last season, Robinson Newbold returned to the cast last week to play "Ko Ko" in the Municipal Theater Association's production of "The Mikado."

THE slapstick, the custard pie and the other physical accoutrements of comedy are finding their proper place in the actor's activity, but are giving way before a noticeable trend to intelligent and nice comedy.

Of course, this has wrought misfortune on the poor chap whose only reliance was the conventional slapsick when there came a pause in the laughs, but it has resulted pleasantly for those persons who can't see comedy in a resounding thumping for no reason at all.

I don't mean to say that the old reliable custard pie hasn't its place in comedy. Nor that it will ever cease provoking laughter. All that I insist on is that it will be well placed.

After all, George Bernard Shaw, deft a satirist as he is, achieves some of his most brilliant effects through the use of slapstick. But you will find there is always a motive for it. In other words, he has placed the slapstick appropriately and made it rise out of the situation.

When I started out on the stage, conditions were different. The best comedian was the one who could swing the slapstick more than anyone else and fall down more flights of stairs without personal injury. And in pictures the funniest fellow was the one who hurled pies the most accurately. One didn't need any excuse to launch forth into either activity. Like the plot of the old-fashioned melodrama, comedy just happened.

TIMES have changed, however. And it has been the audiences who have enforced the development. The patrons of municipal opera, for instance, enjoy rough comedy to a certain point. But when one steps beyond that point, the laughter dies down. And for his lapse the comedian pays the penalty of depreciated popularity.

Such experiences have convinced me that slapstick comedy is in some degree giving way to thoughtful comedy—to something that isn't disgustingly obvious and vulgar. I don't mean that slapstick is bad, for it is acceptable at the proper time, if not overdone.

If those who revived comic opera would appreciate this more fully. I feel that the revivals would be more successful. For, after all, comedy frequently arises out of a period. To paraphrase a platitude, a laugh is here today and gone tomorrow.

Half the laughs in a comic opera consequently are dead by the time it is revived. One can't appreciate a joke about a girl's ankle if dresses are being worn to the knee. So those laughs, so frequent in a comic opera, which are flashes of wit not rising from situation and character, must be cut.

And the poor comedian, if he is to make any showing and earn his salary, must drum up business for himself. He must create laughs. It can be easily done by injecting slapstick. But that doesn't pay in the long run. So one must figure it out for himself.

To illustrate what I mean, Blossom, in writing the libretto for "Eileen," did not consider the role of Sir Reggie particularly comical. He was writing a musical melodrama, and sacrificed laughs almost completely.

MUNICIPAL opera, however, demands a certain amount of sheer fun. It, accordingly, fell to my lot to study the character and see what could be made of it through interpolations, which I felt had to be pertinent. in keeping with the spirit of the opera, and in the character of the person uttering them.

I endeavored on the opening night to present with a degree of restraint a comical person by appealing to the intelligent funnybone, as well as emphasizing the comic situations with physical demonstrations. Fortunately for me, that first night was accompanied by a threat of rain, and I

"Chang" and "Metropolis" Two Stupendous Foreign Films of Better Sort

Made at Comparatively Small Cost While American Directors Are Spending $3000 for Perfume to Create Atmosphere.

By NIE.

WHILE it is not, certainly, within the province of the captious critic of motion pictures to measure a film's greatness, or lack of it, from a box office standard still, in this era of very necessary commercialism of the cinema palaces it is a difficult matter to untangle art from avarice. To a theater manager a good picture is one which brings paying customers into the show house and a bad picture is one which the public stays away from. Viewed from the angle of pure art two pictures, which we were shown last week and which will come to the local screen sooner or later, were as fine as any we have seen in a long time. And yet, looking at them from the showman's seat in the box office alongside the theater safe neither one of them is worth the trouble of unpacking and threading through the projection machine for the benefit of the Grand avenue flappers and drug store cowboys. There is, however, a large audience awaiting pictures of this sort if they can be started moving into the theaters again.

One of these pictures is "Chang," a marvelous film of wild animal life in Siam. There are six or seven reels of photography which is almost beyond imagination held together by something resembling a story of the hardship of the human inhabitants of the jungle. How the camera men ever succeeded in getting their shots is a mystery and how, after getting them they escaped with their lives and their machines is beyond understanding. This is the picture which, it is reported, will reopen the Grand Central when—and if—that theater goes into its new policy. If you want to see real life, real action and amazing photography don't miss it when it comes. If, however, you want your films made up of sex and Cinderella scenes your time will be wasted.

THE other picture is "Metropolis," a German made affair with the German direction in the handling of immense mob scenes and the German art of photography at their very best. The story, however, is not as interesting as "Variety" and some of the other imported films and if it is shown in one of the larger theaters it may need everything that Brooke Johns or Herbert Rawlinson has to offer to keep the audiences from wandering out into the night. "Metropolis" is the story of a city of the future with everything done by machinery and the working classes reduced to mere machines themselves. There is even a mechanical woman, made of iron and steel, who helps to overthrow her creators in some scenes of ruin and destruction which are stupendously done. The plot drags a little at the beginning but before the picture has finished the drama rises to great heights. See this one, too, when it comes, if you are interested in what can really be done with a motion picture camera by a director who knows just what he wants to do.

NEITHER of these pictures cost a great deal of money to make compared with Hollywood standards. "Metropolis" would have involved the spending of at least a million dollars had it been made in this country. In Germany no one with a million would care to be bothered with making a movie. Considerable space was given in these columns last Sunday to the reckless way in which money was handled by American directors and here is another case in point which may, or may not be true. At all events the press agents of "Women Love Diamonds," which is down at Loew's this week, contribute the following:

> With a special guard to watch it, more than $3000 worth of perfume was being used as a real "prop" for reel purposes in "Women Love Diamonds" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios recently.
> The Paris product was placed in more than two hundred atomizers and trinkets, and used in dressing the boudoir set in the film in which Pauline Starke, Owen Moore and Lionel Barrymore have important roles.
> "So far as I know," declared Edmund Goulding, director of the picture, "it was the first time so much perfume has been used in one boudoir scene. But in keeping with the exotic setting and the unusual nature of the photo play, the prop was necessary."

The peculiar part of the thing is that it is very likely all true when $2 worth of bottles, bought at Woolworth's and a pint of who introduced Olga, interposing their objections, but to no avail John Cowder consents, however, to a postponement of his marriage until such time as his daughter, Alice, selects a husband.

Daisy, in the meantime, has reached an agreement with the Marquis to elope, provided that he acts merely as a brother on their proposed European trip. When Alice, after having haughtily scorned Freddy Smythe, finally selects him for her husband, he turns her down, despite his love for her, insisting that she act proudly as a dollar-princess does.

The third act finds the same principals in Europe, drawn by the proposed amalgamation of Cowder's interest with those of the Hardstrong-Smythe company. The Marquis and Daisy in spite of a year of marriage seem as platonic as ever, even though the Marquis has sought to arouse his wife's jealousy by various flirtations.

Freddy Smythe, instead of a pauperized English nobleman, seems to be the thriving heir of Lord Hardstrong, while John Cowder is now anxious to escape from the clutches of Olga, which he finally succeeds in doing. Alice, businesslike as ever since her disappointment in love with Freddy, also accompanies the party only to be reconciliated with Freddy, while the Marquis puts aside Daisy's objection to a platonic marriage through a clever device.

The cast for the week follows:

John W. Cowder—President of coal trust	John Dunsmure
Tom Cowder—His brother, elderly loafer always broke	William McCarthy
Dick—His nephew	Paul Kleman
Freddy Smyth	Allan Rogers
Marquis de Jellifontaine	John Cherry
Lord Herbert Fitz Jones—Cowder's office boy	Robert Betts
Ivan Tartaroff—Of the cirque Tartaroff	Robinson Newbold
Pillard	David Andrada
Alice Cowder—Cowder's daughter	Charlotte Woodruff
Daisy—Cowder's niece	Dorothy Seegar
Olga Labinska	Anne Yago

FOR the closing piece of the season the Garden Theater has chosen "The Rivals," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. Sheridan wrote the play in 1775 and it was produced in Covent Garden. In fact, the manager of the theater had suggested that the play be written. It was generally supposed to be autobiographical, since its author had fought two duels with one Mathews, who was a rather unprincipled admirer of Elizabeth Ann Linley, whom Sheridan had married before the production of "The Rivals." In view of the fact that the play dealt with rivals and duels, many supposed that Sheridan wrote into his play some of the incidents through which he had passed recently. But the author denied that any of the characters in his play bore any resemblance to persons known to him in real life.

"The Rivals" presents the peculiar situation of a man being his own rival for the hand and heart of a certain comely young lady who is an heiress and who prefers a poor Ensign to a Captain. She even prefers to have him elope with her and thereby lose most of her fortune rather than prosaically gain the consent of her aunt and marry in the ordinary way and retain her fortune. She feels there would be much fun in being poor and loved.

"The Rivals" was given here some two years ago by a company of stars who had revived the play and toured the country in it with Mrs. Fiske playing the leading part.

There will be a special tax-free performance of "Romeo and Juliet" tomorrow night at popular prices.

New Orpheum Manager.

Ross Garver, who was manager of the Rialto Theater here in 1920, the first year house operated by the Orpheum Circuit, has returned to St. Louis to assume the managership of the Orpheum Theater, succeeding William A. Hartung, who has gone back to Omaha to manage the new Orpheum house there, which is just being completed. Garver arrived here Friday to act as relief manager at the St. Louis Theater during the vacation of Manager Everett H. Hays. On Mays' return from a trip up North, Garver will go to New York for a conference with Orpheum Circuit officials in connection with the Orpheum, which re-open Aug. 28.

was able to build out of slight reference to rain several lines that were comically pertinent to the threatening weather.

That really helped me over a most trying situation. For that huge theater, the vast and immense stage and the solid phalanx of faces are an aweing spectacle even to a comedian.

Such interpolations are, however, becoming more and more the thing in New York plays. One is now paid in New York for bringing something to the part and delivering. A comedian can't come to a new show and merely read the lines given him by the author.

The writer needs assistance. And the actor can help him through his experience of knowing what will appeal to the audience. The comedian must really build his own part in the show, since all authors aren't Gilberts. He must conceive funny lines and situations that won't be purely digressive and comic only for comedy's sake.

And I must say that municipal opera has played its part in this development. For the more the public sees of the old methods the less they want to see of them. And while you've made it hard for comedians, you're making for better comedy.

hydrant water would have made exactly as good a picture.

PAULINE STARKE, the star of this $3000 perfumed piece of celluloid, is from Missouri incidentally. She was once chosen as an "ideal type of beauty" by Harrison Fisher, artist and portrait painter. She began motion picture work as an extra at the old Triangle studio in 1916, when she was little more than a child. She attracted the attention of D. W. Griffith and received from him the education that was to form the basis of her screen career. She made her first real bid for success in a novelty picture, "Puppets," with De Wolf Hopper. Later she starred for Triangle and in numerous productions for the old Goldwyn company. Among her earlier picture were "Whom the Gods Destroy," "The Life Line," "Eyes of Youth," "Broken Butterfly," "Soldiers of Fortune," "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" and "Dangerous Days."

Miss Starke was born in Joplin, Jan. 10, 1900. She began her education in the public schools of Kansas City. Later her family moved to Los Angeles and she continued her schooling there. She comes of a nonprofessional family.

MEMORIAL TO CLARK ERECTED

By the Associated Press.

HARRODSBURG, Ky., July 23.—A wooden stockade, with three blockhouses and four cabins, now marks the site here where George Rogers Clark planned his conquest of the Northwest.

The replica of the old fort, which was constructed by the Kentucky Pioneer Memorial Association, also is the State's latest park. Among the structures in the 16-acre plot is the cabin in which Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, parents of Abraham Lincoln, were married. It was moved from Washington county, Ky., to the park. Tourists visiting the stockade may stay in the cabins a night if they desire.

128TH MOVES AGAINST IMAGINARY INVASION

Missouri National Guard Artiller yUnit Studies Tactical Problems at Fort Riley.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT RILEY, Kan., July 23.—The 128th Field Artillery of the Missouri National Guard will enter the final stages of its field training period Monday when the 11 batteries of the outfit will begin spending the major portion of their time on the firing range.

Firing of French 75-mm. field pieces, with which the regiment is equipped, began Friday in target practice, during each session of which shells are fired at an imaginary "enemy" concealed behind hills and in the valleys surrounding the artillery range.

A series of tactical and firing problems has been worked out for solution by the various batteries of the regiment, including Battery A of St. Louis. The unit having the highest firing score will be presented with a trophy, for which there is keen competition.

Tactical Maneuvers.

The march of the outfit from Sedalia, Mo., to Fort Riley was in itself a tactical problem, the 128th theoretically moving on its journey to dislodge a "Red" force assumed to have invaded the United States from the Pacific Ocean and to have established a salient eastward to Fort Riley.

The 128th, acting its capacity of a general headquarters reserve artillery regiment, was mobilized at Sedalia and moved westward in theoretical support of the Thirty-fifth Division, which was supposed to be making a counter attack at Fort Riley against the "Red" forces.

Protect Imaginary Infantry.

The problems with which officers of the regiment now are concerned have to do with firing the large shells at the "enemy," now within range of their guns. Barrages to protect advances of companies of infantry the artillery regiment is supposed to be supporting will be laid down from time to time.

Because of the longer march it will have to make, Battery A will depart by motor truck for St. Louis next Wednesday. It is planned to parade into St. Louis by way of the St. Charles Rock road the following Sunday afternoon. The other 10 batteries of the 128th will remain in camp until Thursday, at which time they also will begin the homeward march.

CHAMPION'S STYLE LIKELY TO HANDICAP CHALLENGER

Sharkey Made Mistake of Battling Forwardly Whereas Titleholder Is Sure to Make Bout a Runaway Affair.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor o fthe Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Fair or foul, Jack Dempsey's victory over Jack Sharkey puts him on the highway to achieve the distinction of being the only fighter since glove championships began, to lose and regain the world's heavyweight title. That chance will come next September, somewhere in America, with Gene Tunney for the second time facing Jack the Killer.

Once in the dead past of 50 years ago, a fighter lost the world's heavyweight bare-knuckle title and then regained it. That fighter was Tom Allen who for so many years after his retirement operated the "Champion's Rest" saloon, on Market Street near Broadway, St. Louis. Tom, in 1872 lost on a foul to Mike McCoole, and later regained it from him in a savage boody fight near East St. Louis. Other than this instance no champion of the heavyweight class has ever come back to regain a lost crown.

Jack Popular at Last.

Dempsey's victory over Sharkey increased his popuarity to such a degree that he is certain to enter the ring against Tunney the favorite. No fighter since John L. Sullivan's day has gained the fight fans' loyalty as has Dempsey. His name is still on every fight fan's lips and they talk of his "sock" with awe as the "Paris gun" of the fight world.

Should he defeat Tunney and regain the crown, Dempsey will enter the Hall of Fame as the greatest fighter of all time. Indeed, half the world already esteems him that.

But fighting depends on something more than esteem. There are still cold blooded speculators ready to take issue with Dempsey as to his ability to "take" Tunney. And the argument will wage long and bitterly and the experts will be just as much at sea next September as they were in the Sharkey fight.

Dempsey, the critics say, showed considerable improvement over his Philadelphia fight, botn in strength, speed and range-finding ability. But, they add, this may have been due first, to the fact that Sharkey played into Dempsey's hand by battling forwardly; second, that he was shortening his blows and fighting for the body, andthird, that he was facing an inferior puncher in Sharkey.

Tunney Is Craftier.

Some of this is true. The writer called attention some time ago to the probability that any fighter who carried the battle to Dempsey would be wrecked—and that's what Sharkey did. He surely was well wrecked.

Again, Dempsey DID fight for Sharkey's body and only occasionally let fly long-range blows at the enemy's head, most of which he missed badly. And as to Sharkey's punching, it undoubtedly had lost all its power, after the early rounds.

Against Tunney, Dempsey will again have to go back to chasing a fighter who thumps on the wing, turning unexpectedly now and then to jolt the foe. Against this the popular fighter's infighting will get a minimum chance since he must catch his prey before he can hit him. At long-range fighting, Dempsey's range-finder is poor, and these handicaps probably will be thrust upon Jack.

Tunney can hit solidly, more so than Sharkey perhaps. Sharkey hit well enough for a round or two. He had Dempsey's face marked up far more badly in the early rounds than Tunney at the same stage of his battle with Dempsey. Perhaps it was Dempsey's body

CENTURY CREWS TAKE LEAD IN MUNY REGATTA

Score 3 Firsts and a Second in Junior Events at Creve Coeur — Senior Crews in Action Today.

Century Boat Club's junior oarsmen captured three of the four races composing the first day's program in the Municipal Rowing Association at Creve Coeur Lake yesterday afternoon. In addition, Century also took a second place and thereby gathered a total of 66 points, or 11 points better than St. Louis Rowing Club.

It is expected that Century will retain or add to its advantage in the senior events this afternoon. The Municipal trophy is awarded the club which gets the greatest number of points for the two days of competition.

The point score after the junior events is as follows: Century 66, St. Louis 55, Baden 19, Western 6, North End 5, Central 2.

Unlike most regattas that have been held at Creve Coeur Lake, the finish for the Municipal meet is at the south end of the lake and three races yesterday were condcted over a "turn" course, the start and the finish being at the same spot. This method proved highly satisfactory to the spectators.

There are five events on today's program for seniors, the first getting under way at 2:30 o'clock.

The closest finish of the day was provided in the eight-oared event, in which Century covered the one-mile course with only a boat length advantage over St. Louis. Western was third.

It was in the single sculls race that Century finished first and second. C. Dinklekamp was the winner and F. Westerman, his teammate, was second, while R. Brunk of Central finished third.

Century took the four-oared shell race by 50 yards and St. Louis was a length ahead of Baden who took third by a comfortable margin.

DEMPSEY SAYS HE WILL RETIRE AFTER TUNNEY BATTLE

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, July 23.

WIN or lose the Tunney bout, Jack Dempsey will hang up his gloves thereafter unless the heavyweight field is thick enough with prospects to keep him busy fighting, the former king of the heavies declared as he passed through Atlanta today on his trans-continental swing.

"If I win the crown, I'll get out of the game forever rather than wait two or three years before meeting a worthy contender," he said here.

People at every station at which his train stopped greeted him and quizzed him, but Jack patiently answered questions about the mooted blows to Sharkey's midriff.

"Hokum," was his succinct label for the claims. About the warnings which Referee O'Sullivan gave to both participants, he said—"the usual stuff you hear in every fight, 'Keep 'em up, boys, keep 'em up.'"

CLOSE MATCHES MARK PLAY IN CITY NET MEET

Ted Drewes, Defending Champion, Wins His Second Round Match — No Upsets Recorded.

By Davison Obear.

The annual Municipal tennis championship for men players opened yesterday afternoon on the public courts in Forest Park near the Jefferson Memorial building. Eighty-seven players entered the men's singles event while 31 teams are competing in the men's doubles. All first and second round singles matches must be completed today according to announcement last night by Martin Telle, official referee.

While there were no upsets yesterday a number of matches required the limit of three sets and several others were decided in deuce sets. All of the seeded players came through the singles without defeat. Theodore Drewes, defending champion, won his second round contest from C. O. Dixon, 6—2, 6—2. Drewes had a bye in the first round. Clifford Beutel, another seeded player, had a hard battle to win from Murray Cantwell, former St. Louis University start. This match went the limit of three sets, Beutel winning, 3—6, 13—11, 6—0.

Harry Schaberg, O'Fallon Park player, and Jack Smith, brother of Joe Smith, former junior champion, played a close match in the first round yesterday. Smith dropped the first set but outsteadied Schaberg to win the second set. The O'Fallon Park player was more accurate in placements in the final set which he won, 6—3. Archie Kennell, Tower Grove entrant, surprised by winning a victory over Eugene Meyer, O'Fallon Park player. This match required 35 games, Kennell winning, 6—1, 6—8, 8—6.

Ben Brouster, representing the Forest Park Tennis Club, opened strong against Elmer Koster of Tower Grove in their first round encounter, taking the first set 6—1. Brouster started the second set with an air of overconfidence and, although putting up a good fight, lost the set to his more experienced opponent, 6—4. Koster outplaced Brouster to win the final set, 6—2.

BROWNS ROUT THURSTON BUT LOSE, 9 TO 8

Senators Send Stewart to Showers and Wingard's Wild Pitch Lets in Deciding Marker.

By Jack Alexander.

Another Washington myth—the Hollis Thurston fable—was exploded at Sportsman's Park yesterday by the Browns. They lost, 9 to 8, the brave boys did, but they finally laid the ghost that has followed the team into every series with the Senators for the past year, and ever since the local management turned thumbs down on Thurston and shunted him to the national capital, via Chicago.

Since being alienated to the other side—deported, in fact—Senator Thurston has been a thorn in the side of this wing of the house. He has blanked, whitewashed and humiliated the local delegation and out-maneuvered it in almost every deal it has sought to make.

His right-handed gestures failed him yesterday, however. His colleagues gave him a two-run lead in the first inning and he set about to engineer a filibuster against his former mates. For two innings he kept the matter from coming to a vote, although Spencer Adams almost found an opening in the second when he got his first double.

The Hecklers Hit Home.

"Will the Senator yield?" asked Mr. Adams, slapping one against the right field. But Senator Thurston continued to hold the floor and Mr. Adams was left standing alone.

"Will the Senator yield?" asked Messrs. O'Rourke, Bennett apd Sisler, punching out successive singles for the first score against the opposition in the third inning.

"Will the Senator yield?" inquired the portly Mr. Harry Rice, starting off the fourth with a single and scoring on two infield outs and an error by Reeves.

In the fifth hour of the filibuster it was plain that the matter was coming to a head and the gallery leaned forward as it scented the clash from afar.

Francis O'Rourke, the staunch admirer of Tom Heflin, walked.

BON STEIN, OF SEATTLE, OVERCOMES ST. LOUISAN'S LEAD, WINS WITH STYMIE

Pacific Coast Golfer Takes Lead at 24th Hole but Held Regains Advantage Only to Lose When He Fails to Curve His Ball Around Opponent's on 34th Green.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, July 23.—Bon Stein, Seattle, vanquished Eddie Held, St. Louis, 2 and 1, to win the 1927 Western amateur golf championship in the 36-hole final match of the tournament here today.

Stein, the runner-up to Frank Dolp, Portland, in last year's tournament, made a remarkable comeback on the final 18 this afternoon to win the title, after being two down to Held at the end of the morning round.

The Pacific Coast golfer took the lead over his opponent at the twenty-fourth hole, but Held squared the match at the turn. Stein lost the twenty-eighth, taking a five. The match was squared again on the next hole, when Held dropped a stroke to par.

Sinking a 30-foot putt for a birdie on the thirty-first, Stein became one up and he increased his advantage at the thirty-fourth with another birdie. The match ended on the thirty-fifth green, when Stein, attempting a 10-foot putt, ran past the cup to lay a three-quarter stymie. Held tried to slide past the obstructing ball, but struck it almost dead center. The hole was halved in fives and the match was over, 2 and 1.

Held shot a 71, two under par, on the morning round, while Stein was even par. Going out in the afternoon, Stein took 34, one under par, while his opponent had a 36.

The new champion played par golf on the incoming nine, when the St. Louis star was cracking and taking two over par figures on the eight holes played.

Sein 3 Down at One Stage.

Stein made good use of his tournament experience and knowledge of the course in his uphill battle. He was three down to the St. Louis star going to the thirteenth hole of the morning round. The big advantage of Held did not daunt him in the least. During the first round Held pitched everything dead to the pin but he faltered in the afternoon.

Starting the last eighteenth under a sweltering sun with a gallery of approximately 3000 persons cheering him along, Stein scored birdie threes at the first and second, which made three in succession, counting his birdie four at the eighteenth of the morning round.

He missed a four-foot putt at the third for another one under par figure.

Stein won the second, fifth and sixth holes of the out going afternoon nine and held the Missourian to halves at all the other holes, except the last, to square the match at the three-quarter mark. Held won the turning hole when Stein missed a four-foot putt, taking a six.

Coming in, Stein lost the tenth when he pulled his tee shot into the woods and took two strokes to get out. His card showed a five to Held's four. The Seattle player won the eleventh with a par three and the thirteenth and sixteenth with birdies, the other holes being halved.

Although suffering a slight attack of appendicitis Thursday night, Held was pronounced in perfect condition today. He said that he never felt better and the physician who accompanied him around the course yesterday in his match with Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, was absent today.

Held vanquished Willing in the semifinals, 6 and 5, while Stein defeated Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, 4 and 3, on Friday.

Held Two Under Par for First Eighteen, Holds Steady Lead

With his tee shot against a bunker, and his second into a trap Held dropped the first hole.

Stein Takes Lead.

After finding a trap at the left of the green on his second shot, Stein sent his ball to within four feet of the cup and sank it for a par four, to take the lead one up. Stein sliced his tee shot into the rough on the second hole and was stymied by two trees, but made a splendid recovery, playing them and dropping the ball 30 feet from the flag. Held was a trifle inside Stein on his second shot and the hole was halved in par fours.

Held's drive was hooked on the third hole and he found himself forced to play either through or over the trees on top of a hill and just short of the green, He played over with a 120-yard mashie dropping high on the green. His 25-foot approach putt rimmed the cup and laid Stein a half stymie. Stein curved his four-foot putt around and sank to halve the hole in par four and hold his lead of one up.

A tee shot, weak and pulled sent Stein to the use of a strong iron for his approach at the Fourth. The shot was off the green hole high. He was lying 20 feet short of the cup when Held sent a curling putt into the hole for a birdie three to win and even up the match. The St. Louis golfer took the lead at the next hole when Stein was bunkered off the tee. Held took this hole with a birdie three, Stein needing four. Held took three and Stein four on the sixth hole. Held's margin was now two holes.

Held Increases Lead.

A beautiful iron of Stein's hit hard ground short of the green and over-ran the putting area twenty feet. He came back well but missed a 6-foot putt for a half and took five with Held lying dead and taking a four. Held had won his fourth in a row to be three up.

Stein's ball hung on the edge of the eighth hole and they halved it in par three.

Stein split the pin on his approach for the ninth, inside his opponent, but Held's deadly chipping stayed on and he was lying two feet from the cup when Stein sank a five-footer and halved it for a birdie. They took fours. The match turned three up for Held.

After Stein had failed with a 12-foot tricky putt at the tenth, Held had a chance to win the hole from eight feet but missed the putt. They halved it with fours.

Stein Starts a Drive.

The Missourian pulled his tee shot into a shallow trap and was left with a halving putt of ten feet at the eleventh, a one-shot

BILL TILDEN TO OPPOSE HENNESSEY IN CLAY COURT FINAL, TODAY

CHAMPION IN EASY VICTORY OVER WILLIAMS

Big Bill Runs Through 18 Games Without Losing One—Paired With Weiner in Doubles Final.

DETROIT, Mich., July 23.—William T. Tilden, Philadelphia, will meet John Hennessey, Indianapolis, in the singles finals of the national clay court tennis tournament here tomorrow. The two men also will meet in the doubles finals, Tilden having as his partner A. L. (Sandy) Wiener, Philadelphia, while Hennessey is paired with Lucien Williams, Chicago, former intercollegiate champion.

Hennessey and Williams encountered unexpected opposition from Wallace F. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin in the third set of the one doubles semi-final match played today. The third set went to an 18-16 score.

Loses Service in 17th Game.

Hennessey, former Notre Dame player and Williams, former Harvard star, had an easy time winning the first two sets. Then the Griffin-Johnston team found itself and neither team broke through the opposition service until the seventeenth game, when Griffin lost his service. With his partner, he immediately retaliated by taking Williams' service.

Williams lost his service again on the twenty-second game, a long deuce affair in which he and Hennessey twice had the score at match point. After restoring the balance of games, Hennessey and William went along until the twenty-third game when they broke through Johnston's service for the first time and ended the match in the next game with Hennessey stroking hard from the service line.

Tilden Wins Easily.

Tilden and Hennessey worked their way into the singles finals without undue exertion. Tilden defeated Williams in three love sets while Hennessey won in one-sided fashion from Johnston.

Summary:

Semi-finals singles:

John Hennessey, Indianapolis, defeated Wallace F. Johnston, Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

William T. Tilden II, Philadelphia, defeated Lucien Williams, Chicago, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0.

Semi-finals, doubles:

Hennessey and Williams defeated Johnston and Griffin, 6-4, 6-1, 18-16.

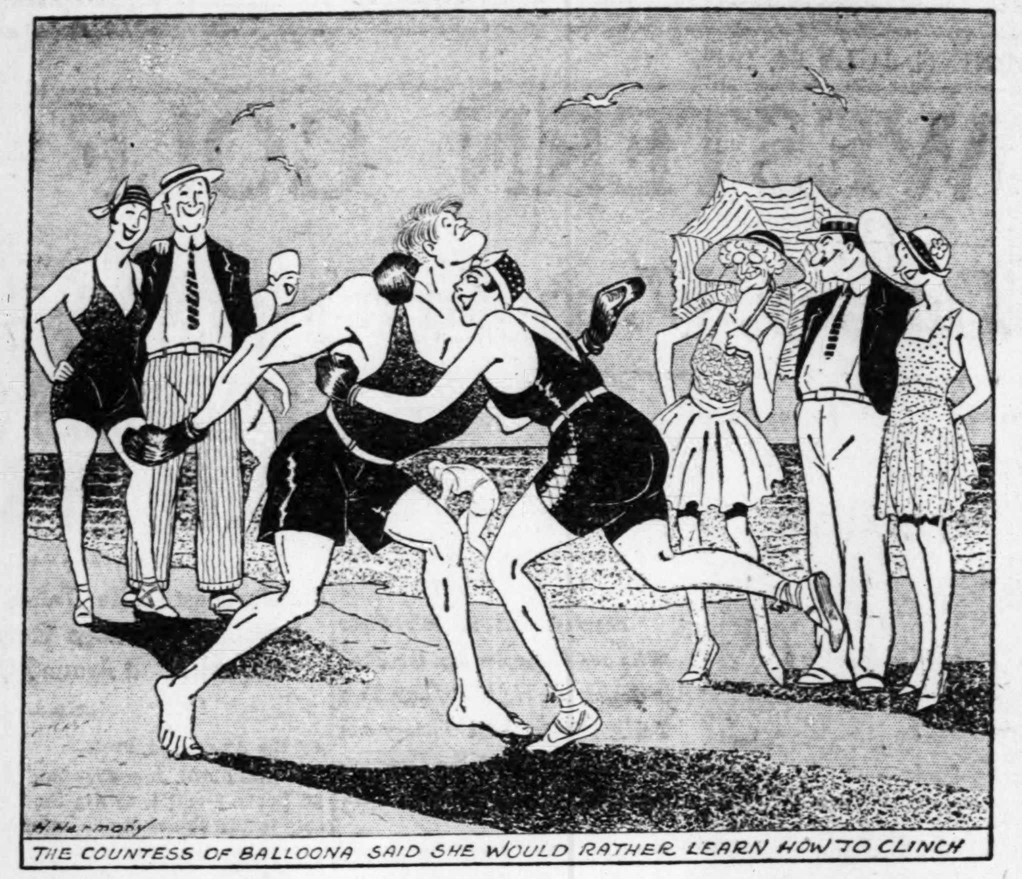
Frisbie Teaches the Countess How to Box

Wherein Lies the Danger of Becoming a Husband

No. 16—A Fighter's Letters to His Manager



THE COUNTESS OF BALLOONA SAID SHE WOULD RATHER LEARN HOW TO CLINCH

By Walter Davenport.

DEAR PATSY: I guess I ought to be thinking of my big fight for charity with Big Anthony up here at Belgravia Beach and my exhibition fight with Gene Tunney, which Mrs. Blish is pulling off up here to entertain her guests with but this Countess of Balloona, Portugal, I was telling you about won't let me.

As far as I can see she is a very ambitious woman who is older than me and probably sees I am going to be the next heavyweight champion and would like to be his wife. She is the kind of a woman who would stop at practically nothing as they say.

She is a big dame also about six feet two and while she won't weigh as much as me she could not make a hundred and eighty unless she cut off a leg. She has a lot of jack also which her family made in the cloak and suit business in Portugal which shows she is no dumb bell and while she has not said a thing yet still in all it 's very noticeable the way she is hanging around me that she figures she could do a lot worse. Ha! Ha!

A Dangerous Woman.

AS I am saying it everybody is noticing us and yesterday Miss Peggy Alpses brother called the hurdling half wit as he is a big college football player came to me and said,

"Listen Frisbie it is not any business of mine but if you do not watch your step you are going to be all married up to the Countess of Balloona because she is a lady who when she makes up her mind to tag somebody she smacks them so they can't deny it, see."

"O, I am not thinking of getting married as I am a very young fellow who is sure to be champion and will be too busy to think of any such thing as you mention," I said.

"Well," he said, "I am only telling you and also would like to say that if a man is going to marry a heiress it is a good thing to marry a big strong one like the Countess of Balloona."

"How is that," I said.

"Well when a poor fellow marries an heiress," he said, "he is got to make up his mind it is liable not to last long and that she is apt to go into court saying you acted very brutal towards her but if the Countess of Balloona went into court saying anybody got rough with her the court would look her over and tell her to go home and bury her clothes or something because one look at her and the jury would know that not even a promising heavyweight fighter like you could sock her on the chin or even give her a good calling out without her countering him with both hands and a lot of tough language. Nobody can get sorry for as much woman as she is no matter if she is a countess or not, see."

Frisbie Becomes an Instructor.

SO I said to myself that while Miss Alpses brother might be one of those boys who was born punch drunk to talk like that still in all I would watch the Countess of Balloona and sure enough she come at me right after lunch on the beach with old Mrs. Blish and all standing there.

"O, Mr. Frisbie," she said, "I want to learn how to box so won't you give me lessons?"

"Listen, Countess," I said, "you will have to excuse me if you do not mind, because I am what the fight experts call a killer and the minute I see somebody in front of me with their hands up I forget who it is and knock them for a bad accident and suppose I was to slap you in the nose or slam you on the chin. It would make me feel pretty bad."

Before she could say a word old Mrs. Blish who does not care what happens to her guests like Countess Balloona so that they are not annoyed said:

EVENTS RECITED IN PREVIOUS LETTERS

HARVEY (K. O.) FRISBIE, 18-year-old chauffeur, joins the boxing stable of Patsy O'Brien, a hard-boiled fight manager. Frisbie craves action with a head-liner but after watching Harvey polish off against several tough second-raters, O'Brien secures the boy a summer job as life saver at ultra fashionable Belgravia Beach. Mrs. Blish, who owns half of the beach, is crazy about fighters and wants one to add tone to her swimming domain. Mrs. O. N. T. Sledge, Mrs. Blish's sister, is also pug-struck, but owing to a terrific squabble with her sister has ended diplomatic relations with the Blishes, taken over the other half of the beach as her territory, and engaged Angry Anthony, another canvas kisser, for a life saver. Shortly after Harvey's arrival, he agrees to enter a framed fight agreement with Angry Anthony, whereby two battles are to be fixed to stimulate betting on the third.

"Frisbie do what the Countess is asking you and stop annoying my guests by refusing to give her boxing lessons."

"Suppose something happens to the Countess?" I said.

"Suppose it does," said Mrs. Blish. "It will not surprise anybody."

Countess Uses a Headlock.

SO I said all right and told the Countess the first thing to learn was how to hold up your hands but she said she would rather learn how to clinch and I thought Miss Alpses brother, the hurdling half wit, would die.

"I told you so," he hollered. And with that the Countess got a headlock on me.

Even old Mrs. Blish was laughing at the Countess by this time because I do not know much about rassling but am a boxer and was supposed to teach her how to box.

"You will have to let go of me if you want to learn how to box," I said because the Countess is a big girl as I said and is not what you would call an easy thing to have hanging around your ears. If she had been a man I would have crashed her but she is not quite.

After while she let go and I had to stall saying I had a bad headache so I would not have to give her any more lessons for the day. She is a very fine woman but I do not know what to make of her as she told me that she knew she clinched all wrong and wanted me to show her how the next lesson. I hope she catches something bad. To me she is a women a husband would get pretty tired of before the church was out of sight with all her dough.

The big newspaper I am writing for wants more stuff from me to print and I have decided to write a warning to the public that they ought to stop laughing at boxers and fighters not that anybody ever laughs at me but at the young fellows who will never amount to much. The public sometimes forgets themselves and laughs at fighters who are fine sports and doing their best but not in danger of becoming champions. It ought to be stopped. Yours truly,

K. O. FRISBIE.

The Ring and Marriage.

DEAR FRISBIE: Try to get through the summer without marrying the Countess of Balloona or anybody else although somehow I can't shake off the feeling I got that something is about to happen to you that won't do anybody concerned much good.

Anyway don't get married until after your fights with Big Anthony and Gene Tunney. Somehow I feel that after those fights you won't be thinking of much except who did whatever it is that is about to happen to you if you understand what I am trying to get at.

You better take my advice and not get married at all because it is my experience that a fighter begins to lose the decision the minute he steps up to the minister.

If the bride is a scrapper the husband gets so much fighting at home that he gets all tired out and can't do justice to himself in the ring and if she ain't a battler he gets so used to peace that he gets to like it and looks for it everywhere, including the ring, and both ways it is fatal to a boy who wants to get anywhere in the fight game.

That is all except I would go easy on that article you are thinking of writing about laughing at prize fighters. My advice would be to say nothing about it because think where you would be if the public began to take boxing seriously like they take real estate or groceries and demand that they get their money's worth. As I say, maybe you better stop writing for the papers before you break the rule, which is not to say anything worth reading.

Your manager,
PATSY O'BRIEN.

Cardinals Meet Phils in Annual Benefit Game

For the tenth time in the history of the 13 annual Tuberculosis day celebrations, the Cardinals, who oppose the Phillies, will make their appearance as one of the principals in the day's entertainment at Sportsman's Park Thursday.

The first Tuberculosis carnival, in 1914, saw two amateur teams, the St. Louis and Chicago Advertising clubs in action. The next year's game was played by the Browns and Washington. The eight following were between the Cards and visiting teams, the Boston Braves participating four times, the Giants three times, and the Phillies once. The next year the Browns played Boston. Last year the Cards appeared against the Brooklyn Robins.

Athletic events to be run off before the game include the annual Junior Marathon, which for ten years has been a leading attraction, and two new races, the women's open championship and a playgrounds championship race for girls. Every playground in the city will send its champion of elimination races to compete. This race takes the place of the girls shuttle relay of former years.

Thirteen entries have been received for the women's open race, including Alice Heckel, Geraldine Krebs, Hattie Buczkowski, Irene Kitowski, Genevieve Zarzycka, Mary Zarzycka, Helen Podgorny, Louise Takowski, Juanita Fales, Annette Boomie, Mary Irene Maquire, Anne Maquire and Dee Boeckmann.

The Madison School baseball nine, champions in this year's grade school tournament, and the Laclede School team, holder of second place, will meet in a three-inning game as one of the special events. Drills, exhibition stunts and many surprise antics by Dr. Hans Lehrmann's Sherman Park Gymnasium classes will conclude the program between 1:30 o'clock and 4 o'clock, the hour set for the Cardinal game. Climaxing this part of the program will be a fencing exhibition with Dr. Lehrmann and Miss Bobbie Brewer as principals.

Dempsey-Tunney Fight Date to Be Selected Aug. 5

Chicago Appears to Have Outstanding Chance to Land Bout for World Title.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Chicago appears to have an outstanding chance to land the Tunney-Dempsey fight for the world's heavyweight championship next September, but the pulse of public opinion will determine whether widespread objections might arise over use of Soldiers' Field as a battle site.

That was the word Edward J. Kelly, president of the South Park Commission, which controls the stadium, and other Chicagoans brought back today from New York where they extended an invitation to Tex Rickard to bring the battle to Chicago.

President Kelly, although in favor of the battle, wants first to sound our public opinion before he agrees to turn over Soldiers' Field for a championship fight.

Opposition Expected.

"I don't know how some people would feel about using a public stadium for such a purpose," President Kelly said. "There is bound to be some objections to the fight. There always is in such cases, but it is a question whether those who want it outweigh those who don't.

"The offer of Rickard to come here stands just where it did, so far as I know. I did not see him myself while in New York. George F. Getz, and Michael Igoe, of Mayor Thompson's Citizens' Committee, saw Rickard, but nothing definite was done."

Rickard in New York today said he would make no announcement concerning the site until Aug. 5. Getz, a millionaire Chicagoan, and chairman of the Mayor's Citizens' Committee, was reported in dispatches from Detroit as saying that he would be the promoter or would be associated with Rickard in staging the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Soldiers' Field. This would comply with the Illinois law which requires boxing promoters to be bona-fide residents.

Getz, instead of returning to Chicago, left for Mackinac Island in connection with the annual meeting of Governors, to be held there next week. He plans to arrange a final conference with Rickard by telephone. Rickard, it is understood, will come to Chicago for a conference with Kelly and Getz, possibly within 10 days.

Rickard Says No Deal Has Been Made to Hold Bout in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 23.—After formally naming Jack Dempsey as the man who will fight Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship this fall, Tex Rickard today dickered for matches that may lead another contender to a title shot in 1928.

Selection of an opponent as well as the date and site of the champion's first title defense will be announced Aug. 5.

Rickard declared the fight would take place between Sept. 15 and 20, but where he did not know. No direct proposition has yet been made to take the match to Chicago.

He said, despite reports that the fray already had been allotted to the mid-west metropolis in the hope of achieving the first $2,000,000 "gate" in fistic history.

BON STEIN BEATS HELD, 2 AND 1, FOR WESTERN GOLF TITLE

water hole. He was weak with his putt and Stein had won his first since the get-away, taking a birdie to Held's four.

Stein's high pitch for the twelfth picked up a chunk of mud and it took a bumping course of 25 feet, stopping a foot short of the hole. His opponent was left with a seven-foot putt for a winning birdie three, which he made. Stein took four. This put Held three up again.

The St. Louis star played his first weak pitch when he stopped 25 feet short at the thirteenth. Stein sank an eight-foot putt for a birdie three. Held took four.

On the long fourteenth Stein converted his six-footer into a winning birdie four and brought Held's margin down to one up. Held took five.

Both players got remarkable drives on the up hill fifteenth but neither quite reached the green on their seconds. Stein overplayed the hole six feet with his approach while Held ran past 20 feet. Stein's second putt hung on the lip of the cup and laid his opponent a half stymie, but Held boldly grazed Stein's ball sinking for a four to become two up again.

Both Find the Traps.

On the long sixteenth Stein's tee shot reached the water and he was penalized one stroke. Held was seven feet over on his chip. Stein laid his fourth dead from just off the green and they halved the hole in par 5's.

Stein had a stance in a bunker 18 inches below the ball for his iron to the seventeenth. Held took his in a trap to the left of the green. Stein's approach went wide with a hook. Held got on much better and sank a six foot putt for a 4. Stein took 5.

Both approached above the green at the 500-yard home hole, and they ran up even to four feet. Held dropped in and out. Stein went in and stayed for a birdie that cut the St. Louis player's lead to two holes.

Coming home Stein took a 37, one under par and Held shot it in perfect figures.

3000 Follow Afternoon Play.

Sinking two marvelous putts over a long rolling green for birdies to halve the first hole of their afternoon round, Held and Stein thrilled a gallery of at least 3000 persons.

Both men started out this afternoon with 300-yard drives, but Held found soft sand. He executed a brilliant recovery over the bunker to get on in two, 30 feet from the cup. Stein followed suit, rolling past the pin about 15 feet. Both sank their putts to halve the hole in birdies and Stein still was two down.

The Missourian ripped off a beautiful drive on the second, a good 40 yards better than Stein. Bith pitched to within 15 feet of the pin. Held missed his putt by a few inches, while the gallery burst forth into spontaneous cheering as Stein putted boldly, the ball hitting the back of the cup and dropping in for his second birdie. Held took four. Stein was now only one down.

At the third Stein missed a four-foot putt for his third birdie in a row. Stein pitched 100 yards to the flag. Held pitched, taking a bad bounce and dribbling into a trap at the left of the green, but Held laid his third dead, while Stein's first rimmed the cup. The hole was halved in par fours.

Stein stuck one on the green 15 feet past the pin at the fourth while his opponent, coming up from a pulled drive, was 30 feet short of the cup. They halved the hole with par fours.

Stein Squares the Match.

Held came out of the woods at the fifth while Stein was tossing one out of the sand five feet from the cup. The Seattle player squared the match at this, the 23d hole, for the first time since the third hole of the morning round. Stein took three and Held four.

Both niblick shots at the sixth were over the green. Held missed the putt and Stein came up for the first breath of advantage since the opening hole of the match. Stein took four and Held five.

Held was a few feet inside his opponent at the seventh and laid his next dead, leaving Stein with a putt of four feet. He dropped it in to halve the hole in fours.

Held sank a ten-foot putt on the eighth while his opponent had an easy 18-inch tap. Each took three.

The Seattle man faced the 500-yard turning hole with a chance for a 32, three under par, but he spoiled it when he sliced to the dense rough with a row of trees to climb. He pitched past the green. His opponent failed to take advantage of the opportunity, pulling his iron into a trap 100 feet to the left of the green. After their pitch and runs, Stein had a four-foot putt left and his oppenent was two feet farther on. The match was squared when Held went down and Stein rolled past. Held took five and Stein six.

The finalists parted company at the tenth tee, Stein pulling into the wood and Held slicing over into the ninth fairway. The Seattle player took two to get out. He laid the next one four feet from the cup. Held reached the near edge with his recovery and laid his putt two feet past the pin. The hole was his in four to five.

Neither got anywhere near the hole off the eleventh tee. The Missourian popped up his head and did not cover more than half the distance to the cup. His opponent laid his 18 inches off and won the hole with a par 3. This made the match all even again.

Both pushed long ones to the edge of the rough on the 12th. Held chipped to within ten feet of the pin and was inside Stein by 15 feet. They halved the hole in par four.

Held was inside at 15 feet in the exchange of niblicks at the thirteenth. Stein electrified the crowd with a 30-foot curling putt which dropped in. His opponent missed his by an inch and Stein took the lead in the match one up. Stein took three and Held four.

Stein hooked a wicked brassie at the long fourteenth and overpitched by 25 feet, with Held coming with his third. He laid the next eight inches off the cup. Stein came up to the same distance to halve the hole in par five.

Both negotiated fine shots to get to the green at the fifteenth hole, Stein stopping 60 feet away from the pin and his opponent 15 feet. Stein rolled his putt up to within four inches of the cup. Held went by and they halved the hole in fours.

Held's hook, which had been absent since early on the first nine of the match, abruptly cropped up at this crucial stage, the sixteenth hole. His tee shot went into a bad lie and he had to play off a tree root and underbranches. His out was to the fairway, however, across the lake on the hole side and he followed with a pitch eight feet past the cup. It was a fine recovery to this par five hole. Stein dormied his match with a birdie which he got from four feet. Stein took four and Held five.

With safety golf only necessary to win his match, Stein skied his tee shot, not going more than 175 yards. He got home with his third 10 feet past the hole. Held's iron was close and he ran the next three feet short, missing a chance by not getting up and of blocking his opponent out of the possibility to halve.

Here one of the first principles of match golf was emphasized. By not getting up, Held was himself eventually stymied out of the hole, for Stein ran past the cup to a lay three-quarter stymie.

Held tried to slide past the obstructing ball, but struck it almost dead center and the match was over, 2 and 1.

Loft of Club Face and Spin Make Ball Rise; No Lifting Stroke Needed, Jones Points Out

Trouble Experienced by Golfers Is Due in Most Cases to Improper Use of Sticks—Champion Praises Bill Mehlhorn's Iron Play.

By Robert T. Jones Jr.,
British Open Golf Champion.

AN amazing number of golfers, including many who have played for several years, have difficulty in getting the ball up in the air. Indeed, many find it impossible for that reason to use a wood club in the fairway. It seems to them that no matter how hard they try to pick the ball up they just can't manage it.

JONES.

Now the trouble, strangely enough, is simply that they do try to lift the ball into the air. Time and again I have seen a person, confronted by a close lying ball, try to get under it so he could hit it upward. The invariable result has been a complete "top" or an unimposing roller down the fairway.

These futile attempts are unquestionably due to a total failure to understand what makes the ball rise. Of course, if a tee is used, and the lifting stroke is exact enough, the ball will go into the air, but even then it goes in a lobbing curve without power or control.

Mehlhorn's Iron Play.

A GOLF ball rises into the air from a close lie not because the direction of the blow is upward, but because of the spin imparted by the club face. In every stroke except the full drive from a tee the ball is struck downward, and if dependence were put in the direction of the blow, every iron shot hit by an expert would bury the ball in the ground. I have watched Bill Mehlhorn hit iron shots when he was really letting out—Bill can smash them—and when he ripped through the ball into the turf he would dig up a divot about the size of a seven and a half hat, and I could almost feel the ground tremble. Golf balls do not hop along the ground when Bill hits them.

That reminds me of an amusing and true story of an incident of the Southern open at Atlanta last March. A spectator, after watching one of the more prominent contestant for a few holes, was heard to remark:

"I don't see how that fellow hits a ball so far when he digs up all that ground behind it. I tried it and I couldn't knock one any distance."

That just goes to show what queer ideas one may get in this golf game.

Straight Hit for Drive.

I do not advocate hitting downward upon the ball in driving, for the spin so imparted materially decreases the range of the shot. Archie Compston, big and powerful and even now a tremendous driver, could get prodigious length, I have no doubt, if he would only hit the ball in the back. His towering drives now fly very far but roll very little, because he knocks them all down.

But the spin imparted by the descending blow is invaluable in every shot after the drive. It is common knowledge that the "spit-ball" of a first-class baseball pitcher behaves in such crazy fashion because it is not spinning. In like manner, it is the spin of a golf ball which holds it to its course. A ball played from a clover lie is extremely wobbly in the air because the clover leaves prevent a clean, dry contact with the ball and it goes up with practically no spin.

The Time to Hit Downward.

WHEN I am confronted by a close lie from which I must use a brassie to get distance there are two things I feel I must do, hit hard and hit downward; of course, not as much of the latter as I should do with a lofted iron club; and probably I should not take a divot, but I should at least take up the grass for a few inches in front of the ball. I know always that, whether or not the loft of the club is sufficient to gain the necessary height, if I hit hard, the speed of the ball together with the spin imparted by the downward stroke will force the ball upward. The ball simply has to rise.

Dempsey Certain to Be Favorite Against Tunney

punching that weakened Sharkey and diminished the power of his blows, for it is certain that Dempsey brushed into Sharkey's best jolts as if the sting of them had gone.

Champion Idle for a Year.

Dempsey will have an increased chance against Tunney, if the fight goes fifteen rounds, for it now is certain that he has sound physical condition. His training for Sharkey, the experience of that hard fight and the second conditioning process through which he must go for Tunney, should bring him back still further toward his early effectiveness.

Tunney, too, will have been idle for a year and there may be a question about his marksmanship, after his long layoff. And so, the arguments pro and con may be urged again without conviction on either side. But that the fight will carry a greater danger for Tunney and that Dempsey will be a different Dempsey there cannot be the slightest doubt.

While the battle site has yet to be announced, half of the persons who attended the last fight, including the newspaper men, hope the show will not be held in a baseball park. Again at the Sharkey-Dempsey fight, it was demonstrated that a ball park is one of the worst places available in which to hold boxing contests. Aside from the extreme front rows on the diamond, the main floor patrons, that is the $27.50 ticket holders, were sadly gypped. About one-half of the entire assemblage present was too distant to see what was going on at all; and one-half of the remainder caught only fleeting glimpses of the fighters. Owing to the gradual backward drop in the ringside seats, as the rows fell away toward the grandstand, the ring floor had to be elevated to six feet from the ground. Press observers labored under a real handicap if the fighters were on the opposite side of the ring.

Ten Rounds Too Short.

Yet, if the fight is to go fifteen runds, it will have to be held in a New York baseball park, when Tunney meets Dempsey. Dempsey should not fight Tunney ten rounds. It is too short. On the other hand the patrons will suffer if a fifteen-round battle is held in New York.

What's the answer?

At this time it is considered probable. Soldiers Field, Chicago, will see the contest, because of the chance to run up an enormous gate and because the commissioners have not yet officially agreed to lift the low maximum ticket price at present prevailing here, $27.50. Commissioner Brower is the only member of the State Athletic body who thinks no maximum should be established. On the other hand, some of the $27.50 top price seats at Yankee field were worth exactly $0.00 to the ticket-holders. Any higher price would be murder or at least mayhem, to the public pocketbook.

The best way seems to be to fix no price and let the public exercise its option of refusing to pay.

Sisler Makes Himself Heard.

"Mr. Chairman," said George Sisler.

"Mr. Sisler," came back Chairman Bucky Harris, pal of Coolidge, with the ready wit which has made his name a household word.

"Mr. Chairman," repeated Mr. Sisler, "I want to ask just one question."

There was a silence, surcharged with anticipation.

"Will the Senator yield?" asked Mr. Sisler.

"Senator Thurston has the floor," was the reply. "He will not yield. Will you, Holly?"

"Go climb a tree," replied Senator Thurston.

"Then I ask leave to read this into the record," said Mr. Sisler. And he forthwith whacked one into the pavilion, tying the score.

There were other whacks that inning and another run and the Brownies were ahead. Two more in the next inning, but the Senator did not yield until it was the Browns' turn to bat in the sevents. He wasn't batted out. He just didn't come back from the cloakroom after the recess. Another more eloquent than he, one Burke, and still another named Braxton, finished the filibuster and put the screws down hard on the Browns.

Just a Little Myth.

But the Thurston myth was smashed and there was joy in St. Louis. Now if someone could only smash this myth about the Browns' pitchers, we might get somewhere.

Oh yes, the Browns lost but that isn't the point. Yes, it was the first game of the series they have dropped, and they beat the Senators three times prior to yesterday, but that isn't the point. They beat Thurston—he's not a magician anymore. That's the story.

ZACHARY DUE FOR WASHINGTON IN GAME TODAY

TOM ZACHARY, who went back to Washington when the Browns got Alvin Crowder, will pitch for the Senators today. Sam Jones is due for the Browns, with Gaston in readiness and Falk in the bull pen.

Stewart got in hot water right off the bat in the first inning. With one out, he passed Harris on four pitched balls. After Speaker had grounded out, Judge pushed a single to right and Goslin scored both men with another single to right.

Bennett drew a walk in the Brown's half of the first after O'Rourke had lifted to Speaker but Sisler failed to produce and Bennett went out stealing.

The first hit off Thurston was made by Adams in the second. It was a double off the right field wall with two out and there was no scoring. Goslin, just prior to this, had robbed Harry Rice of a nicely placed single in left. The Goose, after a long sprint, left the ground flattened out like a goose in flight and came up with the ball in his contestant for a few holes, was heard to remark:

"I don't see how that fellow hits a ball so far when he digs up all that ground behind it. I tried it and I couldn't knock one any distance."

That just goes to show what queer ideas one may get in this golf game.

Straight Hit for Drive.

I do not advocate hitting downward upon the ball in driving, for the spin so imparted materially decreases the range of the shot. Archie Compston, big and powerful and even now a tremendous driver, could get prodigious length, I have no doubt, if he would only hit the ball in the back. His towering drives now fly very far but roll very little, because he knocks them all down.

But the spin imparted by the descending blow is invaluable in every shot after the drive. It is common knowledge that the "spitball" of a first-class baseball pitcher behaves in such crazy fashion because it is not spinning. In like manner, it is the spin of a golf ball which holds it to its course. A ball played from a clover lie is extremely wobbly in the air because the clover leaves prevent a clean, dry contact with the ball and it goes up with practically no spin.

The Time to Hit Downward.

WHEN I am confronted by a close lie from which I must use a brassie to get distance, there are two things I feel I must do, hit hard and hit downward; of course, not as much of the latter as I should do with a lofted iron club; and probably I should not take a divot, but I should at least take up the grass for a few inches in front of the ball. I know always that, whether or not the loft of the club is sufficient to gain the necessary height, if I hit hard, the speed of the ball together with the spin imparted by the downward stroke will force the ball upward. The ball simply has to rise.

the entire assemblage present was too distant to see what was going on at all; and one-half of the remainder caught only fleeting glimpses of the fighters. Owing to the gradual backward drop in the ringside seats, as the rows fell away toward the grandstand, the ring floor had to be elevated to six feet from the ground. Press observers labored under a real handicap if the fighters were on the opposite side of the ring.

Ten Rounds Too Short.

Yet, if the fight is to go fifteen rounds, it will have to be held in a New York baseball park, when Tunney meets Dempsey. Dempsey should not fight Tunney ten rounds. It is too short. On the other hand the patrons will suffer if a fifteen-round battle is held in New York.

What's the answer?

At this time it is considered probable. Soldiers Field, Chicago, will see the contest, because of the chance to run up an enormous gate and because the commissioners have not yet officially agreed to lift the low maximum ticket price at present prevailing here, $27.50. Commissioner Brower is the only member of the State Athletic body who thinks no maximum should be established. On the other hand, some of the $27.50 top price seats at Yankee field were worth exactly $0.00 to the ticket-holders. Any higher price would be murder or at least mayhem, to the public pocketbook.

The best way seems to be to fix no price and let the public exercise its option of refusing to pay.

of the match, abruptly cropped up at this crucial stage, the sixteenth hole. His tee shot went into a bad lie and he had to play off a tree root and underbranches. His out was to the fairway, however, across the lake on the hole side and he followed with a pitch eight feet past the cup. It was a fine recovery to this par five hole. Stein dormied his match with a birdie which he got from four feet. Stein took four and Held five.

With safety golf only necessary to win his match, Stein skied his tee shot, not going more than 175 yards. He got home with his third 10 feet past the hole. Held's iron was close and he ran the next three feet short, missing a chance by not getting up and of blocking his opponent out of the possibility to halve.

Here one of the first principles of match golf was emphasized. By not getting up, Held was himself eventually stymied out of the hole, for Stein ran past the cup to a lay three-quarter stymie.

Held tried to slide past the obstructing ball, but struck it almost dead center and the match was

Sisler Makes Himself Heard.

"Mr. Chairman," said George Sisler.

"Mr. Sisler," came back Chairman Bucky Harris, pal of Coolidge, with the ready wit which has made his name a household word.

"Mr. Chairman," repeated Mr. Sisler, "I want to ask just one question."

There was a silence, surcharged with anticipation.

He wasn't batted out. He jus' didn't come back from the cloakroom after the recess. Just a Little Myth.

But the Thurston myth was smashed and there was joy in St. Louis. Now if someone could only smash this myth about the Browns' pitchers, we might get somewhere.

Oh yes, the Browns lost but that isn't the point. Yes, it was the first game of the series they have dropped, and they beat the Senators three times prior to yesterday, but that isn't the point. They beat Thurston—he's not a magician anymore. That's the story.

Bennett drew a walk in the Brown's half of the first after O'Rourke had lifted to Speaker but Sisler failed to produce and Bennett went out stealing.

The first hit off Thurston was made by Adams in the second. It was a double off the right field wall with two out and there was no scoring. Goslin, just prior to this, had robbed Harry Rice of a nicely placed single in left. The Goose, after a long sprint, left the ground flattened out like a goose in flight and came up with the ball in his mitt after an extensive skin over the turf.

Speaker Gets Going.

In the third, Stewart again had trouble and Sam Rice led off with a whistler over first base that went for two bases. He went to third on Harris' sacrifice fly and counted on Speaker's single to left. Judge flied out and Goslin singled but the two runners were stranded when Ruel was tossed out, Sisler to Stewart.

The Browns gave a convincing simulation of coming to life with two gone in the third. O'Rourke, Bennett and Sisler singled in succession, O'Rourke scoring on the last punch, but Williams fouled to Ruel for the third out.

The supposedly weak-kneed Speaker did pretty well for an old fellow when he pushed a homer into the right center pavilion for the only hit and score of the Senators' fifth.

Speaker Keeps It Up.

Shortstop Reeves donated a run to the Browns in the fourth. Harry Rice had singled to start the session but Adams and O'Neill went out on rollers. Gerber pushed another roller to Reeves and the youngster threw past Judge, Rice scoring from second. Stewart wrote finis with a fly to Sam Rice.

Rigney singled to open the visitor's fourth, advanced on an infield out and a passed ball and scored on Thurston's single to center. O'Rourke made a sparkling stop of Sam Rice's drive and ended the inning with a neat double play to Gerber and Sisler.

And that four-base poke of Sisler's in the Browns' half after O'Rourke had coaxed a pass and Bennett had singled ought to go a long way toward dispelling the Sisler myth. That didn't mean the Howleys were through with Thurston. Williams rolled to Judge but Harry Rice smashed a vicious single to center and Adams crashed his second double to right and put the Browns in the lead. O'Neill got the fifth safety of the inning but Gerber hit into a double play.

Ruel got a single in the sixth when Williams muffed his pop in left after a long run. Rigney flied to Rice, Reeves was called out on strikes and Ruel went out stealing.

Speaker Speaks Again.

Williams finally broke into the hit column in the sixth. Stewart started with a single to center and advanced on O'Rourke's sacrifice. Bennett fouled to Ruel but Sisler scored him with his third straight hit, a double to right. Then came Williams' safety, a single, and Sisler scored. Rice grounded to Harris for the third out.

Burke went in to pitch for Washington in the seventh and Adams greeted him with a clean single. O'Neill laid down a sacrifice and Gerber grounded out, sending Adams to third. Stewart drew a walk but O'Rourke flied to Sam Rice for the last out, and no runs scored.

Another vote for Tris Speaker in the Altenheim popularity contest—his triple to the flagpole in the eighth. He scored when Goslin singled to center.

Ruel also singled and after Rigney had flied out, Reevese tied the score with a double to left which counted Goslin and Ruel. And that was when Ernie Wingard left the bull pen and Stewart followed Thurston to the Valhalla of batted-out hurlers. Two bad bulls put the Senators ahead here. Adams booted a roller by McNeily, who was swinging for Burke, and Wingard uncorked a pre-war wild pitch, Reeves scoring, but McNeely was out trying for third.

Braxton was the Washington hurler in the eighth. Bennett fouled to Berger, the catcher, and Sisler flied to Speaker and Williams also pushed up a foul to Berger.

Speaker got his fourth hit in five times at bat, in the ninth. It was a single, but he died on base.

ZACHARY DUE FOR WASHINGTON IN GAME TODAY

TOM ZACHARY, who went back to Washington when the Browns got Alvin Crowder, will pitch for the Senators today. Sam Jones is due for the Browns, with Gaston in readiness and Falk in the bull pen.

This Must Be Old Man Trophy, Himself

Claude Butlin, Mexican Davis Cup tennis player and some of the cups and medals he has won in a dozen sports.

Davis Cup Player at 50, Has 500 Prizes in a Dozen Sports; Held a Net Title for 28 Years

Claude Butlin, Who Will Represent Mexico in Play Here This Week Against Japanese, Says He Wouldn't Be Happy or Healthy Without His Games.

Age will be served—when it has the stuff.

Witness the performance of the elderly William Harrison Dempsey against a youth known as Jack Sharkey in a roped arena the other evening.

Then there is Claude M. Butlin.

It is a little difficult to know just where to begin to tell about Claude Butlin, because there are so many places one might begin, and a little difficult to choose just what to tell about him, because there are quite a few interesting things to tell.

Perhaps as good a way as any to make a start is to record that he is a gentleman who in the course of an athletic career of 38 years has accumulated something like half a thousand trophies in more than a dozen different branches of sports, and at the age of 50 is still going strong.

A Davis Cup Player.

If there should be any doubt in the latter regard, it can be stated that he is in St. Louis right now as a first string member of the Mexican Davis cup team which is to meet the Japanese Davis cup players at Triple A Club next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Also, that a little more than three months ago he won the open golf championship of Mexico, against a field of 100 contenders, defeating in the finals, 3 and 2, Dr. James Vance of El Paso, who six times has been southwestern champion of the United States. Those knowing golf might be interested in old Claude's scores for the 36 holes of the final. They were 72-71, over a course 6639 yards long.

Also that he owns a victory, only one year old, over Teiza Toba, Japanese Davis cup player, whom he defeated in a 1926 Davis cup match in Mexico City.

A Star at Many Games.

Also that he won the United States Veterans' singles tennis championship in 1925, and was a member of the champion doubles team in the United States veterans' tournament of 1926.

Also that since he was 30 years old—an age at which both professional and amateur athletes are commonly supposed to be slowing up, if not actually done—Butlin has won something like 75 championship cups in tennis and golf alone, some more at jai alai, and a few scattering ones at other things. There is more, but perhaps this will be enough on which to rest the claim that Kid Butlin is still a pretty good boy, athletically speaking.

Butin is a transplanted Englishman who, however, has not seen a great deal of England, except when he went over there occasionally to make a few additions to his collection of athletic trophies. He was born in Ceylon and his home was there until he was 13 years of age, when he went to Mexico and where he has resided since a matter of 37 years.

From a Family of Athletes.

He attributes and unusually strong physique to inheritance and his early life. His father and mother were both athletes, the former being a runner and tennis player, and the latter the champion woman tennis player of Ceylon. His father also was a hunter of big game of the elephant and tiger varieties, and young Butlin accompanied him on many of his hunting expeditions. He seriously believes tramping through the jungles helped to give him the foundation of a strong constitution.

"I also got quite a lot of exercise climbing," he added as a little joke, "because I was too young to carry a gun, so when game was sighted my role was to shinny up a tree and stay there until the shooting was over, so my father wouldn't need to worry about me."

Butlin takes his athletic prowess rather lightly.

"It's a gift," he says, "plus a good constitution. I do not give myself any particular credit for anything I have done in athletics because every game I ever played has seemed to come natural to me, and to be easy for me."

Jolly Good at Cricket.

In his younger days Butlin excelled as a long jumper, high jumper, pole vaulter, bicycle racer, 100-yard and 220-yard sprinter, 120-yard hurdler, and soccer football and cricket player. For several years he was center forward on an international championship soccer team; and as for cricket, well he holds a batting record of 175 not out, and a bowling record of nine wickets for four runs, six wickets for one run and 13 wickets for 20 runs; which, as any cricket fan will tell you, is jolly good cricket.

And if you want to talk about long distance championship records, Butlin was the undisputed tennis singles champion of Mexico for 28 consecutive years until he retired a few years ago from active singles play, at the request of members of his family. He plays singles occasionally, however, and as previously noted, won a Davis cup singles mach last year. He will play singles in the matches against Japan here if called on to do so.

"Sport for Happiness."

"Speaking for myself, I wouldn't be happy, and I doubt if I would be as healthy as I am, if I did not play games. It is somewhat of an individual proposition, but I do not believe it is necessary for the average man to give up athletics when he aproaches middle age, if he takes proper care of himself. I think the greatest amount of harm arises from men who have been laying off of athletics for a year or more takng them up again too strenuously, instead of going about it gradually."

Butlin is exceedingly careful of his diet. He has never smoked because, he said, he never has cared to. But—

"If we were in Mexico or England," he remarked, "we would have a bit of Scotch together."

Pirates Defeat Braves and Lead League Again

Pittsburg Takes Second Game in Sixth, 4 to 3, After Dropping Opener, 6 to 2.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 23.—The Pittsburg Pirates, who have been bounding in and out of the National League lead like a tennis ball on a busy court, today lost and regained first place in a double-header divided with the Braves. Boston won the opener 6 to 2, but lost the nightcap 4 to 3 when rain intervened at the start of the seventh inning.

The Braves took the jump early in the first contest when they scored three in the initial inning. Three more were hung up in the seventh, two of them when High knocked out a homer with one on base.

"Pie" Traynor, Pirate third sacker, in whose honor fans braved a damp day, singled twice in the first encounter, but failed to register in the later one. His team-mate, Grantham, hit three out of three in the second game, while Urban, new acquisition of the Boston club, got 2 hits in 3 chances.

Important if True.

"Three Per Cent Beer Not Intoxicating, Jury Says."

WHEN twelve good men and true
Declare that home-made brew,
Of 3 per cent is not intoxicating;
They do not know their malt,
And their judgment is fault.
In the pleasant and peculiar art of skating.

In acquiring a bun
It all depends upon
The amount of beer that down your throat has trickled.
If you take but one or two
Of this justly-famous brew
On 3 per cent you never will get pickled.

To the tadpole with a tail
The minnow is a whale,
But, a thimbleful will never make a jigger.
So be temperate when you drink,
Or, you'll go upon the blink
If you monkey with the alcoholic figure.

"Convicts Used to Help Farmers."

That's what we call practical farm relief.

Of course you can't expect a city hick to become an expert farmer right on the jump. Give him plenty of time that's all.

Gilbert and Sullivan are both dead but the old Mikado is stepping around as lively as ever.

TOO TRUE.

The man on the sand box says the club that beats out the Yankees in the American League will have to start bearing down on the gas pretty soon or it won't be done.

Last year the Indians gave the Yankees a little scare as was their wont in the good old Colony days, but they are no longer hostile.

The man on the sand box says every time he goes to a picnic he gets sore at Noah for allowing the male and female chigger to get aboard the ark.

The Giants have released Joe Bush and signed Les Mann. Youth will be served.

Let's see, we don't believe the Cardinals have had Joe Bush yet, have they? Why not?

Les Mann is a fairly well seasoned major leaguer. Les has 14 seasons under his belt.

VACATION STUFF.

I GOT a beautiful coat of tan
That reached from head to heel;
But thought I slept on a frying pan
When the skin began to peel.

My back is blistered and all aflame,
And shrinks from the touch of clothes;
And the guy who slaps me upon the same
Will get a punch in the nose.

Two Boxers Are Suspended by Missouri Body

Beard Set Down for 60 Days and Elliott for 30, Harrison Announces.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 23.—The Missouri Athletic Commission has indefinitely suspended Frankie Fay, Kansas City, Mo., manager of Al Beard, a boxer of that city, for having deceived the M. M. Eberts Post No. 1 American Legion at Little Rock, Ark., June 30, with reference to the past record and condition of Beard, it was announced today by Ben J. Harrison, secretary.

Beard also was suspended 60 days for not being in condition for the fight.

Yankee Elliott, Leavenworth, Kan., was suspended 30 days for fouling his opponent in an exhibition July 14 in Kansas City, Kan. The suspensions were made pursuant to working agreements with the Kansas and Arkansas commissions.

Two new boxing charters were granted today by the Missouri Board, one to Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion Sedalia, and the other to Kansas City Aerie No. 47, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

TWO CARDINAL CRIPPLES WILL BE BACK SOON

Southworth and Hafey Recovering From Injuries—Alexander to Face Reds in Game Today.

By W. J. McGoogan,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Well satisfied with their invasion of the East, the Cardinals departed tonight for Cincinnati, where they meet the Reds in a four-game series beginning tomorrow, after which they return home to meet the Phillies, Wednesday.

The final contest with the Giants was postponed today on account of rain.

Against Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn the Cardinals won 13 games and lost but five. The champions took three out of four from Boston; four out of five from the Phillies, three out of five from the Robins and three out of four from the Giants.

These victories give the team a record of 13 won and 11 lost since leaving St. Louis, a good figure, when it is considered that the champions dropped six in a row immediately after leaving their home lot, losing three to Chicago and three to Pittsburg. Should the Cardinals do no better than gain an even break with Cincinnati, they will return home in an excellent position in the race for the pennant.

Schedule Favors Cards.

The players feel that the schedule is greatly in their favor, for more than half of the remaining games will be played at Sportsman's Park and O'Farrell's men have been hard to beat there all season.

They feel also that the team should go better from now on because Hafey and Southworth, crippled stars, will be back in the game soon. Southworth probably will be ready to play within a few days, while Hafey expects to be back in left field within another week or 10 days.

Manager O'Farrell's arm is improving and it may be that he will be ready to get into harness shortly. In the meantime, however, Schulte and Snyder have been able to carry on the catching duties satisfactorily.

There is still another injured star on the club, Tommy Thevenow, but he is not expected to be able to play until very late in the season, if he returns to the game at all this year.

Schuble Doing His Bit.

His place is being capably filled by Heine Schuble, the 19-year-old youngster, whose work has been the pleasant surprise of the trip. For it was whe nHeine joined the team that the Cardinals began to win and they have kept it up.

Schuble is inexperienced, of course. He makes mistakes that Thevenow would not make, but in general his play in the field has been good and he has shown that he can hit fairly well. The players say that Schuble has made, or rather remade, the ball team.

The youngster has the two great natural requisites which a shortstop must have and with which he must be endowed for they cannot be acquired. Those two are a strong throwing arm and speed of foot. He has displayed real courage on every occasion he has been called upon.

Alex Will Face Reds.

With the return of Hafey and Southworth to the line up and assuming that Schuble will continue playing at his present speed, there is every reason to hope, at least, that the Cardinals will repeat their 1926 triumph.

Today's postponement was not looked upon as a tragedy for it gave Alexander an opportunity for another day's rest and permitted the club to depart for Cincinnati two hours earlier than they would have been able to leave had the game been played. Alexander will face the Reds in the first game of the series tomorrow.

Monday a double-header is scheduled and it is expected that Jess Haines and Bob McGraw will do the pitching for the champions. The Reds have been going great guns lately and likely will be hard to beat.

ROTHERMEL WINS MARQUETTE HANDICAP; PRINCESS DOREEN TWELFTH

CHICAGO AND NOR'EASTER TAKE PLACES

Flat Iron Tires After Showing Good Early Speed in Lincoln Fields Feature Event.

By J. L. Dempsey.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Ill., July 23. —In a spectacular driving finish with Chicago, Rothermel and Nor'Easter, racing in the colors of the former Senator Johnson N. Camden of Kentucky, finished first and third in the Marquette Handicap, featuring today's Lincoln Fields program. The trio finished the one mile and one-sixteenths a considerable distance in advance of the 11 other starters. Lancer, which finished in fourth place, being five lengths behind Nor'Easter.

The race was worth $6820 to Senator Camden.

There followed still further back such lofty ones of the turf as Audley Farm's Princess Doreen, Green Briar Stable's Flat Iron, J. W. Parrish's Percentage, E. B. Elkins' Mary O., E. B. McLean's War Eagle and others of but little less renown.

Princess Doreen Disappoints.

The race had a spirited, bitterly contested running in which almost all of the starters played a prominet part at one stage or another. Among the exceptions was Princess Doreen which failed in every manner to race up to expectations and was far away from the real running throughout. She ruled as choice with Flat Iron next in public fancy. He figured seriously until reaching the last furlong where he tired badly and ultimately finished in seventh place.

Nor'easter and Chicago were always among the first flight which during the early running also included Moon Raker, Percentage and Flat Iron. After the first half mile, Nor'eastern raced into undisputed lead but Chicago was kept close to him and after following him into the stretch proceeded to move to him with every stride.

Rothermel, however, was yet to be reckoned with and was coming with a big rush on the outside. She engaged her stable mate and Chicago when starting the concluding sixteenth and continued with sturdy, unfaltering strides, each of which aided her in getting to the front and rolling up an advantage of a short half length as she flashed past the finish.

Flat Iron was thoroughly spent in doing the first six furlongs in a forward position and under his top impost of 126 pounds his steps over the remaining ground were tiring ones. Flat Iron caught the barrier with the break but shook it off when taking the first few strides and the slight mishap proved no handicap.

The racing was conducted before a near capacity crowd and under ideal weather and track conditions.

Oh Suzanna Is Winner.

Oh Susanna was winner of the secondary feature, a dash of six furlongs that brought out but five. The winner was forced to race in her best form to defeat Energy a neck. The latter coming strongly near the finish after having held a short lead for the first quarter of a mile. Orestes II led Girl Scout and Beneficient for third, neither of the trio being serious factors in the last quarter.

The third race at one mile and three-sixteenths was productive of an easy win for Margaret Gaut with Donna Santa second and Marengo third. Slicker, the choice, failed badly, while Moses, also well backed, broke into Tangerine at the start and had to close a big gap to finish fourth.

There will be a 50-yard back-stroke event for women, to decide the city championship and a 200-yard breast-stroke event for men, with the city title as the prize. Western A. A. U. events on the card will be the 220-yard freestyle swim and low-board fancy diving.

Dundee Gets Offer.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., July 23.—Promoter Gus Sanzera last night made Joe Dundee, welterweight champion of the world, an offer of $5000 to defend his title here in a 10-round contest against farmer Joe Cooper at Redland Field, Aug. 8. Cooper's manager, Johnny Cox, closed with Sanzera for the title match.

Bobby Jones on Way Home With British Crown

American Can Offer No Explanation of His Triumph in British Open.

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., July 23.—Bobby Jones, Georgia bound today, carried evidence in plenty of his great British golfing triumph but could not explain the "why." The twice crowned open champion had his now famous grin with him, a new bag loaded with golfing equipment, and several special trophies and gifts from admirers but he could not explain why he was able to win so decisively at St. Andrews, just after finishing so far back in the companion American event at Oakmont. He was eleventh at home, which is about the same as last for him.

As the golf master left for home, his proud father, "Big Bob" Jones, and Stewart Maiden, his golf tutor, enjoyed the cheers of their late hosts even more than the champion, though Bobby was by no means unappreciative.

"No Way to Explain It."

Asked if he could offer an explanation of an almost overnight reversal in his great game which enabled him to lead the field all the way in the British open when he could not place himself among the leaders in the American open, the British champion told the Associated Press: "Nobody can explain it."

"You can't win them all and you can't lose them all—and that's about all there is to it," he said.

He talked of "luck" as he said: "The gods of luck were good to me."

"When I stood on the thirteenth tee of the third round at Oakmont," he said, "I wouldn't have exchanged places with any other man in the field. I had 24 holes to play and was not more than three down to the leader. That's just about the most satisfactory position in medal competition where the strain of setting the pace is a furious one, as I found at St. Andrews. Perhaps opportunity dazzled me. Anyway I hit two bad holes, took two sixes at the thirteenth and fifteenth and my chances of winning were gone for Armour and Cooper were both playing better golf than I."

Bobby Jones played a new championship role for him at St. Andrews. He led the field at the end of each of the four rounds and readily admitted that the strain was terrific.

At St. Andrews he took no chances. He toned his game as does a boxer preparing for the ring, went out for the lead, obtained it and held it all the way to the most glorious victory in modern British golf history. Figures for his last four practice rounds and six rounds of championship play, including the two qualifying tests, indicate the marvelous steadiness of the pace he set. They read: 68, 73, 70, 67, 68, 71, 68, 72, 73, 72.

'Brassie Shot on No. 14 My Best.'

It was his sensational performances on the long holes coming home that made him a certain winner after he had been a bit careless around "Eden Loop" during the early rounds. Stewart Maiden, who knows his St. Andrews, declared that the homeward holes from the eleventh or thirteenth on, are "the most terrible finishing holes I know in golf." Bobby contented himself with his modest observation that he was 'lucky" in playing them. He admitted, however, that a brassie shot to the green at the fourteenth in the final round was his best shot in the whole championship competition.

As the golf master left for home, his proud father, "Big Bob" Jones, and Stewart Maiden, his golf tutor, enjoyed the cheers of their late hosts even more than the champion, though Bobby was by no means unappreciative.

"No Way to Explain It."

Asked if he could offer an explanation of an almost overnight reversal in his great game which enabled him to lead the field all the way in the British open when he could not place himself among the leaders in the American open, the British champion told the Associated Press: "Nobody can explain it."

"You can't win them all and you can't lose them all—and that's about all there is to it," he said. He talked of "luck" as he said: "The gods of luck were good to me."

"When I stood on the thirteenth tee of the third round at Oakmont," he said, "I wouldn't have exchanged places with any other man in the field. I had 24 holes to play and was not more than three down to the leader. That's just about the most satisfactory position in medal competition where the strain of setting the pace is a furious one, as I found at St. Andrews. Perhaps opportunity dazzled me. Anyway I had two bad holes, took two sixes at the thirteenth and fifteenth and my chances of winning were gone, for Armour and Cooper were both playing better golf than I."

Bobby Jones played a new championship role for him at St. Andrews. He led the field at the end of each of the four rounds and readily admitted that the strain was terrific.

At St. Andrews he took no chances. He toned his game as does a boxer preparing for the ring, went out for the lead, obtained it and held it all the way to the most glorious victory in modern British golf history. Figures for his last four practice rounds and six rounds of championship play, including the two qualifying tests, indicate the marvelous steadiness of the pace he set. They read; 68, 73, 70, 67, 76, 71, 68, 72, 73, 72.

'Brassie Shot on No. 14 My Best."

It was his sensational performances on the long holes coming home that made him a certain winner after he had been a bit careless around "Eden Loop" during the early rounds. Stewart Maiden, who knows his St. Andrews, declared that the homeward holes from the eleventh or thirteenth on, are "the most terrible finishing holes I know in golf." Bobby contented himself with his modest observation that he was 'lucky" in playing them. He admitted, however, that a brassie shot to the green at the fourteenth in the final round was his best shot in the whole championship competition.

ROCK ISLAND NINE HEAVILY FAVORED TO WIN MANUFACTURERS' TITLE

LEADERS HAVE LOST ONLY TWO GAMES THIS YEAR

Best Triple A Can Do Is to Tie for Championship, With Only Two Games Remaining on Schedule.

The Rock Island team, with only two games to play, heavily favored to win the Manufacturers' League championship following yesterday's games, when the Railroaders won and Triple A, their nearest opponent, was defeated by Frisco Lines aggregation.

Rock Island and Triple A each have two games to play and the leaders will have to drop both games while the runners-up will have to win both, in order to go into a tie for the flag at the end of the race. Rock Island has won eleven and lost two, and Triple A has won nine and lost four.

Frisco Lines, by virtue of its victory and the Peters outfits' loss, moved into third place in the league standings, Peters dropping into fourth, and the Currans, which have occupied the cellar most of the season, relinquished their position to Butler Bros.

Rube Adams, veteran pitcher of the Hickorys in the International Shoe league, turned in one of the best pitched games of the day, holding the R. H. & R. team to only three scattered hits, and winning, 15 to 0. Adams had stiff opposition until the eighth inning, when his teammates staged a rally that netted 12 runs.

Hawkins, twirler for Purina, also was in top form, granting three hits to the Missouri Pacific Service, striking out 12 and winning 21 to

ILLINOIS TENNIS TITLE TOURNAMENT OPENS TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 23.—With an entry list of 128 stars the Illinois State tennis championships will open at Skokie Monday with finals scheduled for next Sunday.

William T. Tilden II, former National titleholder, and Alfred H. Chapin Jr., of Hyannis, Mass., the present Illinois champion, were seeded one and two in the draw, but a number of younger players, some with rankings in the first 10, will give them battle.

George Lott, Chicago's highest ranked player just now, is playing in the East and has not entered.

Chapin's wife, the former Charlotte Hosmer, ranked fifth among the women players of the country, will defend her title in the women's singles against a field of promising young players. Singles matches will begin Monday and doubles on Wednesday.

The Call of the Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

Fishing Is Good.

FISHING has been better this season than for several years past and bids fair to continue good through the balance of the summer, for all our streams are still running with a good flow of water.

The high water in the spring enabled game fish to ascend to the head waters where they could spawn to better advantage than lower down.

We have had a good many reports that bass were not through spawning (the last report came in last Monday, the 18th). While it is a fact that all fish were late in spawning this year it is hardly probable that there are many on the spawning beds at this late day, as a matter of fact none of the fishermen who brought in these reports were positive that they had seen any bass on the beds. They formed their opinion after finding spawn in a fish they had killed, but this proves nothing, for bass are sometimes taken late in the summer that contain some spawn.

There is hardly a stream in the State where fishing is not better than it has been for several seasons, and if the Game and Fish Department will keep on with the good work of establishing hatcheries and distributing game fish where they will do the most good, Missouri will soon come back and once more take her place on the "Fish Map," provided, of course, that the public will help by not violating the very good laws now on the books.

The Chesapeake Hatchery.

WHEN the Chesapeake State hatchery, near Mount Vernon, is completed it will be one of the best arranged and equipped hatcheries in the country.

Two ponds have already been completed and stocked with fish, one pond covers 14½ acres, the other three acres. No. 1, the larger, is stocked with large and small mouth bass, bream, crappie and bluegill, and from this stock some 15,000 fish have already been shipped. The smaller pond is stocked with small-mouth bass and crappie.

Chesapeake spring has a daily flow of 3,000,000 gallons of pure cold water of just the right temperature for successfully propagating small-mouth bass.

Fishermen seining for minnows should watch carefully and return to the water immediately the small bass which are frequently taken in the minnow seines. Bass are easily enough distinguished from minnows, so there is no excuse for keeping them.

The Auxiliary Game Refuges.

COMMISSIONER McCANSE has recently returned from Pennsylvania, where he went for the special purpose of obtaining first-hand information concerning these refuges, and he has issued printed requirements explaining in detail conditions governing the establishment of these refuges.

Blank applications may be had from the department, and it is to be hoped that the land owners in different parts of the state will respond at an early date so that the Department will be able to arrange for the distribution of game birds next spring. As explained before in this column these auxiliary refugees are to be established on leased lands. The tracts must be large enough to allow for an inner sanctuary where game will not be disturbed in any way and will be protected from the ravages of vermin of all kinds, and enough land surrounding this protected spot to afford shooting for the public, as the department has no intention of establishing shooting grounds for a select few.

ARKANSAS has some new laws governing game and fish, but those pertaining to deer and turkey do not afford proper protection for either as there is no clause in the law prohibiting night hunting, and deer may be hunted with dogs, and turkey gobblers may be shot during the month of April.

There is a vast improvement in the quail law, for instead of four months open season as prevailed some years ago, quail may only be shot during December and January in accordance with the present law.

Our sister state is following Missouri in as much as game refuges are authorized by this new legislative act, which will go a long way toward saving the wild life once so plentiful in Arkansas.

Since the middle of February 70,000 Bobwhite quail have been imported from Mexico under the supervision of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, and of this number Missouri received 1000 pair which were distributed in various sections.

In addition to the quail 24,000 pheasant eggs were shipped to different organizations during April and May, and in turn passed on to farmers who would agree to follow instructions in regard to handling the eggs and the young chicks after the hatch. On June 6 the department wrote to each one of these organizations asking for a full report on each distribution, as to the number of eggs delivered, the number hatched and the number of birds finally released. We expect to have this report some time in August.

If this first experiment proves a success, the department will increase the distribution next spring, and it will be only a few years till we have an open season, for, under favorable conditions pheasants multiply very fast.

RUTH SEVEN HOMERS BEHIND 1921 RECORD

NEW YORK, July 23.—Another home-runless day for Babe Ruth put that baseball luminary today seven runs behind his 1921 record season. However, Ruth could take comfort in the fact that while he has been unable to connect for any of his long distance blows at the White Sox park, neither has Lou Gehrig. Ruth made one single against a single and a double for Gehrig. The standing:

Name.	Games Played.	Homers
Ruth, 1921	92	37
Ruth, 1927	92	30
Gehrig, 1927	92	31

Prison Wins, 12 to 3.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHESTER, Ill., July 23. — The Prison nine defeated Marysville on penitentiary grounds this afternoon, 12 to 3. Marysville defeated the Prison last year and also the year before. Hensley and Scheck each knocked a home run for the Prison.

The score by innings:

Prison—	2	3	0	1	0	3	2	1	0	—	12	9	4
Marysville—	1	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	—	3	7	6

Activities of St. Louisans In Michigan and Wisconsin

HARBOR POINT, Mich., July 23.

SPORTING events are piling up on one another around Harbor Point. Tennis, boating, golf, the bridle path—all are in full sway. Regattas and races that will make the coming months colorful and gay for summering St. Louisans are being planned and organized. There is talk of a three-day water carnival which is being backed by several St. Louis sportsmen. The preliminary matches in several classes in the Harbor Point tennis tournament have been played off. The bridle path on the heights above the bayou is dotted with St. Louis people, as is the picturesque golf course to the north of the colony. Sailboats will qualify for the regatta at a race Thursday.

A number of St. Louis young folk have taken part in the tennis tournament. Henry Meier and Daniel Schlafly are in the semifinals in the 12, 13 and 14-year-old class, the former defeating his opponent, 6—4, 6—1, and the latter a winner in sets, 6—1, 6—2. In the young men's tourney, Duncan Meier and Frederick Schafly Jr. have gone into the semifinals. Miss Martha Sluder defeated Mary Lees Kennard, 6—1, 6—1, for a position in the second round of the girls' division.

It has been announced at the clubhouse that Mr. B. B. Culver has been nominated as one of the three candidates to be elected a director of the Harbor Point Association to serve three years. The candidates were chosen by a nominating committee, whose chairman was Mr. Henry M. Meier.

Society Turns to Sports at North Shore Colonies

Helen Wills to Play at Essex Country Club Tournament Starting Tomorrow--Samuel C. Davis of St. Louis Made Yacht Club Commodore.

NORTH SHORE, Mass., July 23.

THE sporting features of the North Shore season are under way and beginning on Monday interest will center about the Essex County Club, Manchester, where the ladies' annual invitation tennis tournament will be held. Miss Helen Wills, recently returned from England, will play.

Yesterday, today and tomorrow, George A. Dobyne of St. Louis is host at the seventh annual golf tournament for the Inglelowe trophy which he presented to the club, at the Essex County Club, Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne recently returned to their estate at Beverly Farms, from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Plant at Bald Peak, Lake Winnepeesaukee, N. H. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Thomas, who have been in Brussels for the past two years, are sailing next week from Cherbourg to spend two months with Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne at Inglelowe. Mrs. Virginia Koehler of St. Louis is the house guest of her aunt, Mrs. Dobyne. Mrs. Cornelius Fox and Mrs. William Fox of New York, are also guests.

Samuel C. Davis of St. Louis has succeeded Dr. Maitland Alexander of Pittsburg as commodore of the Tarratine Yacht Club, at Islesboro, Me. Races are held each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon. Islesboro is said to be one of the finest yachting schools along the coast, for here families return year after year, also generation after generation, and the boys and girls are taught to sail a boat when barely large enough to hold a tiller.

In the summer colony at Islesboro are the families of Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis and of George S. Tiffany of St. Louis.

St. Louisans in Michigan and Wisconsin Resorts

The first dance at the Harbor Point Casino is scheduled for next Saturday night. This party will inaugurate the social season for the younger set at the Point. As yet the main activity has consisted chiefly of bridge parties about the fireplaces and on the verandas of the clubhouse. After dinner in the evening seems to be the hour when all the summer folk get together to discuss the prospects in the coming races of flick out cards on a table set for bridge.

There is to be a "Miss Harbor Point" this year, according to the campaign announcements that have been made at the Point. She will not be a sweet young thing riding a surf-board behind one of the many speed boats that flit about the bay. No, the honor will fall upon some one of the many youngsters between the ages of 5 and 8. Votes are for sale and the proceeds will be turned over to the Children's Clinic at Petoskey, 12 miles away. "Miss Harbor Point" will be the queen at the mid-summer children's fete July 28, and she will ride on a gay float at that event.

Mrs Robert S. Hoxie is at the Point as a guest of Mrs. Frederick Schlafly. Mr. and Mrs. Hoxie will spend the summer at Harbor Springs.

Mr. J. B. Kennard arrived at the Point early this week for a vacation with his many friends at the Point. Mrs. Harold Jolley, Mr. Kennard's sister, is among those he will visit.

Mrs. Thomas K. Niedringhaus and her father, Mr. Benjamin McKeen, arrived at the Point a week ago. Mr. McKeen returned to St. Louis after a short visit, but will be at the Point later in the season.

Mr. Harold Jolley has joined Mrs. Jolley at their cottage.

Mrs. W. G. Kimball is with Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bates at the latter's cottage.

Among the other new arrivals at the Point we find the names of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Shapleigh, and their grandsons, Alfred Lee Shapleigh and Warren McKinney Shapleigh. They arrived Tuesday.

WEQUETONSING, Mich., July 23.—The St. Louis sportsmen around Wequetonsing are getting their boats in trim for the coming regattas and water carnivals that are hovering in the future. Halyards creak on many sailing crafts—a noble specimen of which is owned by Mr. Edwin H. Steedman—as they square their shoulders to the wind and seek the open lake beyond the protecting arm of Harbor Point. If you inquire about "Weque" for the man most familiar with the sporting situation, they will tell you William H. Barnett. Mr. Barnett is at the cottage of his mother, Mrs. W. H. Barnett Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggins have been the house guests of Mrs Barnett the last two weeks, leaving Tuesday for the East.

Our attention is turned from the tilted wisps of sail that pair off shoulder-to-shoulder down the lake, to a speeding strip of mahogany splitting the waters of the bay and leaving a long stream of silvery spray in its wake. We learn that it is the speed boat of Mr. George Whitelaw Jr.

Mrs. Matthew G. Reynolds is visiting at Mr. and Mrs. J. O. King's cottage. The King cottage has been completely rebuilt this season and is one of the prettiest summer homes at "Weque."

Robert Holland is among the recent arrivals at "Weque." He has joined Mrs. Holland and the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hilmer and their children are occupying their cottage.

The Wequetonsing Golf Club, on the bluff above the colony, is perhaps the finest in the north of Michigan. The course boasts 27 holes with a spacious clubhouse. As one sits on the balcony overlooking the first tee and the last hole, he sees many St. Louisans driving off down the fairways or sinking their last putts. One of the most remarkable players on the course, we are told, is Mr. F. O. Watts, who still plays an almost consistent 79. There are many others from the Wequetonsing colony who are regular on the greens. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Edmunds and their daughter Miss Eugenie, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. McCluney, Miss Katharine, and Sam C. McCluney Jr., Robert Holland, Mrs. A. C. Lueking and her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Froemke, and many others.

Mr. J. S. McIntyre is acting president of the Wequetonsing Golf Club, while farther to the north, Mr. A. L. Shapleigh is president of the Harbor Point Golf Club.

Among the new arrivals at the Wequetonsing Hotel are Mrs. [illegible] A. Keis, Mr. R. W. Brooks and Miss Florence Brooks, Richard Shipley and James W. Smith.

Mrs. John Young Brown and Mrs. Powell Whitehead are occupying a cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Ziebig are in their cottage.

BELVEDERE, Mich., July 23.—With the local tennis tournament in full sway and the Western Michigan event in the offing, the St. Louisans at Belvedere find plenty of diversion. Many of them show an active interest in the sporting events that take place in the village and at the colony. The retinue of boats on Lake Charlesvoix is increasing as one by one the people feel the call of the lake winds. The new Belvedere golf course, credited as one of the best courses in the North, is dotted with people. Everything radiates the spirit of the outdoors. Down in the Casino the new Belvedere orchestra of eight pieces plays, and the young set at the colony forget the activity of the day.

One of the first parties of the year was given by Miss Virginia McVoy at the McVoy cottage. A number of St. Louis young folks and their guests were entertained at a Sunday night tea. Among the young ladies were Miss Ruth Curby, Miss Elizabeth Clark, Miss Margaret Fergusen, Miss Mary Trigg Waller of Chicago, Miss Dorothy Moorhead of Chicago and Miss May Lott of Cleveland. Mr. Austin Leland, Mr. Charles Fox, Mr. Jack Curby, Mr. Thomas Bond, Mr. Alexander McVoy, Mr. Joseph Fergusen, Mr. Nicholas Sauer and Mr. George Schwab Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., were among the young men at Miss McVoy's party.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker H. Woods and daughter, Miss Helen Martha Woods, were at the Belvedere Hotel, Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Woods left for St. Louis Tuesday while Miss Helen Martha returned to Rex Terrace.

Mrs. W. W. Smith and her son, Allan Smith, arrived at the W. W. Smith cottage Tuesday. Mr. W. W. Smith will join his family later in the season.

The City tennis tournament, which has attracted the attention of the northern part of the State, and in which many St. Louisans from Harbor Point and Wequetonsing are taking part, will end tomorrow. Among the players still in the race we find Mr. Austin Leland, who is in the third round of play, and Charles Fox, who is in the semi-finals. He meets O. R. Smith of Indianapolis, Ind., the favorite for the tourney title.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., July 23.—Highland Park was threatened with almost complete destruction when a fire started in one of the oldest and most thickly populated parts of the park and burned three big cottages, "The Gidley," "Shady Nook" and "Lucky Lodge." "Lucky Lodge was partly burned and acted as a wall which prevented the fire spreading to the higher ridge, where it is certain the rest of that section would have been wiped out. The entire populace turned out to assist and carry belongings to the hotel and distant cottages. The work of the Grand Haven fire department was gallant but for its work it would not have been possible to save the cottages perched on hillsides where no water could have been thrown. The cottages of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Hawes were not in imminent danger, but many of the St. Louisans were ready to leave at a moment's notice.

One of the favorite pursuits of the women is a trip to town, where they revel in a wonderful gift shop, "Reichardts." This shop savors of Ovington's in New York City. It is surprising how many Christmas presents presented St. Louis people this year will have been picked up in this delightful nook. It is the general meeting place for friends and altogether delightful, as the management welcomes all with no partiality for buyers. "The Abigail," another quaint shop for ladies' wear, is intriguing, with importations not found often outside New York City.

Mrs. Charles Freeman, Westgate avenue, is enertaining Mrs. William J. Phelan for two weeks. She will go to Chicago for several weeks before returning to her home in St. Louis.

Mrs. John Weber, who has been coming to the park for many seasons, has as her guest Miss Elizabeth Dillon of Boston.

Mr. M. F. Watts is being entertained at the cottage, "Slumber Hill," by his daughter, Mrs. Richard Hawes. He will remain there for a time and then go into the Oval Apartment.

Mrs. John Weber entertained with a breakfast this week honoring her guest, Miss Elizabeth Dillon of St.

Fencing Drill at Charity Ball Game

As St. Louis baseball fans assemble en masse for the Tuberculosis day celebration Thursday, a new and unique scene will be presented. The 300 young girls who will distribute educational souvenir score cards throughout the grand stand will be dressed in brightly colored attire, carrying out the society's educational feature stunt of the Health Gypsy. Modern gypsies will they be, with their short dresses, novelty beads and bracelets, and scarfs draped around the head in true flapper fashion.

In keeping with the costumes of the girls will be the entertainment features preceding the big-league game between the Cards and Phillies at 4 o'clock. Spectacular drills and exhibitions of the most complicated order will be enacted at various points in the fields, a junior marathon will bring in hundreds of boyson their last lap, two girls' races will be spirited contests, and several bands and drum corps will furnish music continuously. THREE LAKES, Wis., July 23.—To Hiram Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Martin, 315 North Tenth Street, a midget in Camp Minne Wonka, goes the honor of catching the first real fish in the Midget Division. Hiram, who is only 11 years old, caught a 28-inch pike in Virgin Lake. The fish provided steaks for most of Hiram's Midget friends.

A sub-camp has been established at Seven-Mile Lake and a number of Minne Wonka campers have spent from one to three days camping out at this beautiful camp site. Aikin, of the John Burroughs School, Clayton, won easily. The juniors lost in only one thing, and then only by a margin of one point. The swimming meet went to Red Arrow by the score of 15 to 14. First place in the free style swim was taken by Jack Pape, son of Mrs. Walter Haeussler of the Gatesworth Hotel. The junior baseball batter was Norman Aikin, Clayton, pitcher; Charles Depew, 6242 Waterman, catcher. Kells Elvin, Clayton, replaced Aikin in the seventh inning.

Elusive Charm!

Lovely Miss F. Hussey, 1057 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., has much of that girlish charm "elusive as mist, powerful as dynamite!" She says she owes it to always using the delicately fragranced Black and White Face Powder. "The minute this dainty powder touches my face, my complexion looks prettier—and stays prettier, too. The powder is so soft and fine, and so exquisitely tinted itself, it seems to lend its texture and coloring to my skin—and it doesn't rub off or keep me always dabbing with my powder puff."

When your fragrance-laden puff fluffs on, then smooths the tiny silk-bolted particles of Black and White Face Powder, you have a velvety, even finish which clings lastingly and gives an elusive new beauty. Over 80,000 dealers everywhere have the attractive 25c packages.

Best results come from using Black and White Skin Soap along with the Black and White Beauty Creations.

troit Utilities, Operating Without Franchises, Prosper And Public Gets Fair Rates

y's Policy Results in Peaceful Adjustments of Differences in Conferences Instead of Costly Court Actions.

By WILLIAM F. ALLEN,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

DETROIT, Mich., July 23.

THER cities may fret over public utility franchise problems, but Detroit long ago hit upon a simple, workable solution. The ity grants no franchises—has granted none for 25 years. None utilities—its electric company, gas company, telephone com-, or its street railway, has franchises. The old franchises have d and none has been renewed. The newcomers to the utility the busses, operate on day-to-day permits, revocable at the f the city.

Detroit utilities stay and use ity streets only so long as deal fairly with the public. policy has worked out well for city and the utilities. The city s low or lower rates than large American cities for its ic services and the companies, selves, have prospered.

ates Street Cars.

e street railways seemed so lessly lacking in any sincere t to give service, seemed so upon profits at the expense e property that as soon as its hise expired five years ago city called "enough" and ht the railways. It has been ting them since and, though te operators on all hands cry municipal ownership as exted in Detroit, the railways al junk when the city bought, being steadily built up. Its ice is being extended and be- improved and in five years it paid off $13,000,000 of its —money that under private rship would have gone into al pockets as dividends. All a 6-cent fare.

required eight expensive, tive years of going from to court to force the street company's capitulation—eight after its franchise expired the city could get the ear the United States Supreme and have that tribunal de- the company without rights troit streets. The memory of eight-year blockade after the hise had expired, of the city's e to take over the property is of the reasons why Detroit s no more franchises.

r a time the utilities raised protest that without fran- , new money for extensions betterments of service could be had. Bankers would not money to utilities with only y-to-day lease of life. But passed and no Detroit utility suffered any lack of money. found that investors came gard a utility in harmony its public and hence pros- as a good risk. e, the public, are too well d with conditions as they We, like most states, have lic Utilities Commission for gulation of our utilities, but cities in other States, we st being constantly hauled Commission to defend de- for higher rates or higher valuations by our utilities. They do not care to test our patience that far.

"The practical working of our policy of no franchise is just this: All of our utilities, with possibly one exception, have shown an alacrity to sit with us around a conference table and we have been able to compose differences satisfactorily. Only once in recent years has there been recourse to the Public Service Commission and the courts and that by the Michigan Telephone Co., which is seeking to advance its rates beyond what we think is just.

"It has worked out to the advantage of the utility, also. The gas company urged that we permit the reduction of the British Thermal Units in gas from 600 to 530 and, after a board of arbitration made a finding that the request should be granted the gas company made the reduction. I might say in passing that any city should consider carefully, however, before permitting its gas company to reduce heat units. We are not entirely satisfied with the result.

Refund for Customers.

"Last year the city thought that it was entitled to cheaper gas and that the company should refund some $600,000 of customers' money held as a deposit upon meters. The question of rates involved valuation and rather than undertake an expensive valuation at a time when courts seemed to have reached their peak allowance for reproduction new, we abandoned the request for lower rates. However, we got the customers' refund.

"But I believe I am quoting the general counsel for the gas company, William Chamberlain, correctly with this remark made during some of our negotiations: 'As between no franchise and good relations with the consumers and a franchise with poor relations, I unhestitatingly would choose no franchise.'

"The utilities may assert that they have franchises, but their conduct over several years in bringing their troubles to the city in conference instead of formal action before the utilities commission seems to me conclusive evidence that they are well aware that, in a test, they would be found to be dependent upon the will of the city. We, at least, are proceeding upon that assumption."

Laclede Gas Light Co., Says It Is Too Big a Job to Compare Rates.

THE Detroit Gas Co., asserts that its rates are the lowest among the comparable cities of the United States. A schedule of Detroit gas rates was submitted to the Laclede Gas Light Co., for comparison, both with existing rates and with higher rates for which the Laclede now is asking the Missouri Public Service Commission. The reply was that such a comparison would require weeks of computations for which the company could not find employes with that time to spare.

The electric rates prevailing in Detroit were submitted to Union Electric Light & Power Co., for comparison. It was replied that small consumers got a very slight lower rate in Detroit, but that the rates for households in which electric appliances were rather freely used were lower in St. Louis.

Woman Voter Has Power to Swing The Next Presidential Election

Of 58,000,000 Citizens Eligible to Cast Ballots in 1928, About 28,500,000, or 49 Per Cent, Are Women.

General Indifference Is Chief Cause of Failure to Go to Polls on Election Day, Surveys Show.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 23.

IF the Eighteenth Amendment has failed to achieve the results foretold of it, what about the Nineteenth?

It is not easy to recall all the benefits which (we were told) would accrue from the adoption of woman suffrage, but it is not difficult to recall some of the principal ones. Give women the vote, it was urged, and politics would be "cleaned up." Boss rule would be overthrown, corruption in office would virtually disappear, crime would be greatly diminished, the buying of elections would become impossible, machine-controlled conventions would vanish, and the whole tone of public life would be vastly elevated.

Seven years ago next month the Nineteenth Amendment became a part of the Federal Constitution, and women became the equals of men as voters. What has happened?

Boss rule is solidly entrenched, from the National capital downward. Corruption in government has attained the most appalling peak in American history. Crime was never so widespread and safe. Vote-buying as illustrated in the Pennsylvania and Illinois Republican primaries, is being practiced on a gigantic and unprecedented scale. In political conventions machine control is the rule. Political morals were never so debased. The tone of public life was never so degenerate. That is what has happened.

No sensible person attributes those conditions to the enfranchisement of women. Nor is there the slightest intention here to disparage the principle of woman suffrage. As a matter of simple justice and fairness, women were entitled to the vote, regardless of whether their possession of it would produce all or any of the results claimed for it in advance. They got it, and the purpose of this inquiry is to show what use they have made of it.

No Change at All, Says Frank R. Kent

"It is the testimony of practical politicians all over the country," says Frank R. Kent, the able political writer, "that the women as voters have not changed any political situation, or altered the political complexion of any locality."

"Not a boss has been unseated," adds Charles Edward Russell. "Not a convention has broken away from its familiar towing ropes. Nothing has been changed, except that the number of docile ballot-droppers has approximately been doubled."

In the presidential election of next year, 58,000,000 American citizens will be eligible to qualify and vote. Of this total, approximately 28,500,000, about 49 per cent, will be women.

This makes it perfectly obvious that the women have the power to effect any result they desire. They can elect or defeat any candidate. They can accomplish any reform upon which a large majority of them are unanimous. They can end corruption. They can "clean up" politics. They can elevate the tone of public life.

Actually, they will do nothing of the sort. Because, in the first place, considerably less than half of them will vote, and those who do will vote, on the average, precisely as their husbands and brothers vote.

The first presidential election to be held after the adoption of the suffrage amendment was that of 1920, when Harding was elected. The total number of persons eligible to vote in that election was 54,165,000. The number of votes actually cast was 26,711,183, or 49.3 per cent of the total eligible.

Now it is a fact that in the four presidential elections preceding that one, of the total number of males eligible to vote, an average of 67 per cent actually voted, and there is no reason to believe that the male percentage fell off in 1920. If that is true, only 35.1 per cent of the women eligible to vote did vote, and the failure of the others to vote was responsible for reducing the general percentage to the lowest level in the country's history.

Interest in Ballot Lapses Over U. S.

The presidential election of 1924 brought very little improvement. Of the total number of persons eligible to vote, approximately 51 per cent did vote. If the male voters maintained their average of 67 per cent, then only 35.3 per cent of the eligible women voters went to the polls.

If interest in the ballot were taken as an index of a people's capacity to govern themselves—and it might reasonably be—the people of the United States are making a sorry showing, and the women voters even sorrier than the men. The present administration holds that the Filipino people are incapable of self-government, yet in their last general election, 80 per cent of the Filipinos eligible to vote did vote. In the evil of nonvoting, we lead the world.

In a recent address to the President, the National League of Women Voters admitted "the truth of the popular belief that in nonvoting, women are the worst offenders."

Illinois was the only State to distinguish between men and women voters in 1920, and the returns showed that 74.4 per cent of the eligible males voted, and 46.6 per cent of the eligible women. It should be noted that the general average for Illinois was much higher than for the country as a whole.

Simon Michelet of Washington, the country's leading authority on voting percentages, studied the registration lists of 42 states for the period preceding the 1920 election, and on that basis made an estimate of the number of women to vote in each state. As a general thing, he found that the women of the Western states, particularly of the Mountain states, had the highest voting percentage, while those of the South had the lowest.

However, and somewhat strangely, it was in Delaware that the women led, casting 72 per cent of their eligible vote. Virginia trailed, with 22 per cent, and Vermont was not much better, with 28 per cent. Of the Missouri women eligible to vote, 52 per cent cast ballots—a figure considerably above the average for the entire country.

It comes to this, that they simply don't vote. Yet one cannot forget the arguments which were advanced for giving them the opportunity to vote. It was argued, and with great force, that as mothers, they were vitally concerned in such questions as war, education, crime, social and economic justice, equality of opportunity, and that as taxpayers and housewives they were directly affected by such matters as fair taxation, honest and economical government, control of the necessities of life, and so on. It was all true then, and it is all true now. Still they don't vote. Why?

Group Seeks Facts on Failure to Vote

An answer to this question was sought by Charles E. Merriam, who, with the aid of students of the University of Chicago, conducted a house-to-house canvass in 1923 to ascertain from eligibles who had failed to register and vote their reasons for remaining away from the polls. His report said:

"The first outstanding fact to notice is that nearly three-fourths of these nonregistered adult citizens were women. Women were allowed to register for local elections in Chicago as early as 1913, and yet, 10 years later, less than half the female citizens had established voting habits."

The reasons given the canvassers for failure to register and vote fell into four general classes, in addition to a large miscellaneous category. These reasons, and the percentage of perons giving them, were as follows:

General indifference.	33.4 per cent.
Disbelieve in women voting.	11.3 per cent.
Ignorance or timidity.	9.6 per cent.
Illness.	7.7 per cent.

Another study of nonvoting was that conducted by Ben A. Arneson, a political economist, following the 1924 presidential election. He chose Delaware, O., with a population of 9000, as a typical American community, and conducted a thorough canvass. He found that husbands and fathers had the best voting record. Wives had the poorest, being more delinquent in that respect than either sons or daughters.

Among the objections once advanced against women suffrage, two familiar ones were, that women would refrain from voting because of unwillingness to give their ages, and because of objections on the part of their husbands. The researches conducted by Merriam and Arneson among women nonvoters showed that less than one-half of 1 per cent had been deterred by the necessity of giving their ages, and less than 2 per cent by objections from their husbands.

So much for those who don't vote. We come to that precious minority—those who do—and we find that they vote just as their menfolks do.

Since 1920, the one National measure that commanded the almost unanimous support of women's organizations throughout the country, and which would naturally be expected to command the support of women generally, was the proposed child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution. Congress in 1924 submitted it to the state Legislatures for ratification. It was not an issue between the parties.

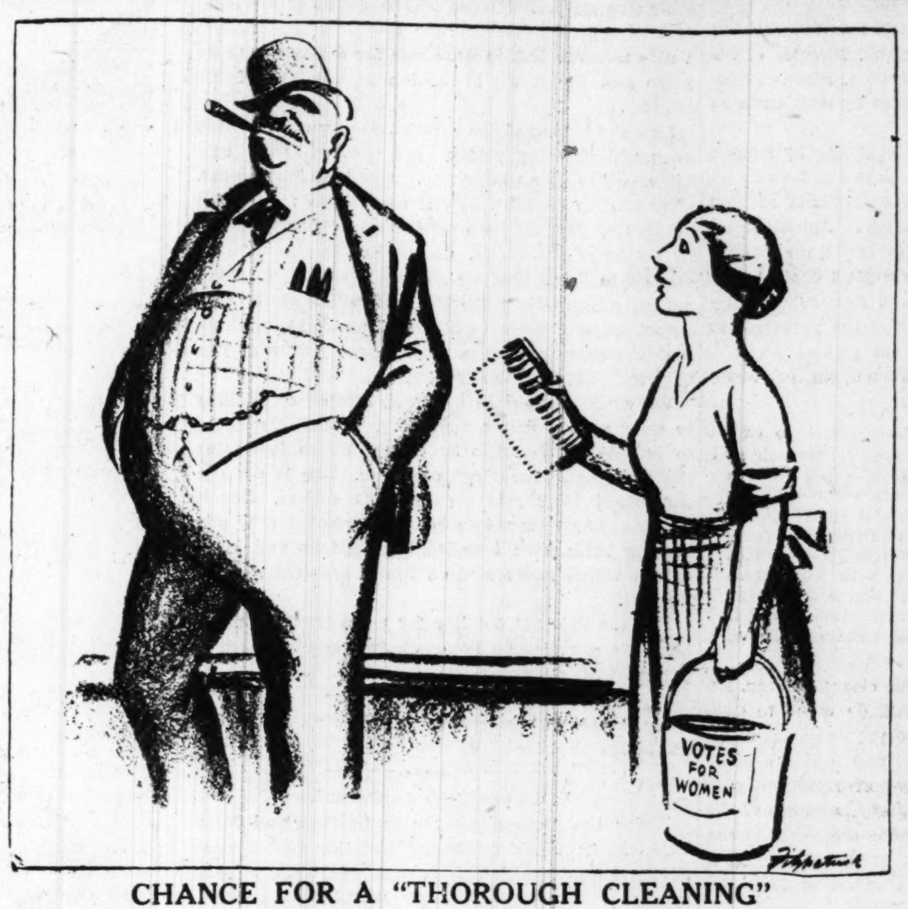
Heavy Vote Against Child Labor Law

Before acting on it, the Legislature of Massachusetts submitted the question to a popular referendum. It happened that Massachusetts was one of the few states where the number of women eligible to vote exceeded the number of male eligibles. Notwithstanding, the child labor amendment was rejected by the overwhelming vote of 696,000 to 247,000, or almost 3 to 1. Massachusetts does not separate the votes of men from women, so the percentages cast either way by the sexes could not be ascertained. The result showed plainly, however, that there had been no marked difference between the sexes on the question.

"Even on the so-called moral issues," Mr. Kent observes in his book on politics, "the women have not voted one way and the men another. It is rare for father and son to belong to separate parties, and it is even rarer for husband and wife to do so. Nineteen times out of 20 the family votes as a unit."

Everyday experience confirms the statement. Husbands and wives may, and unfortunately do, split over a variety of issues—from the hanging of mother-in-law's picture in the front room to the buying of a six-tube set—but the total of violent domestic quarrels which have been traced to differences of political views wouldn't occupy one edition of a tabloid newspaper, even though supplemented with "composite" illustrations. It is not to be argued that husbands and wives should quarrel over politics, but it is possible for them to differ peaceably, and even to vote against each other without harsh words. But, if determined to fight, they would do better to fight over politics than over some of the things they fight about.

The United States is in a political slump. Popular interest in government is low, and the quality of government is correspondingly low. There was a time when such a condition could be blamed entirely on the men Not now. Women have the power, and they must bear their share of the moral responsibility.



CHANCE FOR A "THOROUGH CLEANING"

Growth in Brain Capacity Shown by Study of Skulls From 'Ape-Man' to Present

Scientist Tells How Manual and Mental Abilities of Men Have Developed With Slight Change in Instincts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 23.

THE study of the brain of apes and men strongly supports the theory of evolution, which holds that men are descended from the great apes; also our modern brain is as far removed from perfection as were the covered wagons of a generation ago from the airplanes of today. Aviation, itself, may hasten the evolutionary process whereby mankind will attain its more perfect brain.

Such is the result of the first comparative racial study in the light of evolution, made by Dr. Frederick Tilney, attending physician at the Neurological Institute, Professor of Neurology at Columbia University and one of the foremost authorities on the brain in this country, whose paper, reporting the findings of his study, has just been published in the current issue of the Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry by the American Medical Association.

This study was made at the request of Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History, who submitted for Dr. Tilney's research all the world-famous specimens of prehistoric fossils. These rare exhibits were collected by the Museum and represent the relics of human beings who lived on earth hundreds of thousands of years ago.

"Ape-man" Is From Java.

The oldest known fossil in existence belongs to the "ape-man of Java," known to savants by the long and rhythmical name of "Pithecanthropus erectus." This fossil was for many years the bone of contention between different schools of thought on the question of whether he was an ape or a man. His title, "ape-man," represents the compromise with which scientists abandoned the study of so baffling a mystery, thereby placing our early ancestor in the embarrassing predicament of being neither one thing nor the other.

Through the study of the ape-man's brain, Dr. Tilney now puts him definitely on the side of the angels as "a primate standing relatively high in the scale—much higher indeed than any of the great apes." Thereby the date of our humanity is set back 500,000 years—the antiquity ascribed to Pithecanthropus by prevailing opinion. Dr. Tilney considers open-mindedly other estimates which say 15,000,000 years.

This brain separates our first humanity from jungle life by just that faint and miraculous margin that separates the sun from the horizon as it bursts marvelously into the new day. No one could accuse the scientific imagination of being "stodgy" that called one of our early ancestors the "dawn man."

Like 3-Year-Old Child.

The way Dr. Tilney came to this decision was by placing side by side the brain of a gorilla and of this deviation-by-the-grace-of-evolution Pithecanthropus, the "ape-man." He found that the brain of the latter was developed to just that slight degree beyond the gorilla's which had made possible the impetus into humanity. After studying the four great lobes of this brain, the frontal, parietal, temporal and occipital, Dr. Tilney states that "in size and general appearance the brain of Pithecanthropus resembles that of a 3-year-old child."

Of these lobes, it is the frontal which represents the latest accessions of human specialization, whereby man has distinguished himself in creation and finally acquired all that is implied in the title "homo sapiens."

In the case of Pithecanthropus, the development of this lobe alone, says Dr. Tilney, indicates, first a behavioral advance far above the plane of gorilla but equally below that of modern man; second, that the Javan man must have possessed greater powers of adaptive association; third, that he was capable of more advantageous reasoning than the gorilla or other anthropoids. He constructed for himself a greater sphere of experience, created at least an approach to human personaltiy, and developed the distinctive characteristics of individuality. He was also probably right-handed. He had learned to speak—to communicate in verbal language.

Also, he had increased ability to see and hear, it was shown through the study of his brain.

"With all due reservations," declares Dr. Tilney, "the frontal lobe of the Javan man indicates that the brain had progressed in its psychic capacity and that it had expanded in those portions on which unidexterity, reason, language and human personality depend."

The study of all four great lobes of the brain gave evidence of increased size and hence greater functional capacity when compared with the great man-like apes.

Hand Is an Index.

In this measuring of human development by means of brain growth, the hand is almost a symbol of advancement. It rises mysteriously out of the mists of the past, pointing the way to progress. It was the hand, so to speak, which helped the ape into humanity and the ape-man to the more glorified position of homo sapiens.

Dr. Tilney gives a simple example to explain this point. In the case of a dog or cat, mammals making their home on the ground and using the four limbs for locomotion, the individual digits in their paws have not acquired individual movements similar to fingers.

"Consequently," says Dr. Tilney, "their sensory representation in the brain is much less, and requires less cortical area."

Then, among the mammals, the ape form appeared, with an existence in the trees which necessitated the development of the hand to hold to the branches. The jump from ape to man is understood when comparing the two brains. In Pithecanthropus, Dr. Tilney found an expansion in the parietal lobe which indicates a development, first, in the human or humanoid foot; second, the assumption of the erect posture; and third, the emancipation of the hand from locomotor functions.

His hand, instead of being used just to climb trees, became freed for constructive and acquisitive purposes. The ape-man had so developed from the ape that he used his hands to get what he wanted, and to communicate his ideas.

The ape-man also could stand upright, which in itself requires a complex sensory mechanism; Dr. Tilney says that in the long history of primate adaptation and development, the parietal lobe has manifested the most consistent expansion, and has seemed to keep pace especially with the progressive tendency to assume the erect posture, and other parallel characteristics.

When Use of Foot Began.

The brain was called on for its supreme development in this parietal lobe when certain of the great apes ceased their tree existence and made their homes on the ground. Then the foot became purely a locomotive factor, ceasing what we could reasonably interpret as a previous confusion as to its function.

The study of the more advanced fossil brains bore out Dr. Tilney's theory that the development of the hand and the brain was more or less parallel. In the

Mr. Ford and the Press.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHAT you said of Mr. Ford and the press is so true that we do not have to go outside of St. Louis to prove it. The Post-Dispatch is trying to keep Jake Newman from running off with St. Louis as he ran off with Kansas City and Indianapolis, and what are the other newspapers doing? Are they also battling in the popular interest and trying to repulse Jake and his crew? Are they, counting all else but dross and asking only to be shown the people's foes, joining with the Post-Dispatch to save the city from the folly of tying itself up for 30 years without hope of benefit to itself? No. They are turning themselves inside out trying to serve some other interest while seeming to befriend the people. Only the Post-Dispatch is unqualifiedly opposed to selling the street railways out for the benefit of speculators. Keep it up. You have the whole outfit on the ropes.

PERMIT.

Say Not So, Senator.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHEN Senator Reed was asked if he cared to comment upon what Aaron Sapiro had said about his defense of Henry Ford, our Jim is reported to have made the following uncharacteristic reply:

> I don't want to talk about Sapiro or make any reply to him. I am at peace with all the world.

With all due respect to the newspaper which published this statement, I cannot avoid pointing out that there must be an error somewhere about it. A Reed at peace with all the world is just the sort of a Reed which his most perfervid admirers hoped never to see. He would have lost all the qualities which had made him inimitable and useful. He would be a rose minus its perfume, a champagne minus its fizz, a Pilsner minus its flavor. He would be only one step from trying to catch trout with worms and wearing leather pantaloons.

All the Senator's admirers will hope that he never said anything like that and never will.

Long Live the King!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE newly-elected sovereign of Rumania should usher in another era of international good-will, no less than our trans-Atlantic aviators. The motto of the turbulent Balkans now will be, "Aw, let the kid alone," or "Pick on somebody your size." And that name, Michael. It will be shortened to "Mike" shortly. Ah, sir, George of England may plot against the peace and dignity of Chicago, but Mike of Rumania, never! He's a mere broth of a boy and he's cute. The only cloud I can see on the horizon is that the kid may want to don his cowboy suit and ride his hobby horse. In that case, nervous Nellie Kellogg would have conniption fits at the sight or possibility of Red Rule in Rumania. But then, the regents will guide Mike. Doubtless the first thing the regents did was to throw the royal cowboy suit out the window of the regal nursery. Long live Mike!

FRIEND OF CHILDREN.

Hear! Hear!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SEEING so many mean lies told against women by a certain class of men I should like to ask: Have we ever had a woman traitor to her country like Benedict Arnold? Did we ever hear of a woman having her best friend hanged, like the Irish leader, O'Higgins? (who, incidentally, accepted his victim's property). And did we ever hear of a woman spying on and imprisoning her best friend, as Frank D. Lumpkin did to his best friend, I. C. de Hart, near Danville, Va., recently?

No. We have never heard of a woman doing any of these vile and despicable things, and we never will, because women have honor, gratitude and humane instincts.

A WOMAN.

The Splotch on the Canvas.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

COMES the dawn of the gladsome vacation era, when the day's work ceases to trouble and the weary are at rest. But the fly in the ointment, the rift in the lute, the splotch on the canvas, the eyesore on an otherwise flawless landscape, is that delirious drys will shout, as they have shouted for ages past, that Americans sojourning in foreign lands should observe American laws, ukases and other emanations of our legislatures. They mean only one law—the scantily-observed amendment—and they are a trifle hazy as to the means of attaining this most utopian of goals.

Whole hog or none, sir. Why should the American in London observe only one American law? Let us show the world our superiority in legislative moves. Traffic in America keeps to the right; in England, to the left. Why cannot American tourists in King George's dominions observe this American law as well, and keep to the right? The results would be interesting, but they would be results, and the drys want results.

ILL-STARRED HENNESSY.

OUT OF UNCLE SAM'S POCKET.

The Baldwin Debt Commission arrived in Washington on Jan. 4, 1923. On Feb. 28, President Harding signed the British debt funding bill.

In the jubilant publicity there was glory enough to go around, though the major share, it will be recalled, was bestowed on Secretary Mellon.

Since then England has met her payments when due, and other nations have also made payments on account.

Where did the money come from? From England? Or Belgium? Or Italy? Or France, which has made a deposit as an evidence of good faith, even though she has not yet signed on the dotted line? Or from Germany, which, under the conditions of the peace treaty and the designation of reparations was to foot the whole bill?

The money we have received on the war debts has come from Uncle Sam's own pocket.

This statement was made in the Post-Dispatch on Monday by Dr. Harold Glen Moulton, Director of the Institute of Economics at Washington, who is recognized as an authority on economics by specialists in that subject.

The statement is corroborated officially by figures of the Department of Commerce as to our foreign investments. The total of those investments reaches the imperial sum of $12,300,000,000. American investments in European countries aggregate $3,500,000,000. Uncle Sam is truly the world's banker. He is the world's underwriter. He is financing the reconstruction of the world, including the payments to himself which his war debtors are making.

This striking paragraph is taken from Dr. Moulton's interview:

> As a fact, it recently has been officially contended that Germany, even now, is furnishing the means of paying European debts to the United States. Such statements serve only to obscure the realities of the present situation, for what is the truth? The truth is that American investors in German and other foreign securities have been providing the funds with which current reparations and debt payments are being made. It is but too evident that there is still need for clear thinking on the fundamentals of the problem.

Dr. Moulton proceeds to do some clear thinking. He tells us that the loans of the outside world to Germany have greatly exceeded the payments made by Germany under the Dawes plan, and that the loans of the United States to the rest of Europe—Great Britain aside—have been enormously in excess of the small sums currently payable under the terms of the debt settlements. His comment is not offered in a spirit of criticism. It is a statement of facts—of unavoidable facts.

He is still dealing with facts when he says that "our present period is transitional;" that the "reparation and debt problems are disposed of only temporarily;" that the "really vital issues—namely, that of the capacity of debtors to pay and that of what effects such payments may have upon the creditor countries—await determination."

He offers no solution, presumably agreeing with Prof. Taussig of Harvard that the time is not yet ripe for final disposition of the question. But Dr. Moulton does take occasion to caution us that "the United States as yet has not been forced to consider the relation of reparations and debt payments to our American tariff policy." His conclusion is in full agreement with the position of the Post-Dispatch from the first that the final test of world statesmanship in connection with reparations, debts and other problems of postwar reconstruction is yet to come.

SHAW ON BOLSHEVISM.

George Bernard Shaw probably knew he was taking no considerable risk in saying that the idea of bolshevism would live regardless of the fate of the soviet government. This idea has had just the sort of beginning which invariably insures for an idea a long and flourishing career.

It has had the devotion of an efficient organization of sincere followers, men of practical ability as well as theoretical learning, and, what is more, men who were capable of great tenacity and heroic self-sacrifice in defense of their beliefs. It has had, likewise, the opposition of all great Powers, led by statesmen who were willing to oppose it by any means which a war-weary world would tolerate.

Such a combination of circumstances has seldom failed to redound to the welfare of any political, economic, or social idea, regardless of the intrinsic worth of the idea. It was thus that the idea of popular government rose to triumph in 1848, despite all the machinations which statesmen and Kings had perpetrated against it since the Congress of Vienna, in 1815. It might, indeed, be said that the success of such ideas increase in geometrical ratio to the stubbornness and bitterness of their opponents.

The counter irritant of toryism is a bad answer to bolshevism. A much better one is democracy, before which bolshevism is powerless.

PERJURY FOR $2.50.

The "under-cover" agents in Washington's prohibition enforcement service have pleaded guilty to perjury. They did not confess voluntarily or as a matter of conscience. They were trapped by the police and had no option except to acknowledge their crime.

As a first practical consequence of this arrest the District Attorney's office has taken steps to nolle pros a number of prohibition cases. Other consequences will follow. The vicious practice must be discontinued. Public opinion eventually will demand it. The American people instinctively resent this method of enforcing the prohibition law as repellantly at variance with our traditions and with our conception of dignity and decency. At his best he is a loathsome object. At his worst he is a more dangerous enemy to the safety of society and the security of the individual citizen than the violator of the law whom he is employed to catch. He will swear away any man's liberty for a pittance. The pittance in the instance under discussion was $2.50.

In Washington, as is known, this under-cover system has been developed to a forbidding degree. They have in addition to the official cheka, a voluntary spy organization in our national capital, conceived and sponsored by a self-deluded "better element," and blessed with religious sanction. A snooper for every block was the ideal of the promoters when they launched the movement. It is difficult to imagine a more despicable espionage. The dissolution of this hateful, demoralizing surveillance is also foreshadowed by the exposure of these perjured agents.

The agent provocateur, the under-cover man, the volunteer spy are intolerable. If such be the price of prohibition enforcement, the price is prohibitive.

TEN-DOLLAR DIPLOMACY.

If our Nicaraguan escapade continues to go amuck, perhaps we shall begin to realize that $10 diplomacy is quite as expensive and impotent in getting our desires down there as was the old, common dollar variety.

Ten-dollar diplomacy was the sort we tried when the dollar variety had become so repugnant to American public opinion that we either had to adopt different methods in Nicaragua or get out of that unfortunate little country and let its people handle their own affairs. It consisted in giving each enemy of our puppet Diaz and our international bankers a nice new $10 bill, in exchange for a promise to go home and forget all about the sovereignty of his country.

Now the killing of 300 Nicaraguans by our machine guns and bombing planes has proved this new diplomacy to be an utter flop. And it is hard to see, after a little thought, how it could have turned out otherwise. We had been getting whatever we wanted by means of the dollar, till we had become fatuous enough to think that we could get a patriot to sell out his country for a $10 bill. We would not do that ourselves, and we evidently had no right to think that the patriotism of a Nicaraguan insurgent was so greatly inferior to our own.

We would have done better if, instead of sticking to some sort of dollar diplomacy, we had attempted to imitate the methods by which Mexico is wooing the little Latin American republics. She is not trying to buy their independence with dollars. She is subtly enticing them into bonds of friendship by presenting them with broadcasting stations and other things which make modern life convenient and delightful.

Perhaps it is not too late for us to try such methods. We might begin by presenting each Nicaraguan patriot with a flivver.

THE RETURNING CARDINALS.

Under the same blanket with Chicago and Pittsburg, the Cardinals are homebound in a rather more advantageous position than they were in a year ago.

There has been some interesting psychology in the matter of what caused the Cardinals to slump so badly when they set out upon the present road tour. It was commonly supposed that the loss of Thevenow was at the bottom of it. Thevenow is to the Cardinal infield what Forest Park is to St. Louis. We all know what a quieting and calming influence Forest Park exercises upon the community, and it is so with Thevenow and the Cardinal infield. If you have seen that infield in a critical series such as that which wrested the league lead from Pittsburg last season, you know that when Thevenow gets the ball he first takes a quiet look about to see what should be done with it. It is at such times that infielders less than Thevenow throw the ball away.

Very well. Now to our muttons. The Cardinals braced up at Boston and won thirteen of the following fifteen games. They quit letting people kick them around—and they did not have Thevenow either. How can that be explained? Easily enough, in our opinion. The Cardinals had been booted from Chicago to Boston. That was the outside of their circle, and when they turned about they faced home. Home to the Cardinals has a steadying significance. No baseball team in the history of the sport was ever hailed by its home town as the Cardinals were hailed last year when they returned with the world's championship in their gamesack. Can the Cardinals face home and all the affection it bears them with no more fight in them than they had displayed going East? Could they say to Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Kansas, Texas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Iowa, and all those states which pulled for them day and night in the dreadful encounter with Babe Ruth, that their courage is gone and they cannot win any more?

Of course not. They put their backs to the sea, girded their loins about them, and massacred the Boston Braves. Then they advanced upon New York, Philadelphia, and Brooklyn. When they got done with those three teams their mothers did not know them. The Cardinals were themselves again. The thought of home, the gratitude they owe us, and the way we want them to show it, lent wings to their feet and strength to their backs. They were the champions again.

Which is as it should be, and for the proper reason.

THAT NICARAGUAN OUTLAW.

When the conservative followers of Diaz and the Liberals led by Sacasa were induced to sign a truce by the persuasive Col. Stimson there was one rebel down in Nicaragua who refused to surrender. Sandino took to the mountains with his ragged warriors. His tatterdemalion remnant has been pretty well smashed by our air force. They will probably be exterminated if they don't lay down their crude weapons. Sandino himself has been pronounced an outlaw by Secretary Kellogg.

That is a harsh decree, but in the long, long roll some rather eminent persons have been so stigmatized. With Latin bow and "Gracias, Senor," Sandino may take pride in the distinction our Secretary of State has conferred upon him. He might call the roster of our founding fathers, headed by the name of George Washington, and observe that they, too, were outlaws in the royal wrath of George III! Not so far from Managua is another capital—the delightful mountain city of Caracas—where Venezuelans long ago placed side by side in their Senate chamber the portraits of George Washington and the "Washington of South America," Simon Bolivar, whom the palace of Madrid may still account an outlaw. Voltaire lived long enough to be acclaimed by the Paris that execrated him as an outlaw, and the outlaw Garibaldi heard his name and fame extolled in the bel canto of Italian fervor.

Sandino has been initiated into an elect fellowship by our autocratic Premier.

THE BLACK HILLS OF NICARAGUA.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

MAKING A BOTCH OF IT.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

EVERYTHING happening in Nicaragua is logical. Our Government started out by backing the wrong side when it rejected the constitutional claims of Sacasa to the presidency of the country. Having refused to recognize him, it finally proceeded to down him. Under threat of force wielded by the United States Navy, Sacasa left the country, yet formally registering his protest. As in many similar cases not all of the "rebels" consented to be obedient, helpful and good. A few harum-scarums took to the woods to annoy the intervening foreign power and to pose as champions of liberty against the imperialistic colossus of the North. Three hundred of them got blown to pieces and lo! they have become martyrs to freedom in the eyes of every Latin American from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn.

The imperialistic game can sometimes be played so skilfully by experienced hands that the suzerain power can get away with a halo as well as with 10 per cent quarterly dividends on the investment. But we are making a botch of this empire business in Nicaragua. Killing 300 natives and wounding 100, a ratio of killed to wounded amounting to 3 to 1, was unavoidable perhaps. With the causes established, the consequences detonated. Yet this is not the way for Uncle Sam to sit pretty and play Old Beatitudes in Latin America.

HARBINGERS OF BUNK.

From the New Yorker.

"THE Pantheon de la Guerre," says a publicity blurb, "is being shown to thousands of enthusiastic Americans, as a messenger of friendship and a harbinger of peace." Rats! It is being shown, to whoever buys tickets and walks in, as a work of art, which it is. If one thing makes us madder than anything else it is the notion that war memorials, battleship maneuvers, war paints, citizens' military training camps, and a lot of other things, are "harbingers of peace." Harbingers of bunk.

HONEYMOONS ON CREDIT.

From the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

AN enterprising tourist agency in Boston is offering honeymoon tours to Europe on credit. A down payment is made and 10 monthly payments are arranged at 10 per cent. The agency reports a flood of applications. Love laughs at 10 per cent and deferred payments. The agency had no trouble getting financial backing for its honeymoon scheme. Seemingly there are Easterners who do not know what to do with their money. One wonders if installment buying and other plans for extending personal credit are not being carried to excess. They leave too much to the individual judgment of the purchaser, as it is not always possible for the seller to know how much the buyer is carrying on installments.

The big argument for installment buying is that it enables one to get what he wants when he wants it, but many of us are inclined to overload ourselves with deferred payments. Within reasonable limits installment buying is practical and sensible and has enabled many people to improve their circumstances. Many of us cannot make large purchases, such as houses, except on an installment plan. However, there is a great difference between a house and a honeymoon. If one cannot make his payments on a house the owner can take back his property, but a honeymoon has no such cash value after the newlyweds have seen it wane.

SPLURGING IN HOLLYWOOD.

NORMA TALMADGE in Saturday Evening Post.

FOR "The Song of Love," narrow, twisted streets with yellow, baked mud walls had to be laid out; typical Arab quarters were built, where swarthy, long-robed natives, veiled women, picturesque half-naked children, asses, camels and horses swarmed in heterogeneous confusion, and long rows of bazaars displayed their heaps of rugs, brassware, perfume jars, jewels and pottery.

In one scene Nooma-Hal had to blow bubbles. These soap bubbles had a way of evaporating at the wrong moment, and as there had to be 12 of them before the camera at one and the same time, we decided to use glass bubbles.

This meant engaging some Bohemian glass blowers of Prague, who happened to be appearing in a vaudeville act in Omaha. By the time we figured up the expense of transportation and salaries, the dozen bubbles cost more than $2000 for a flash lasting less than three seconds. Joseph Schildkraut, who played my leading man, remarked: "That's one way of blowing money in on a picture."

ANTI-SMOKE DEVICE FOR CITY APPROVED

atement League Official and Engineer Put O K on Grateless Firebox.

Unqualified approval of a device eliminate the city's black oke, was announced yesterday Louis M. Hall, chairman of the ancial division of the Citizens' oke Abatement League, and Os n Monnett, consulting engineer the League.

The device is a grateless, gravity-d firebox, patented and manuctured by John F. Slater of Des Moines, Ia. It is designed to eliminate the dense black smoke, generated at fire clay products kilns. Monett estimates such smoke constitutes 26 per cent of all smoke St. Louis in winter, and 42 per cent in summer. Slater claims his feed box will eliminate 95 per cent of kiln smoke.

Since coming to St. Louis last October, Slater has installed 200 boxes for local clay products companies, of which there are about 25. These have been watched carefully by Monett and he says a conservative estimate is that they eliminate 75 to 90 per cent of the smoke.

The Smoke Abatement League is not in the habit of indorsing commercial products Hall and Monett said, adding that they are making an exception in this case, as they believe Slater's device will prove of extraordinary benefit to St. Louis.

Hall said the League plans a vigorious antismoke campaign this winter and, if necessary, will employ spotters to report violations of the city smoke ordinances, which, he said, have been enforced loosely heretofore.

Growth in Brain Capacity Shown by Study of Skulls

case of the "Dawn Man" of Piltdown, the prehistoric man England has given us, who might appear, from the development of his brain, a "somewhat uncertain member of the human family," Dr. Tilney declares that "his brain attests he had come a long distance from that parting of the ways at which the human and anthropoid stocks separated."

This brain, found in the Piltdown strata of Sussex, not many miles from the English Channel, told of a race of human beings who inhabited England long before history had made its feeblest beginnings—long before Caesar's invasions and ages before the ancient Britons claimed the land.

In regard to the Rhodesian brain, reported in 1921, Dr. Tilney accedes to the opinion that this is "a strangely exotic cousin" of our human family. Actual remains of two skeletons were found in the Broken Hill mine, in Northern Rhodesia. Connected with the mine was a natural cave about 120 feet long, known as the "Bone Cave," because it contained a vast number of animal bones of which were so thoroughly impregnated with salts of zinc and lead as to make smelting of them worth while. At the bottom of this cave the human remains were found.

Bones in Mineral Deposits.

Like all the other bones in this enormous osseous deposit, the surfaces of the human skeletons were incrusted by zinc and lead, so that the action of the earth had failed to mineralize the deeper bony tissue, and this surface incrustation precludes any estimation of the geologic age of the bones. All the animals whose bones were found in the cave were still extant in Africa. The cave seems to have been an ancient feasting place for hyenas, which dragged thither their prey. There is even some remote suspicion that the human remains may have come to their last resting place in the Bone Cave in such a manner.

A cleft in the roof of the cave near its far end, where a human skull was found, suggests that the man and woman whose bones were found may have fallen into the cavern in relatively recent times. Yet certain features, especially of the skull, have convinced eminent authorities of the great age and specificity of this race.

Dr. Tilney states that this race is more brutal than that of any known human being, living or extinct. Its enormous eyebrow ridges are bigger even than those of the most archaic human, the Javan ape-man, and recall the conditions seen in the gorilla. The nose also merges into the face to form what in other animals is called a snout. Yet Dr. Tilney found that "the Rhodesian brain appears much superior to that of either the Javan or the Piltdown man."

The fossil remains of the Neanderthal race have been found widely scattered throughout Europe, in France, Belgium, Moravia, Croatia and even in the Island of Jersey. This remarkable race of men began to live in Europe from 150,000 to 200,000 years ago and had a racial existence of 100,000 years, about 10 or 15 times longer than any modern race has lived. The earliest discovery of this race dates back to 1848, when the Gibralter skull was found by Lieut. Flint.

Then, in the autumn of 1908, in the valley of the Dordogne in Southwestern France, the Abbes Bonyssionie and Bardon discovered the skeleton of a primitive man near the little village of La Chapelle aux Saints. The body rested on its back with its head toward the west, its legs, thighs and forearms flexed. The head had been especially protected by flat stones, and many skillfully worked flints of the Mousterian period surrounded the skeleton. There was every evidence of burial and burial ceremony about the skeleton.

A Race Near Apes.

Compared with the Ape-Man of Java and the Dawn Man, Dr. Tilney found that the brain of Neanderthal "showed expansion in all its major divisions," yet the important frontal lobes shows less expansion in proportion to that of the other lobes. The skull was low-vaulted and apelike in certain aspects. Dr. Tilney found certain features of Neanderthal "reminiscent of gorilla and chimpanzee" and declared that in this light it might seem that the Neanderthal brain was not yet wholly human.

Yet it is to this brain that Dr. Tilney has reference in the conclusion of his paper when he states: "From one age to another and from one race to the next, man has shown a steady gain in his power to control material conditions. Where he has stood still or perhaps even fallen behind is in learning to control his own nature." He draws a direct parallel between the life of this primitive man and our own.

He found no indication of different instincts or ideas as he continued to study the brains of more advanced humans, only an indication of greater skill and superior co-ordination of abilities which accounts for our cilization, which, symbolically speaking, is the result of the development of the hand. Now our civilization, which has not progressed in instinct from the age-old warring one of the Neanderthal, has, through this progression in the skill of the hand, conquered the air, thereby eliminating distance as a factor which, in the history of man, has always been conducive to peace.

Now, with the distance no longer a barrier, the suggestion is made that there is nothing to prevent the annihilation of our civilization by a fleet of bombers, as evidence shows other races of men have been anihilated after hundreds of thousands of years of existence. Dr. Tilney believes that only a better brain may prevent it — one whose development will admit a relationship between humans on a more advanced plane than that of the present, which is not much of an improvement over our predecessor, the Neanderthals.

KENTUCKIAN CHARGED WITH THEFT OF $400 POLICE DOG

Grand Larceny Warrant Issued Against Willard C. Spies Following His Arrest.

A warrant charging grand larceny was issued against Willard C. Spies of 2615 Victor street, yesterday, following his arrest on a charge of stealing a police dog.

The dog, Zim, a 5-year-old cinnamon colored animal, valued at $400 by its owner, Dr. Joseph J. Vizgard, of 3529 Lafayette avenue, was on the sidewalk in front of that address Friday afternoon when an automobile stopped at the curb. The man at the wheel coaxed Zim into the car and drove away with him.

A neighbor who witnessed the incident reported the car was a Chrysler and bore Kentucky license plates. Two hours later, police found a Chrysler, occupied by a man and a police dog, in Tower Grove Park. The man said he was Spies and was taking care of the dog for a friend.

Taken to the police station, the dog leaped forward in recognition of its master when Dr. Vizgard appeared. Spies then admitted, according to the police, that he had coaxed the dog into his car. He also was charged with driving an automobile without Missouri license plates. He came here from Kentucky two months ago.

He said he shot her in the abdomen and foot in self-defense. He was treated for a fractured thumb, lacerated scalp and bruised shoulder. She had been arrested 22 times for investigation and peace disturbances.

SEEK PERFECT STYLE MODEL FOR PAGEANT

Show Committee to Conduct Contests in Out-of-Town Newspapers.

A national quest for a perfect style model will reach a climax here with the presentation of the thirteenth fashion pageant of the St. Louis Style Show Committee, "Style Varieties," at the Garden Theater on the Olive Street road Aug. 4 to 17.

A jury of designers and buyers of women's apparel will select the most perfect model from the winners of contests conducted in various sections of the country by out-of-town newspapers.

Miss Myrtle Allen, Cleveland, O., high school senior, chosen from 514 contestants to represent her city, is one of the entrants who will come to St. Louis as guests of the Style Show Committee. Another is Miss Jeanne Carruthers, a tall brunette from Clinton, Ia.

The public will be permitted to make its selection from among the beauties with straw ballots. The public's choice, however, will not determine the selection by the jury.

The styles to be displayed at the pageant will reveal the season's trend toward a "sliding" waist line in women's dress to suit the figure of the wearer. Skirt lengths will remain short ,in spite of the campaign by weavers and manufacturers for long skirts.

"Style Varieties" will be presented under direction of Flint Garrison, chairman of the Style Show Committee, and Edwin Easter, producer and ballet master. The production this year centers on the search for the perfect style model being made by the American Retailers' Association in conjunction with the Style Show Committee. Easter has selected a group of dancers fro mthe St. Louis studios to present a program of ballet dancing.

12 ST. LOUIS BOYS ON VACATION TOUR MEET COOLIDGE

High School Youths Members of Party Making Trip Through the West.

Twelve St. Louis boys, students of St. Louis University High School, are members of a party of 44 students now on a trip through the Black Hills as part of their two-months' vacation in the West. A few days ago they met President Coolidge at the summer White House.

The boys range in age from 12 to 18, and are under the supervision of eight Jesuit brothers, including W. S. Bowdern and E. S. Preusch of St. Louis. This is the third year the travel vacation has been offered. Headquarters are maintained at St. Francis mission in the Rosebud Indian Reservation, and side trips are made to such points of interest as the Rosebud Agency, the Bad Lands, the Black Hills and the annual White River rodeo. At the camp, outdoor sports are encouraged, especially horseback riding, which is under the supervision of J. P. Markoe, a West Point graduate and former captain of cavalry.

CLARENCE R. COMFORT HEADS MERCANTILE UNIT IN DRIVE

Appointment of Chairman in Community Fund Campaign Announced By Chief of Division.

Clarence R. Comfort will serve as chairman of the Mercantile Unit of the Industrial and Commercial Division of the Community Fund campaign for 1928, which will be held Oct. 24 to Nov. 3, according to announcement today by Guy Oliver, chairman of the Industrial and Commercial Division.

Comfort is president of the Comfort Printing & Stationery Co.

The Mercantile Unit will organize the solicitation of all employes and officers of all mercantile establishments in St. Louis and St. Louis County which employ 25 or more people.

Increase in number of givers of from $100 to $999 and in amount given by these subscribers in the 1927 campaign held last autumn as compared with gifts of 1926 was primarily responsible for the success of the Community Fund campaign of 1927, as indicated by analysis completed at the office of the Community Fund, 2221 Locust Street. The 1927 campaign obtained subscriptions of $1,714,230, or $73,106 more than the $1,641,124 subscribed for 1926.

FAIRMOUNT FIRST IN HEALTH SURVEY

Downtown District Shown by Statistics to be Unhealthiest Place to Live.

A comprehensive picture of just what districts of St. Louis are fittest to live in is given in a year's survey, compiled up to June 30 by the Community Council and the City Health Division.

It may have some bearing on the immigration situation that the district found fittest, of all the 26 into which the city was divided, includes the Italian section known locally as "Dago Hill." That district, Fairmount, led even the West End, Tower Grove, O'Fallon Park, Northwest and Baden districts in freedom from communicable disease, unsanitary conditions, demand on free or part pay hospital care, dependency and delinquency.

Those six districts were found fittest, by averaging the fire criteria, in the city. They had less than 4000 cases of all fire criteria for each 100,000 population. Fairmount had least delinquency and unsanitary conditions, and led in the general average, "human wellbeing." It is, roughly, that district running west from Kingshighway to Dalton and January avenues, south of the Kingshighway viaduct and north of the Southampton district.

Least Disease in Southampton.

Least disease and dependency were found in Southampton, adjoining Fairmount on the south. The highest excess of births over deaths was found in Oakland district, adjoining Fairmount on the north, and bounded by Forest Park, the western city limits and Kingshighway. Least communicable disease was found in the Forest Park district, north of Oakland, including a section north of the park and east of Clara avenue, with Enright avenue, Union boulevard, Cabanne avenue, Academy avenue, Page boulevard and Taylor avenue as the other boundaries.

It may be observed that the degrees of wealth commonly attributed to various districts apparently had little to do with the way they stacked up on "human wellbeing," except in the case of Southampton, where the local tradition of "sturdy German stock" in that section was borne out by the minimum of dependency or requirement for hospital charity.

While Fairmount was first in the average, the West End district was fourth. Tower Grove was ahead of the West End, and North St. Louis beyond Fairgrounds Park, as roughly represented in three districts, had one district ahead of the West End and two but slightly behind it.

That was toward the upper end of the scale. But poverty showed up along with industrial location section in placing districts at the bottom. The worst of all was the downtown district, with 16,332 cases of communicable disease, hospital charity, delinquency, dependency and unsanitary conditions for each 100,000 population in the course of the year.

Mill Creek's Showing Low.

Mill Creek district was nearly as bad, with little improvement shown in Beaumont, directly west of the downtown district. Others with more than 9000 cases for each 100,000 population were the Garfield, Ranken, Hyde Park and Soulard districts.

The downtown district was worst in dependency and hospital charity requirement, Beaumont in delinquency, Mill Creek in lack of sanitation and Southwest in communicable disease.

While relation of birth to death rate was not taken into consideration in figuring up "human wellbeing," it was compiled and bore out another local tradition. The Forest Park district, including most of the heaviest apartment section of St. Louis, showed an excess of deaths over births of 1090 per 100,000. It was the only district which did not show more births than deaths except the downtown district, which showed an excess death rate of 90 per 100,000.

$6120 for Relief Work in June.

The St. Louis Provident Association spent in its 10 districts for relief work last June $6120, compared with $8087 in May, it was announced yesterday. Its Ashland District office, covering the northwest portion of the city, has been moved from 1042A North Taylor avenue to 2505 North Grand boulevard.

STUNTS BY ATHLETES ON BENEFIT PROGRAM

Miniature Track Meet to Precede Card-Philly Game Thursday.

A miniature track meet, spectacular tumbling stunts, exhibitions by women gymnasts, and finally a big league baseball game in which the world's champion Cardinals will oppose the Philadelphia team are among the events scheduled for the thirteenth annual Tuberculosis Day carnival, to be held next Thursday afternoon at Sportsman's Park.

Mayor Miller has issued a proclamation asking citizens to support the affair, the proceeds of which go to the fight against tuberculosis.

The official program for the afternoon begins with a band concert at 1 o'clock. This will be followed by the entry march of 600 athletes and entertainers. The music will be furnished by the Mail Carriers' and the Jefferson Barracks bands.

There will be a junior marathon race over a 2.9 mile course. There will be drills by the ladies' team from Alhambra Grotto and by the Knights of Columbus drill team. Girls from the public playgrounds will compete in two dash events. Tumblers from Sherman Park, under the direction of Dr. Hans Lehrmann, will engage in acrobatics beginning at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Lehrmann and Miss Bobbie Brewer, champion fencer, will engage in a bout with the foils. Two women's drum corps and two men's drum corps will give demonstrations.

Not to slight the national pastime, a three-inning game between two public school teams—the Madison champions and the Laclede runners-up—will be played as a curtain-raiser to the affray between the Red Birds and the Phillies.

LEGION POSTS OFFER PRIZES FOR BACKYARD PLAYGROUNDS

Aid Contest Sponsored by Safety Council Which Closes July 31.

Fourteen American Legion posts in the city have donated prizse for the backyard playground contest, sponsored by the St. Louis Safety Council and the Park and Playground Association. Lawrence McDaniel is chairman of the contest, for which entries will close July 31.

The contest is to encourage the creation of playgrounds by children in their own backyards, and the prizes will be awarded for the most ingenious backyards, from the recreation point of view, conceived and equipped by school children. To date 500 amateur playground makers have filed entries in the contest with the Park and Playground Association.

MEETING ON SMOKE ABATEMENT

The St. Louis section of the American Ceramic Society has announced plans for a meeting of representatives of all clay products manufacturers in the city, looking to a concerted program for the substantial reduction of smoke in this industry. Clay products plants in the city were responsible last winter for 20 per cent of the smoke, according to a survey made by the Smoke Abatement League.

William G. Christy, executive secretary of the Smoke Abatement League, has conferred with the heads of many clay products plants and has been promised, he said, full co-operation. W. M. Burrell, an expert on clay products furnaces, has been named a smoke supervisor and will devote his entire time to clay products plants in the city.

EMPLOYMENT RISE IN DETROIT BEING NOTED

New Models and Better Business Outlook Aiding Automotive Field.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, July 23.—A steady increase in the number of men employed here and the natural interest in announcements of the season's new models, has produced a distinctly better feeling in automotive circles. Dealers generally are cheerful, and look forward to a full season. The recent announcement that about 15,000 were taken on in the city's industrial plants in one week is typical of the general character of the news.

Dealers report that their shelves are generally clear of current models, in cases of companies that have not yet made clear their plans respecting new cars. Within a few days, two of the most important divisions of General Motors will announce new lines, both sixes, and one of the larger manufacturers has a new commercial vehicle ready to bring out.

Sales plans are elaborate, respecting presentation of new lines, an indication of the extent to which manufacturers are prepared to spend money and effort for business.

PAVING AT CHILLICOTHE ON U. S. 36 OPENED TODAY

After today travel going west on U. S. 36—the Hannibal-St. Joseph route, via Chillicothe—will not have to detour through Chillicothe to get to points beyond. The paving at this point will today be opened from the intersection of U. S. 36 and U. S. 65 south of Chillicothe to the end of the concrete slab east of Utica. This slab is 6.5 miles long.

Traffic going north from Chillicothe on U. S. 65 must travel over an earth detour beginning at Chillicothe and extending east beyond this point. This detour is six miles long.

The detour on U. S. 65 between Chillicothe and Trenton has been changed at Farmersville, but is well marked and in good condition, according to Highway Division No. 2 at Macon.

U. S. 61, North, to Hannibal Provides Fine Days Outing

Mark Twain and Cameron Caves, Riverview Park and Lover's Leap Among Interesting Points There.

Misguided, probably, by rumors that U. S. Highway 61 north from St. Louis to Hannibal is obstructed at certain points by construction, many motorists have not made this trip, thereby denying themselves a picturesque journey.

This trip is interesting, historically, as well as for its scenery, and can easily be made in one day. The distance one way is 126.2 miles.

Birthplace of Mark Twain.

Hannibal has many attractions not usually found in a town of its size. Primarily, it is significant as the birthplace of Mark Twain and in its environs this humorist concocted most of his fascinating tales. In the south end is Lover's Leap, where, so legend relates, a melancholy chief of the Illinois once leaped to death into the Mississippi River below because a beautiful Indian princess had scorned his love—Mark Twain cave and Cameron Cave, reminiscent of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, and Riverview Park.

Riverview Park, at the north end of town, is similar in character to the Chain of Rocks Park in St. Louis. It is on the bluffs of the Mississippi River, with splendid views to north, east and south. Excellent gravel drives wind through its confines, some skirting the edge of the bluffs. At vantage points along these drives lookouts have been erected. There one can see for miles up the Mississippi and far across into Illinois.

Riverview Park Easily Reached.

Riverview Park is reached over an excellent concrete street. On the way, at the foot of Cardiff Hill, is the newly erected statue of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn. The statue depicts the last meeting of the boys on the occasion of Tom's leaving to go out into the world. It was designed by Frederick C. Hibbard, and the sympathetic treatment with which it has been executed is perhaps due in part to that the sculptor himself was born and reared in Canton, Mo., but a fe. miles from Hannibal.

Mark Twain Cave and Cameron Cave compare favorably with Onondaga Cave at Leasburg, Mo., though both are smaller than the latter. Admission is charged and guides are furnished. Both have many beautiful stalagmite and stalagtite formations.

The motorist leaves St. Louis over U. S. 40—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Columbia—to the subway a mile east of Wentzville, where the new right-of-way of U. S. 61 runs north to Flint Hill. The junction of U. S. 40 and 61 is exactly 38 miles from the Post-Dispatch building. From Flint Hill it is 42 miles to St. Louis.

Detour to Moscow Mills.

From Flint Hill there is an 8.2 mile gravel detour to Moscow Mills. Here one again comes back on U. S. 61.

The main road leads through

HIGHWAY ATLASES, STATE ROAD AND VICINITY MAPS READY AT POST-DISPATCH

ATLASES of the Eastern and Western sections of the United States, individual road maps of the States, and a map of St. Louis and vicinity, are available at the Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau, first floor, Post-Dispatch Building, Twelfth and Olive streets.

The atlases are 50 cents each, or 66 cents by first-class mail.

The Eastern States atlas includes the Eastern provinces of Canada and Missouri. The Western atlas includes Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The State road maps are 10 cents each, or 12 cents by first-class mail.

The maps of St. Louis and vicinity show all roads, lakes and streams within a 50-mile radius of St. Louis and are 20 cents each, or 24 cents by first-class mail.

ALL MISSOURI ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

Eleven-Mile Detour on U. ?. 61 Between Flat River and Farmington Opened.

The highway situation in Missouri remains virtually the same as reported last week. Several heavy rains the past four days did little harm to dirt roads, with warm weather continuing and hot sunshine following each rain.

Earth roads at present are in better condition now than at any time this year. Maintenance crews have about caught up with their program.

Paving Being Pushed.

Paving on the remaining 1927 contracts of virtually 75 miles of concrete in the State is being pushed. In the Webster Groves division, comprising the 11 counties surrounding St. Louis all 1927 paving should be completed Aug. 15 if the present schedule is carried through.

The five miles of State No. 21 between U. S. 61—11 miles beyond Crystal City—and De Soto is rapidly being concreted. About 4000 feet of this stretch is already paved, giving the contractors an edge on their schedule.

No. 50 between U. S. 61—five miles east of St. Clair—and Union is also being paved on schedule, about 2500 feet already being laid.

An 11-mile detour around the paving on U. S. 61—the St. Louis-Memphis route, via Fredericktown and Cape Girardeau—has been established between Flat River and Farmington. This detour is good when dry, but becomes very slippery after rain. Likewise, it is very narrow and should be traveled cautiously at all times. It will be used until the end of 1927.

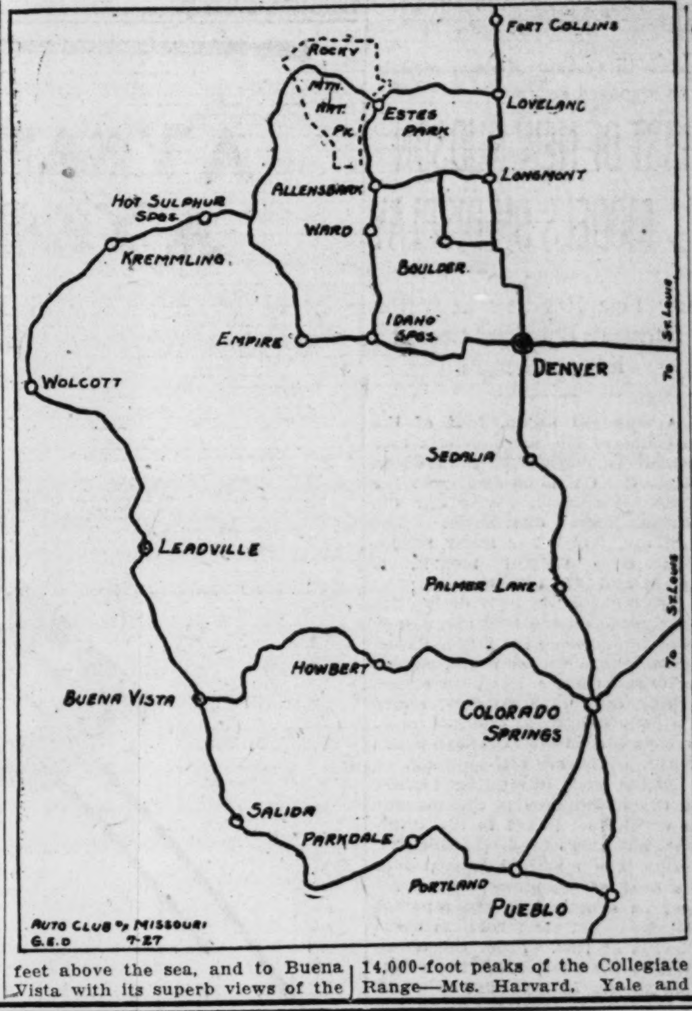
Williamsburg Detour Abandoned.

A planked detour about 600 feet long at the end of the present paving west of Williamsburg on U. S. 40—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Columbia—was put into use today and will be the route of travel for about 10 days, until the new paving at this point is completed.

Where to Go for Finest Scenic Thrills in Colorado

Numerous Short and Long Motor Tours Radiate From Denver and Colorado Springs.

Gorgeous Views of Mountains, Good Camping and Fishing Within 1000 Miles of St. Louis.



Some of the finest mountain scenery in this country can be viewed in a week to 10 days motoring through Colorado, but one must figure also on six to 10 days aditional for the trip from St. Louis to Denver or Colorado Springs and return, for it is a little more than 1000 miles from the Mississippi River to either of the Colorado resort centers.

A trip of surpassing scenic interest runs from Denver via Boulder or Longmont or Loveland to Estes Park and its girdling mountains, then over the 11,700-foot Fall River Pass and down to Grand Lake, back through the mountains, and over the 11,350-foot Berthoud Pass to Denver.

One can spend several days making shorter tours around Denver, and the mountains and glaciers in the Boulder region are justly famous.

From Denver there is a scenic run south to Colorado Springs and Manitou, with their canyons, caves, climb to the top of Pike's Peak and other attractions. One can drive his own car to the summit of Pike's Peak, 14,100 feet above the sea.

A favorite tour runs from Manitou over Ute Pass and via the Pike's Peak Highway to Wilkerson's Divide, whence there is an inspiring view over South Park to the massy Continental Divide, then down through South Park, over Trout Creek Pass, which is 9500 feet above the sea, and to Buena Vista with its superb views of the 14,000-foot peaks of the Collegiate Range—Mts. Harvard, Yale and Princeton. From Buena Vista, the road runs to Leadville with wonderful views of Twin Lakes and Mt. Elbert and Mt. Massive, rivals for the honor of being the highest peak in the Colorado Rockies.

One can return to Buena Vista and take the scenic trip to Salida and then via Canyon City and Pueblo back to Colorado Springs. Or he can continue from Leadville via Tennessee Pass and the canyon of the Grand River to Glenwood Springs, and make the big circle via Grand Junction, Montrose, the Black Canyon of the Gunnison, Monarch Pass, Salida and Canyon City and Pueblo to Colorado Springs. This particular circle trip runs the gamut of Colorado scenery.

Motorists with time to spare can cut south from Montrose into the rugged Ouray and Silverton region and on to Mesa Verde National Park and its cliff dwelling ruins.

Another interesting extension of the Colorado Springs circle trip is to drop south from Pueblo and en-

1-2- and 3-TON Federal Sixes
NOW available

Six-cylinder advantages—so thoroughly proved to truck owners by the Federal Big Six—are now open to operators of one and two-ton trucks.

These new Federals have exclusively truck engines with high turbulence heads for greater power and gasoline economy. Engine supports are rubber cushioned. A "Triple Seal" keeps oil, gas and air pure to save bearings. These and other costly features make high speed possible at low expense for operation and upkeep.

Like all Federals, they are trucks all through. They are the fruits of Federal's three years of experience in the six-cylinder field—17 years of building motor trucks exclusively.

Besides these three new Sixes, other new models have been added and vital improvements made in every chassis. These make the Federal line of Fours and Sixes the most complete in the industry today. Every unit of strictly modern design and thoroughly tested truck construction—every Federal the same high-grade business investment.

CHEVROLET SALES CHIEF VISITS ST. LOUIS PLANT

David E. Ralston, formerly regional manager of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. factory branch here, and now assistant general sales manager at Detroit, was a visitor at the St. Louis plant this week.

A day following his arrival, Ralston, accompanied by A. W. L. Gilpin, regional sales manager here, departed for Memphis to inspect the new parts and service building of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. branch there, which is to be in operation in August.

J. H. COLE NEW OLDS SALE PROMOTION MANAGER HERE

J. H. Cole, for three years factory representative in Missouri for Olds Motor Works, has been appointed sales promotion manager of the Olds Motor Works here, according to R. L. Samuels, general manager of the branch.

Cole succeeds L. R. Roebke, a Minneapolis man, who was sales promotion manager here for the past several months.

NASH TO HOLD "COME DRIVE" WEEK JULY 27 TO AUGUST 3

The Nash Motors Co., dealers throughout America, will conduct a nation-wide "Come Drive" week from July 27 to Aug. 3. During this period the public will be invited to ride in the new Nash models recently introduced.

In St. Louis the Southwest Nash Co., 3000 Locust street, and its 12 dealers in the St. Louis metropolitan district will carry out the program.

"The purpose of national "Come Drive" week," says F. C. McDonald, president of Southwest Nash Co., "is to give every one who is interested in automobiles an opportunity to see for himself how far Nash motors has gone in engineering and construction of these new cars in the matter of performance and comfort. We want everyone to know all about the new Nash and it makes no difference whether those who participate in the courtesy drives are in the market for a new car or not. Dealers and salesmen during this period will not talk sales."

FIRST OF NEW HUDSON MODELS ON DISPLAY

New Line Has Few Body Refinements But Many Radical Engine Changes.

A standard sedan, first of the new line of Hudson super-six cars announced recently by the Hudson Motor Car Co., is on display by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. Hudson-Essex distributor. The new car, which has many refinements over present models, is priced at $1626 delivered.

Little change in body design has been made on the new car. Body beading and hood beading has been added, and a wicker panel, adding to its rackishness, has been placed behind each rear window, above the body moulding. Another interesting addition are Parabean headlamps, which are self-focusing.

The most interesting feature of the new motor is the manner in which fuel is fed to the cylinders, and there fired. In this new design, the manifold is cast into the head of the motor, with passages so arranged to the separate cylinders that each receives equal charges of fuel. From the manifolding, the fuel enters the cylinders by an entirely new plan—a design which centers around the F-head type of valve arrangement, with the intake valve in the head and the exhaust valve at the side of the combustion chamber.

"The intake valve is located in the combustion chamber so that it overlaps in part the exhaust valve, which is placed below it. Thus coming in from above, the fuel enters the combustion chamber freely through a large-sized valve. If there is any heavy wet mixture in the fuel, it drops directly on the exhaust valve below. As this valve becomes heated as soon as the motor starts firing, this heavy gas is immediately vaporized and passes into the cylinders in an ideal condition for firing. At the same time the dropping of this mixture on the exhaust valve helps keep that unit at a more moderate temperature, adding to its life.

Prolonged tests of this motor have proved, it is said, that this feature of design prevents the difficulty of raw gasoline entering the cylinders, thence draining down the cylinder walls to cause dilution of the motor oil. The exhaust valve is a highly effective 'hot-spot,' built within the motor itself.

"In the actual firing of the fuel, even more important advances have been perfected. Fuel compression has been raised to an exceptionally high degree. In all modern motors this is recognized as requisite to high efficiency, but the problem has been to avoid fuel 'knocks.'

"Hudson design accomplishes this by the shape of the combustion chamber and the location of the spark plug. Instead of being placed at the center of the combustion chamber the plug is located to the extreme side, near the two valves. When a spark is generated, the first explosion of the highly compressed fuel is extremely sharp. But the first effects are localized in the small chamber around the valves, and serve chiefly to seat the valves very tightly. The flame then spreads over into the cylinder. There is exercises a pushing rather than an explosive effect upon the piston. The effect may be likened to modern cannon explosives—which push the projectile all the way down the barrel."

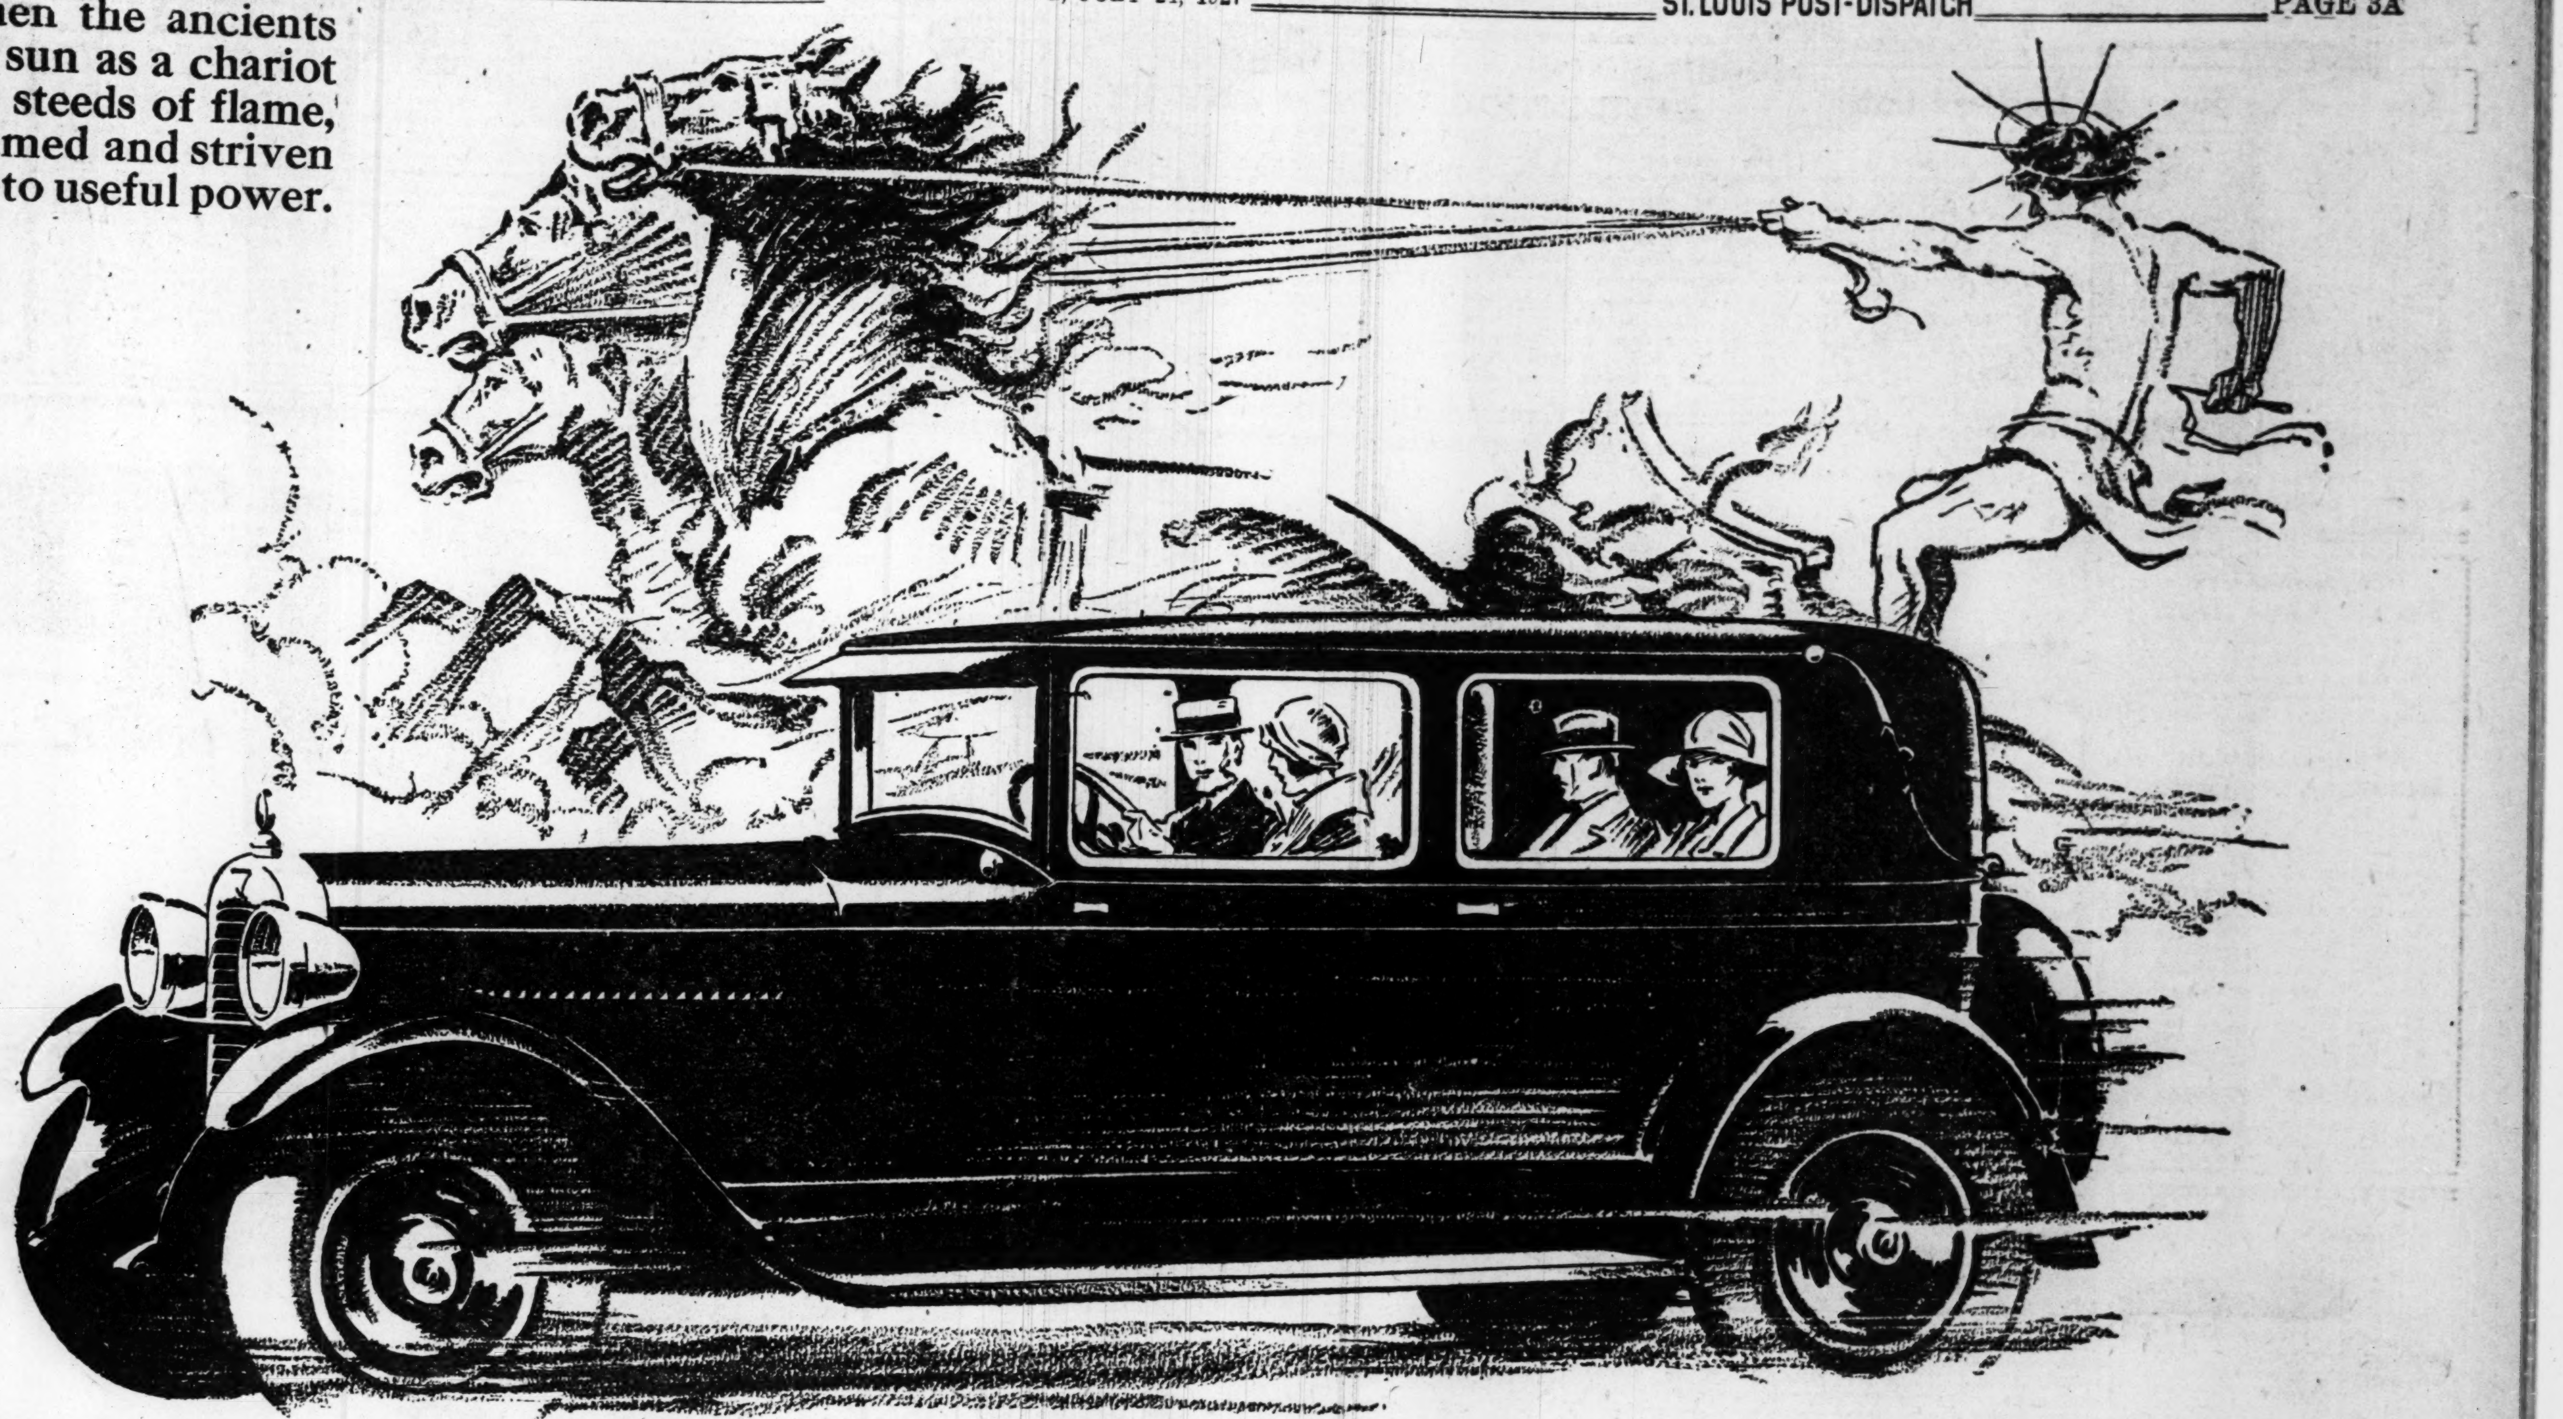
From days when the ancients conceived the sun as a chariot of fire sped by steeds of flame, men have dreamed and striven to harness heat to useful power.



A Great Companion Invention to the Super-Six Principle -

Turns waste heat to power

This new companion invention to the Super-Six Principle converts heat, heretofore wasted in all other types, into useful power.

Together they combine the highest efficiency in power generation, and the maximum efficiency in power transmission ever achieved within our knowledge.

It makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world.

Steam Engine Smoothness and Power

The new Hudson motor delivers a flood of rugged power from standing start closely resembling the mighty and elastic power of the steam engine. Yet at all speeds this power is buoyant, vivacious and instantly answerable to the lightest touch of the throttle. In it are combined all advantages of speed, snap and performance of the high compression motor, with the smooth flexibility of the low compression type.

Spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motors is eliminated. Ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels. By Hudson's method of vaporizing raw gasoline that enters the combustion chamber, oil dilution is prevented, and heat formerly wasted through the exhaust becomes useful power.

In all ways today's Hudson is the greatest ever produced. And it is natural that its public reception surpasses anything in Hudson history.

S PROMISE— —WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT—BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

MANY IMPROVEMENTS IN NEW BUICK CARS

Engine Power Increased—Gear Shift Now Standard—Handsomer Body Lines.

Twelve luxurious new closed Buick models and four de luxe open Buicks—all with standard gear shift, more powerful engines, new two-tone interiors, new radiator and hood lines, lower bodies and many other improvements—are being shown in St. Louis today by the Vesper-Buick Automobile Co., distributer, and its associate dealers. Prices at the factory have not been changed.

The new lines and color schemes, as shown at a specially staged and lighted display to Buick dealers of the territory Tuesday, evoked continual applause from the automobile men. They were equally enthusiastic over the engine and chassis improvements.

Greater Riding Comfort.

Riding comfort is emphasized in the new Buicks. Hydraulic shock absorbers are standard both front and rear, having been built into the car together with new and more flexible springs. Seats and cushions have been specially built and tailored for comfort.

Interiors are in contrasting colors, seats being in a different shade than side walls and head lining. Upholstery is a special mohair plush. All closed models have arm rests.

Steering wheel posts are adjustable. The wheel has been designed to suit any sized hand or arm length. Driving seats in two models may be moved an inch forward or backward.

All light controls are on the top of the steering post.

A new two-way lock locks both ignition and steering wheel, but does not lock the wheel by the mere act of shutting off the ignition. Drivers who park with wheels slightly turned toward the curb, to prevent rolling, enjoy the same protection against theft as others, with the new Buick. They may turn the wheel lock to the "locked" position, after so parking, with the assurance that the car will stay put. The lock will snap into place the instant the wheels are straightened.

Looks Improved.

Buick lines are lower than ever before, partially due to a new frame which permits powering bodies two inches on the series 115 and three inches on the series 120 and 128 without lessening road clearance.

Don Lee type windshields, which can be folded forward, have been adopted for the touring and roadster models, which marked gains in beauty of line.

All models are wider and roomier, and all closed models have new roof lines. Radiator shells have been deepened and changed somewhat in lines, so that Buick hoods are even more attractive than before. Elimination of the vertical molding on either side of rear body panels is an improvement in sedan bodies. Narrowing windshield side pillars and top bar insures even clearer vision. The Buick radiator emblem also has been redesigned.

Buick fenders are now of the custom-built, full rounded crown type. Massive headlights, redesigning of the bottom curve of the radiator shell, and distinctive three-bar bumpers are among other refining touches.

There is also a new Buick combination tail light, stopping light and backing light.

Buick Engine Improved.

The Buick engine is, in the main, the same power plant. As in the 1927 models, the counterweighted crankshaft and torsion balancer absorb vibration, making the engine exceptionally smooth and quiet running. The vacuum ventilated crankcase, oil filter, air cleaner and thermostatic water control are retained.

But certain engine improvements have given the new Buicks even greater speed, getaway and hill-climbing ability. The increased power gives a reserve that is of marked value in driving in traffic or on the grades.

Scientific design of Buick's cylinder head, in light of engineers' long study of combustion problems, has increased the portion of fuel transformed into useful power, thereby bettering performance. The new head is of the spherical type and is non-detonating.

Tighter seating of valves, and consequent saving of power, result from a new head design whereby the valve seats are more evenly cooled. Still further power increase is assured by enlargement of the entire exhaust system.

A quick-acting warm air heater, which delivers pure heated air to the car's interior at touch of the dash control, is special equipment.

All four wheels are carefully balanced to insure even running.

There is no gap between the rear fenders and the frame in Buicks for 1928. The gasoline tank cover and wings cover all holes, giving a finished appearance.

Improvements in the tire carrier obviate danger of breaking brackets by carrying two spares.

Even the foot rest is covered with high grade carpet material, matching the floor covering.

Incidentally, it is possible to change one of the new Buicks back to the old Buick gear shift. But the standard shift can not be installed in a 1927 or older Buick.

WILSON MOTOR CAR HEADS ATTEND FACTORY MEETING

George A. Krauss, president of the Wilson Motor Car Co., Paige distributer, and S. A. Dinwiddie, sales manager for the company, left St. Louis Wednesday to be present at the distributers' convention of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. at Detroit. At the meeting the Graham brothers, who recently acquired the Paige interests, will outline their operation policies which go into effect August 1.

235,000 CARS BUILT BY CHANDLER IN 15 YEARS

Company Started With 100 Men—3000 Are Now Employed in Various Duties.

During the 15-year period it has been in business the Chandler Motor Car Co. has paid $31,939,412.82 to its workmen and has made 235,379 cars.

Officials of the organization have always held that a motor car manufacturer should build all of its cars and, to this end, the company makes 95 per cent of everything that enters into its cars and, at the present time is manufacturing practically all of its own bodies.

Two great plants are completely equipped with the latest type of machinery and nothing has been spared to provide the finest tools obtainable to make motor cars.

The company first started manufacturing automobiles in a small plant having only 48,000 square feet of floor space. There were only 100 employes at that time.

Today the large Chandler plants cover 885,761 square feet of floor space and 3000 men are employed by the organization.

One of the most interesting places is the experimental research laboratory in the Euclid plant where there is great activity day and night.

A score of experimental engineers and mechanics are always at it testing, proving, tearing down, building up, changing this motor part and that to the thousandth part of an inch in order to increase the efficiency of Chandler power plants so that owners of these cars may have the best that the industry offers.

Tire Dealers Hold Meeting.

The July meeting of the Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis was held Tuesday evening at the Claridge Hotel beginning at 8 o'clock. James Merrill, president of the association, presided.

NEW OAKLAND-PONTIAC DEALER

The Clay Goodloe Motor Co., 5841 Delmar boulevard, has been appointed authorized Oakland-Pontiac dealer, according to E. A. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Car Co., Oakland-Pontiac distributor.

HYPER-EXPANSION
—the reason why Hupmobile 8 leads the eights in every single phase of performance

You cannot drive the distinguished Hupmobile Eight for ten minutes without being startled and delighted by its differences in performance.

Hyper-expansion of fuel in Hupmobile's magnificent straight-eight engine is the reason—and you'll readily admit it is convincing.

Where fuel expansion in average-good motor car engines is rated from 65 to 80 per cent—and in the better makes from 80 to 100 per cent—in the Hupmobile Eight, it actually rates 116 7-10 per cent.

Obviously, the Hupmobile Eight's greater degree of fuel expansion insures a correspondingly greater efficiency in operation and performance—more power, more speed, faster acceleration, greater smoothness and marked economy.

Since its first Eight was built, Hupmobile has offered hyper-expansion as a regular engineering feature of every car of the straight-eight type—the first to perfect this ideal which is coveted and now striven for by every other maker in the industry.

Let us place a Hupmobile Eight at your disposal—for you to make whatever tests you wish—to discover for yourself the impressive difference it makes in every phase of performance.

PEED OF 65 M. P. H. FOR NEW DODGE CARS

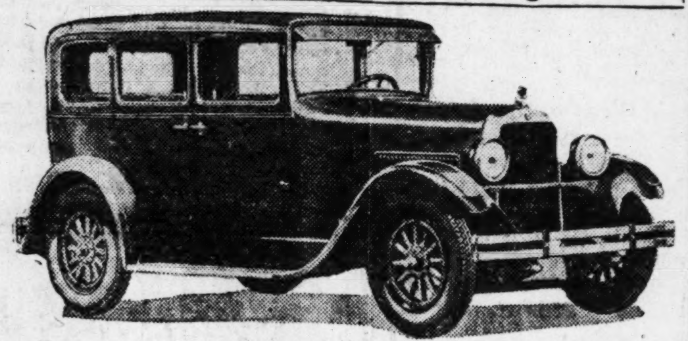
r-Door Sedan of New Line Just Introduced Lists at Record Low Price.

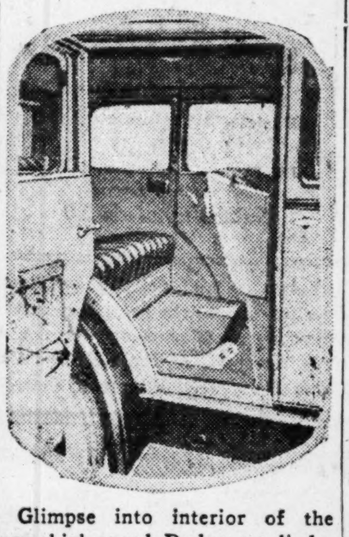
By "SPENCE."

The new Dodge car, introduced be the "fastest four-cylinder omobile in this country," proved a test run Tuesday that claims a speed of 65 miles per hour justified. It ought to be fast powerful; it is both. For it the same new type engine that installed in the last Dodge del a few weeks ago, and it is rter, lighter, more compact and ch better streamlined. And that Dodge four-cylinder engi runs as smoothly as if it had six cylinders or more.

Sedan in New High-Speed Dodge Line



Four-door sedan model of the new Dodge four line which is just being shown in St. Louis.



Glimpse into interior of the new high-speed Dodge 4-cylinder sedan.

Acceleration of the new Dodge is swift, sure, zippy—from 5 to 25 miles per hour and again from 40 or 45 on us. That means a lot, both in traffice and in passing other cars on the highway. At fast touring speeds the new cars purrs along.

Speed, Power and Looks.

As for pulling power—there is a grade on the Warson road, in St. Louis county, that bothers a lot of powerful cars. Tuesday, the new Dodge—a sedan model—made it in high, going over the top at 30 miles per hour.

As for looks—well, the new Dodge actually has that custom-built appearance that is so striven for by every automobile designer nowadays. The four-door sedan model of this new Dodge, which is being shown by the Tate Motor Co., Inc., lists at $875 at the factory, the lowest price ever placed on a Dodge sedan.

Dodge Brothers' reputation has been built on dependability and rugged construction of its cars. Speed has never been a factor in their sale. Nor will it be made the main issue in marketing the new cars, it is said, although it is a feature on which the public will focus attention.

The new cars are said to be capable of going 25 miles on a gallon of gasoline at average touring speed.

Production will include three body types—a four-door sedan, a cabriolet roadster and a coupe. Only the sedan is available for delivery, but within a short time the roadster and coupe will be in dealers' hands.

The new car appears to be as large as the former four-cylinder Dodges. Seating accommodations are more than ample for comfort. Due to smaller diameter of the wheels the cars hug the ground, giving a greater safety factor at the high speeds which they are capable of making.

The top of the sedan stands 70⅝ inches above the ground whereas the former sedan measured 73 25-32 inches. Even with this reduction in height there is more head room in the new sedan. The distance from the back of the front seat to the pedals and to the steering wheel, the two dimensions which are probably most important to drivers, are the same as in the former roomy Dodge sedan. The seats are wide, soft and comfortable.

The bodies are of unusually rugged construction, built of steel, staunchly reinforced.

The new and powerful "124" motor furnishes power for the new cars. This motor was developed by Dodge engineers after years of experimentation, and is the best and most advanced four-cylinder motor the company ever built. On the brake block test it develops 40 horsepower, which is one horsepower for ever 68 pounds weight of the new sedan. When it is considered that most cars have from 97 to 135 pounds of weight for each horsepower, the explanation of the high speed of the new cars is apparent.

The light weight per horsepower shows up in flashy acceleration in traffic, in pulling power on the hills and in a straightaway speed on the open highway that is said to permit quick pulling away from all fours and many sixes.

The gear ratio has been changed so that the engine speed is slower than before, permitting sustained higher speeds without vibration.

Even when the new motor was put into the larger line of cars May 1 it gave 20 per cent quicker acceleration, 15 per cent more power and a 20 per cent saving in gasoline consumption. In the new and lighter cars these advantages are even more pronounced.

The steering gear ratio of the new line is 13 to 1, making the cars exceptionally easy to handle in traffic. They can be turned in a circle with a radius of only a trifle over 19 feet and their compact design permits parking in the smallest spaces. The steering knuckles are fitted with ball bearings and the wheel responds to the touch of a finger.

The standard gear shift is used on the new cars.

THREE NEW FEDERAL SIX-CYLINDER TRUCKS

One Has 50 M. P. H. Speed—Two-Ton Model Has 7-Bearing Crankshaft.

A truck with a road speed of 50 miles per hour is one of three new 6-cylinder Federal models of one and two-ton capacity that have just been announced. These are the lowest priced Federal trucks ever built.

"In the past three years the Federal 'Big Six' has thoroughly proved the advantages of 6-cylinders in truck field," according to G. Edward Bliel, manager of the Federal Motor Truck Sales Corp. "Every modern engineering feature of proven worth is found in the engines of these new sixes—seven main bearings in the 2-ton models—high turbulence heads—rubber mounting—gasoline, oil and air purifier.

The high turbulence head has been found to increase speed and save gasoline. Balanced crankshafts, with the greatest possible number of bearings in proportion to engine size, reduce vibration. The large area of bearing surface also aids in making operation smooth.

The engines have three-point suspension and are mounted on rubber cushions. Oil filter, gasoline strainer and air cleaner are provided, making a "triple seal" to keep dirt and other foreign substances out of the engine.

The one-ton model, known as the Scout Six, has a standard wheel base of 124 inches, with a loading space of 91 inches back of the seat. The chasses also is furnished in 136 inch wheelbase at extra charge. The dynamically balanced crankshaft has four bronze backed interchangeable type main bearings. This engine, designed especially for truck use, has been in use two years. It has a double venturi carburetor, swan manifold and single dry plate clutch. The transmission has three forward speeds and reverse.

The Scout Six is capable of a speed of about 50 m. p. h. The chassis follows closely the same engineering principles as those of the Federal 4-cylinder model of the same capacity. The latter has been in service for three years and still is in the Federal line. The bodies are interchangeable on these chassis.

The new Federal six 2-ton capacity is furnished with beveled gear or worm drive. The worm drive type is for operators whose hauling calls for solid tires and the extra strength afforded by this construction. Five different wheel bases are avalable for any type of hauling.

This truck engine has seven large main bearings. This Federal has a transmission with four forward speeds. Multi-speed transmissions are becoming increasingly popular and the extra forward speed adds considerably to the flexibility of this Federal. The gearbox is mounted amidships and two short propellor shafts are used instead of one long shaft.

"There is a greater need every day for speed in hauling," said Bleil, "and these new Federal sixes are designed both for quicker getaway and to withstand long trips at sustained high speeds. For this reason, not one of these new models has a governor."

Amazing increase in Pontiac Six value made possible by the economies of the world's newest and finest motor car factory

High quality and low prices had been winning thousands to the Pontiac Six. Sales had been breaking all records—140% greater since January 1st than the corresponding period of last year!
Yet, due to the economies of increasing production in the mammoth new $12,000,000 Pontiac Six plant, savings were being effected. And these were passed to the public, not merely in the form of a history-making price reduction—
—but with the additional value represented in fashionable new Duco color combinations.
So now the Pontiac Six is not only the lowest priced six—but the only low-priced six—offering:
—the smartness, luxury and safety of Bodies by Fisher—the extreme smoothness, power and stamina of the largest engine used in any six priced up to $1,000—the long life and economy assured by an oiling system which forces 250 gallons of oil an hour through the engine at 35 m.p.h.—and such convenience features as tilting beam headlights with foot control, and VV windshield!

BIXBY ASKS FOR FUNDS TO KEEP AIR UNIT HERE

President of Chamber of Commerce Warns St. Louisans Guard Division May Be Taken Away.

LETTERS REQUEST $20,000 AT ONCE

Administration and School Building at Flying Field to Cost $20,000 Is Necessity.

A campaign to obtain increased support for the Air Division of the Missouri National Guard and thus insure its continued maintenance in St. Louis has been undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce.

In letters being sent out over the signature of President Harold M. Bixby, St. Louisans are asked to contribute approximately $20,000 to the support of the Division, which faces the possibility of being moved to another city, because of the lack of adequate interest in St. Louis.

The letter containing the appeal for funds points out that "people everywhere look to St. Louis to take a leading part in the future of aviation" but to accomplish this it is essential that the city put its "aviation house" in order first, by supporting its existing facilities.

"The whole United States has become 'air-minded,'" President Bixby's letter, asking for contributions, says. "People everywhere look to St. Louis to take a leading part in the future of aviation.

"The immediate and most practical means of St. Louis measuring up to what is expected of us is first to put our 'aviation house' in order and then add on those facilities which are necessary if we wish to go forward.

"Our aviation program should be as follows:

"1. Support the Air Mail.

"2. Acquisition by the city of a downtown landing field.

"3. Bring airplane factories here.

"4. Support the 35th Air Division.

"The Air Mail is increasing all along—continue to use it.

"The Chamber of Commerce Aviation Committee is working with the city authorities on a downtown field.

"Several aviation industries are considering this location.

"The Thirty-fifth Air Division is the real subject of this letter. When in 1923, we secured for St. Louis the headquarters of the Air Division of the Missouri National Guard, it was with the understanding that this community would support their activities. This support has not been given. Other cities are seeking the location of the division in their communities and for this reason St. Louisans should bestir themselves in retaining it. To lose the Thirty-fifth Air Division at the peak of our recognition as an aviation center would be poor advertising indeed.

"Its practical program for immediate necessities includes an administration and school building at the flying field. This would provide quarters in which the flying lessons of today would be imparted to the aviators of tomorrow and form an important nucleus for St. Louis' aviation development.

"This building, with fireproof oil house, additional and long past due repairs to floors of hangars, equipping the field for night flying, would cost, upon the most conservative basis, $20,000.

"And yet, it is not proposed to ask large contributions, or give nothing in return. The committee in charge of Col. Lindbergh's reception had 2000 memorial medals struck off which cost $2 each. It would be easy to dispose of these in the United States at large, but they feel that St. Louisans are entitled to the first opporunity for their purchase and are therefore asking that you buy as many of these medals as you want, adding to the cost price the amount you care to give to the Thirty-fifth Air Division.

'Make checks payable to Thirty-fifth Air Division and mail to St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. State your name, address and the number of medals you want and they will be delivered by return mail."

BRITISH FLYERS PLAN TRIP TO NEW YORK IN AUGUST

Col. Minchin and Leslie Hamilton To Take Off From Clifden, Ireland.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 23.—Colonel F. F. Minchin, of the British Imperial Airways, and Leslie Hamilton, British air taxi owner, who are planning a trans-Atlantic flight to New York and return, have selected the second week in August as the approximate time for their takeoff.

If their present plans hold they hope to make a non-stop flight from Clifden, Ireland, to New York, there refuel and then on their return journey attempt to reach Vienna.

The flight will be made in a long range Fokker monoplane driven by a British Jupiter air-cooled motor.

125 BOY SCOUTS ON AUTO TRIP VISIT ST. LOUIS

Camp Pitched in Forest Park While They Attend Ball Game and Tour City.

Twenty-five scouts from Burlington, Ia., accompanied by their scoutmaster, E. L. Dehner, and five other men from that city, all on a summer automobile tour, spent two and a half days in St. Louis last week, arriving here early Tuesday morning from Springfield, Ill., where they had camped in the rain. Camp was pitched at the old tourist camp in Forest Park, through the permission of Park Commissioner Pape, and from there the scouts were taken on tours of the city by local scout officials.

The boys saw their first major league baseball game Tuesday afternoon, passes having been given to the whole troop by Babe Ruth. A tour of Forest Park was made Wednesday, and other points of interest in the city were visited Thursday.

Camp was broken Thursday evening, the troop leaving for Kansas City.

TERCENTENARY OF DISCOVERY OF OIL IN AMERICA OBSERVED

Found by Franciscan Missionary 300 Years Ago in New York State.

By the Associated Press.

CUBA, N. Y., July 23.—Thousands of persons gathered here today to commemorate the tercentenary of the first discovery by a white man of oil on the North American continent. Three hundred years ago last Monday, Father Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a Franciscan missionary, trod through the wilderness into the heart of the Seneca Indian country to view the source of an oil which the Indians called "Atouronton."

The small limpid pool of oily water which he saw stands today encircled by a huge wooden iron-bound cask, sunk nearly level with the ground, and still in territory forever the property of the Indians. A stone's throw away is a boulder upon which is the twentieth century's tribute to the explorer, in the form of a bronze tablet giving pertinent dates, and saying of the spring itself: "Its history forms the first chapter in the development of the petroleum industry in America—a gigantic world enterprise transforming modern life."

Around this boulder and tablet centered today's centenary exercises.

VISITS EXCHANGED BY GERMAN AND FRENCH BOYS AND GIRLS

Project For Novel Exchange of Students Managed By International Pacifist Organization.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN July 23.—Eighty boys and girls of high school age, all from families of modest means, have left for France to spend the vacation as guests of French families having boys or girls of the same age. In return, eighty French boys and girls will come to these German families five weeks later for a stay of equal length.

The project for this novel exchange of students was managed by the League for Human Rights, an international pacifist organization. The League feels that if Frenchmen and Germans of the generation now growing up learn to know each better, the talk about the "traditional Franco-German enmity" will be bound to die out.

Both the German and the French governments showed their sympathy for the scheme by granting free visas and greatly reduced railway fares. Teachers accompanied the students as far as Paris, where the German embassy took them in charge and saw to it that they reached their final destination safely.

FAILS IN THIRD EFFORT TO CUT ROBERT E. LEE'S TIME

Memphis Sportsman Blames Driftwood—Will Make Another Attempt With Motorboat.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 23.—Dr. Louis Leroy, Memphis physician and sportsman, who landed at Greenville, Miss., yesterday, in his motorboat Bogie, after failing for the third time in his attempt to lower the record of the Robert E. Lee between New Orleans and St. Louis, said today he would make another attempt in the near future.

"There has never been so much driftwood in the river," Dr. Leroy said. "We broke four propellers, bent a strut and shaft between Vicksburg and Natchez which put us out of the running."

He said that just as soon as it was possible for him to take another vacation, he would make a fourth attempt to lower the record of 90 hours and 31 minutes set by the famous river boat in the race with the Natchez in 1870.

Boy and Girl Scout Activities

'BUDDY' PLAN TO HOLD OLD AND YOUNG SCOUTS

System Adopted by Troop 30 Gives Large Boys Task to Perform.

A new double-purpose plan, both to hold the older members in the troop, and to advance the younger ones more rapidly in scouting, has been developed by Boy Scout Troop 30, of the new Y. M. H. A. The plan, known as the "Buddy System" makes each of the older scouts responsible for one younger boy, preferably one who has just become a tenderfoot. The older scout acts as the recruit's instructor, coaching him in the various phases of scouting, taking him on Buddy hikes, attended by only the two, and holding with him Buddy practice sections.

The object of the system according to Scoutmaster Goldsmith, is primarily to solve the older scout problem, and, by giving these boys responsibilities and a certain leadership, help them retain their interest in scouting instead of dropping out of the troop after they pass their sixteenth birthday. It is partly an elaboration of the Junior Assistant Scoutmaster idea, this latter, making junior officers of the older scouts, being practical in a troop where there are but a few older boys, but working less smoothly when the older-membership is large.

"The whole troop cannot be officers, but the whole troop can be leaders," is the theory behind the Buddy system, which so far has proved remarkably successful. Test passing among the Tenderfoot scouts has increased greatly, and, on the other hand, some of the older boys have developed into expert scouting instructors. Each scout turns in a card at the end of the week, detailing his activities for that period, tests passed, and buddy work. The patrol leaders turn in similar cards for their patrols, all cards being filed as permanent records.

Both the Buddy Hikes and practice sessions are proving popular, in some cases as many as three a week being held by one couple.

GIRL SCOUTS CAMP ON OWN PROPERTY

First Section of Summer Outing Near Pevely Will End Next Saturday.

The first section of the first summer camp to be conducted by the Girl Scouts of St. Louis on their own property is now under way at the newly-purchased Pevely Reservation, a 259-acre woodland tract five miles northwest of Pevely, Mo. Sixty-six girls and a camp staff of six are attending this first section, which started last week and will end next Saturday.

Summer camps have been conducted by the local Girl Scout Council for several years, but always on whatever piece of property they could obtain permission to use, last years camp, for instance, being held at Jefferson Barracks. Efforts to obtain a permanent site, however, were unsuccessful until this spring, when the council announced the acquisition of the Pevely tract.

The new reservation is under the charge of Miss Julia B. Schmidt, who is assisted by Miss Margaret Taylor, head of the Brownie movement in this district, and Miss Gertrude Bishop, a Golden Eaglet and lieutenant of Troop 1. Miss Frances Moulton is business manager, and there are in addition a registered nurse and a Red Cross life saver in camp at all time. A "trading post" is maintained at camp to sell such objects as stationery and stamps, knives, handicraft material, and material for nature projects.

The camp may be reached either by Missouri Pacific train to Pevely, and thence by auto to the camp, or by automobile on Highway 61. Visitors are allowed on Thursdays from 9 to 5 o'clock.

Scout Notes

West District.

A series of patrol hikes are being taken by the scouts of Troop 6, which is continuing to meet regularly throughout the summer despite the absence of Scoutmaster Forsythe, who is director of scout activities at Camp Mondamin, Tuxedo, N. C. Assistant Scoutmaster Lynes is in charge of the troop during Scoutmaster Forsythe's absence.

Troop 87 has two new assistant scoutmasters, Charles Fischlowitz and Theodore Shakofsky, both of whom just joined the troop. A number of the scouts are attending camp, Scout Mack Pollack being in the Tepee, of All-Summer Camp, Carl Gallop and Carl Fixman attending the 21-day section, Billy Stone the third section, and Jerome Spector and Melvin Roman the fourth.

Ten scouts of Troop 32, under the leadership of Chairman Charles Sparks of the Troop Committee, went on an overnight hike to Creve Coeur last Saturday and Sunday.

Sixteen scouts and five committeemen of Troop 59 held an overnight hike to Kenwood Springs last week-end. A council fire was built Saturday evening.

North District.

Scoutmaster Simons of Troop 5 has returned from a vacation at Camp Irondale, where he was awarded three merit badges, in pioneering, horsemanship and carpentry. To pass the pioneering test he repaired the camp signal tower, which was aging to a dangerous condition. Two scouts from Troop 243 visited the last meeting of Troop 5.

South District.

Four new scouts were taken into Troop 160 at an investiture last Friday evening. Parents and friends attended.

Letters of appreciation for a troop "good turn" in placing street signs along Broadway from the city limits to Jefferson Barracks have been received by Troop 143 from Postmaster Michener of St. Louis, the Western Union Messenger Boys' Association, the Carondelet News and from several business houses. These letters were read at the last meeting of the troop. Scout Lloyd Kirk is leading in the troop "mystery contest" with 50 points. These points are awarded for participation in various scout activities. Four scouts from the troop will attend the next section of Camp Irondale.

Headquarters Notes.

For the second successive week four troops were awarded a perfect score of 100 for camping excellency at the Lions' Den last Saturday and Sunday. These troops were 82, 131, 182 and 194. Individual scouts were also present from Troops 2, 6, 27, 34, 134, 200 and 227, a total of 71 scouts and scoutmasters being in camp. The scouts of Troop 2 built a foot bridge for their camp project.

Control of Loud Speaker Volume.

Do not try to control loud speaker volume by burning the tube filaments brighter or dimmer. Such control is erroneous and ruins tone quality. A high-resistance variable resistor across the secondary of the first audio transformer, or across the terminals of the loud speaker acts as an excellent volume control.

(Central time). It will bring an address by Judge J. F. Rutherford, president of the International Bible Students' Association, speaking before the convention of that association in Toronto.

David Mendoza, who directs the orchestras of the Capitol Theater, in the broadcasting through KSD every Sunday evening was for four years first violinist in the New York Symphony Orchestra.

John Corigliano, violinist, will be featured in the Atwater-Kent Hour through KSD this evening. Andre Benoist will be the accompanist.

The episode in the romance of the Coca Cola Girl, to be broadcast through KSD Tuesday evening, will, among other things, find Freddy and Jimmy, each having an unexpected and unpleasant bath. The scene is on a steamer en route from Havana to New York.

Wednesday Night on KSD

Gay, tuneful selections, characteristic of their name, will be played by the Ipana Troubadours through KSD Wednesday evening.

Thursday Night on KSD

The National Light Opera Co. will present "Lovely Galatea" through KSD next Thursday evening, beginning at 6 o'clock. This is a mythological comic opera, by Franz von Suppe, and is decidedly tuneful.

The cast is to include Rosalie Wolfe, Frances Paperte, George O'Brien, Harvey Hindermeyer, John Quine, John Oakley.

Friday Night on KSD

The City Service Orchestra and Quartet are to give the following program through KSD Friday evening:

Cities Service March, Bourdon; "Merry Wives of Windsor," overture, Nicoli; "Orientale," Glazounoff; "Shepherds Hey," Grainger; Piano duet, Frank Banta, Rosario Bourdon; "Indian Dawn," Dominick; "War Dance," Ckilton; Selections from "Madame Sherry," Hoschman; Silver Moon, from "My Maryland;" "Pan American," Herbert; "When We Were Sweet Sixteen," Orchestra and Cavaliers.

Edna Thomas, known as "The Lady from Louisiana" will present a program of Negro spirituals and Creole melodies, in the broadcasting of "Musical Miniatures" through KSD Friday evening.

The rollicking sea song, "Three for Jack," will be the first solo by the "Mysterious Baritone" in the program of the La France Orchestra through KSD Friday night. The second vocal selection will be Arthur Penn's "Sunrise and You," a simple love song.

When living on heavily traveled streets the loud speaker should be placed in some room at the rear of the house where the noise will not disturb an otherwise good concert.

Darkness Helps Operators "Read" Weak Signals.

Radio operators, who sit at a receiving set for hours at a time and must frequently "read' code signals of heart-breaking weakness, often turn out all light and listen in total darkness. By relieving their sensitive eyes of all strain, and keeping only their ears "alive," they are able to retain whole messages in their heads, and to write them down later on paper without a mistake.

One "70" Drive makes a "70" Buyer—
A truism among the motor wise

Chrysler "70"—the most discussed and the most praised car in America—steadily increases its hold on the six-cylinder public.

Because everyone who rides in or takes the wheel of the "70" is captivated by its brilliant performance, its new measure of riding ease, its distinctive charm of line and color.

The claims of other cars will seem to you a mere waste of words once you have let Chrysler "70" prove itself in a test of your own choosing.

The truth about the "70" is almost unbelievable unless you have had personal experience of its amazing pick-up, its velvety 70 and more miles an hour, its low center of gravity comfort, the safety of its hydraulic four-wheel brakes, its unfailing wealth of power and its life-long dependability.

We'd like to have you drive the Chrysler "70". It will afford us great pleasure to arrange a test so comprehensive that you will know beyond doubt why Chrysler "70" grows in popularity by leaps and bounds.

New Chrysler "Red-Head"

The new Chrysler "Red-Head" high-compression engine—always identified by the red color of the engine head—is available in all body types of the Chrysler "70" at slight extra cost.

The "Red-Head" is the first engine of standard production to offer to those who seek supreme performance the fullest advantages in extra speed, acceleration and hill-climbing ability by the use of high-compression fuels.

The new "Red-Head" can also be included in the earlier "60", "70" and Imperial "80" models at a low charge.

ECONOMICAL AND ATTRACTIVE HOME FOR SUBURBS

Many Different Materials Blended to Give Beautiful Effect of Exterior at This Old English Type of Residence.

This economical and attractive home has a particular appeal to one in moderate circumstances. The variety of treatment combined with the pleasing use of different materials blend into an effect seldom attained.

The broken roof with the interesting curve at the eves is a pleasing feature in the design. The half timbered and stucco upper story with panelling under the windows stopped by a horizontal moulded strip is a versatile treatment.

The entrance motif with circular headed door constructed of heavy wood with a small leaded glass opening is a detail often seen in the residences of quaint English villages.

The interior of the house is no less delightful than the exterior. One enters into a large spacious reception hall with beautiful well turned steps. An arched opening leads into the dining room and living rooms respectively. These large openings allow easy passage between the rooms.

The living room is treated with a fireplace in the center of a wall while a pair of French doors on one side and a book case on the other balance it.

A large dining room is directly connected with a breakfast room which opens directly into the conveniently arranged kitchen.

A beautiful hectangular stair hall allows passage to the sleeping rooms on the second floor.

The ideal features of this plan are its large rooms well lighted by large steel sash windows and supplied with clothes closets.

A large storage room, a nicely arranged closet and the porch over the garage are unusual accesories.

FLAT GRAINED WOODS TAKE AND HOLD ENAMEL

To enamel well a wood must take and retain a smooth finish. The enamel cannot remain flat unless the grain of the wood remains flat. If the grain "raises" (shows a corrugated, or wavy surface) the enamel covering must follow the pressure of the wood beneath, and "raise" with the wood. Obviously, the beauty of the enamel finish will be marred.

Any wood can be planed, sandpapered and rubbed—until it presents a smooth surface for enameling. When first enameled it looks perfect. But there are inherent qualities in all woods that cause them to respond to time and atmospheric changes. When wood grain raises, the enamel finish becomes "wavy" and eventually cracks. When wood swells too much, enamel cracks. Enamel is brittle; it does not bend.

Hot Rooms in Summer.

It is because heat passes so readily through upstairs ceilings and the roof that sleeping chambers are insufferably hot and "stuffy" in summer. The scorching heat of the sun is held in the attic and ceilings long after night falls, and keeps the room temperatures uncomfortable although the outdoors may have cooled.

For Suburban Homes.

For suburban places and country estates a woven wooden fence makes a pretty garden inclosure, providing both interest and protection.

Repossessed Cars
Will Be Sold to Satisfy Mortgages
We purchase motor lien installment paper from registered dealers and occasionally are compelled to repossess a car because of default of the original purchaser. As the purchaser had in every case made an initial down payment of at least 33⅓%—in many cases more——and generally has further reduced the balance due by monthly installment payments, these cars represent unusual bargains; and we will arrange terms to suit you. We have on hand a large assortment of makes and models.

Chose the medium most persons read to find the losers of lost articles. That medium in St. Louis is the POST-DISPATCH. Call MAin 1111. Give the order to an Expert Adtaker.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

M. D. D.—We advise you to consult an expert hair dresser.

TRIXIE AND JACK—Inquire at some of the dog and cat hospitals listed in the classified section of the telephone directory, regarding the warts in your dog's mouth.

HELP.—You should report the plight of the children to the Children's Aid Society, 3538 Westminster; Missouri Welfare League or to the Providence Association, 2221 Locust street.

CENTRAL.—The United States has no national flower. Congress has made several attempts to select a flower but nothing definite has been decided. Missouri's State flower is the hawthorne blossom.

OLA.—Asparagus should be eaten with a fork after being severed into small pieces of convenient size to eat. Fried chicken should be cut apart with a knife and fork, except when served informally, as for a picnic lunch.

SUBSCRIBER. — Blondes are usually considered to be persons with light eyes and fair, light complexions. Brunnettes are persons with dark eyes and dark or olive complexions. The color of the hair is considered unimportant in most cases.

MISS FELICE.—To blanch almonds place them in a pan of cool water and let the water come almost to the boiling point. Remove the almonds from the hot water and place them in cold water for a few minutes. The skins may be easily rubbed off and the nuts dried on a clean towel.

A. C.—To color a meerschaum pipe fill the pipe and smoke down about one-third or to the height to which you wish to color. Leave the remainder of the tobacco in the pipe and do not empty or disturb it for several weeks or until the desired color is obtained. When smoking put fresh tobacco on the top and smoke to the same level.

X. Y. Z.—If the oil painting to be cleaned is valuable you should send it to a restorer of paintings and have it put in good order. However, they may be cleaned by rubbing with a raw potato. Rub gently with a circular movement, and sponge off the dirt with tepid water. Dry with a very soft cloth, or better still, a silk handkerchief. Care must be taken not to wet the back of the canvas.

INQUISITIVE.—The Navy Department says that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is the first private citizen who has ever been brought over from Europe on a United States warship at the command of the United States Government. The Memphis at that time happened to be in European waters and had also received orders to return to this country so no additional expense was made by the Government bringing him home.

GRATEFUL.—To rid the house of bed bugs make a mixture of half pound of camphor and a gallon of gasoline. Let stand all night. Then, with a syringe, inject the liquid into every crack of the flooring and above the baseboard. If there is moulding along the junction of the walls of the ceiling, this also requires attention, as the creatures are often there in squads. Saturate the mattress and spray the bedstead; then close the door and keep it shut for two days. At the end of that time it may be opened and aired. September 1, 1884, was on a Monday.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

ANXIOUS.—There is no penalty for lending an auto license.

TROUBLED MOTHER.—As the girl was more than 18 years of age the boy cannot be criminally prosecuted.

MRS. EMMA L. W.—The rubbish may be burnt in a receptacle in the yard and one must keep a receptacle for the ashes, but this need not be concrete.

THANKS.—If you are the only one that signed the note you are the only one that is liable. (2) To sell one's things for room rent they must be held for six months and then advertise the sale for five days in the paper.

UNDECIDED.—An administrator is not entitled to commissions on property held as joint tenants by husband and wife. But a written contract is necessary to create a joint tenancy. An administrator's commission is 5 per cent of the disbursements.

ANXIOUS.—If the property was owned by joint tenants it would go to the wife when the husband dies, but a written contract would be necessary to establish a joint tenancy. The wife is not liable for the husband's debts unless they were for family necessities.

JOHN H. B.—A person over 21 years of age does not need a license to drive a car unless he is a chauffeur. (2) You do not need an operator's license to drive some one else's car. (3) The fee for a non-resident fishing license, of the State of Wisconsin is $5.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

SUFFERER.—No trace of the disease in question could remain in the system for eleven years without showing some signs of its presence, and any outbreak is necessarily due to a new or more recent infection. No strain, however severe, could bring on a case of the disease, as the specic germ of this disease only is capable of doing so.

A READER—Nature tends to heal fractures of the skull as it does fractures in general and unless you are suffering some pain or inconvenience it is questionable whether any sort of operation or treatment is necessary after a lapse of six months. However, this is a matter for a surgeon to decide after a thorough examination and the degree of danger would depend entirely upon the nature and extent of the operation.

E. J.—There are so many and such a variety of possible causes for pains in the back of the head that it would be entirely useless for us to make a guess at the true cause of the trouble, and thus must be definitely determined before proper treatment could be employed. We, therefore, suggest that you consult a physician for diagnosis and treatment and if you desire us to, and will send a stamped self addressed envelope, we will direct you to a physician who will render you this service.

NEW YORK.

IF A SCENARIO writer had set out to write the perfect scenario, each part ideally rounded and balanced, the villains of the piece set against a charming young girl and a fine young man, who marry despite everything in the last 100 feet of film, he could have achieved nothing more perfect than what has just happened to the Vanderbilt clan.

The heroine is Grace Vanderbilt, who is now 27 years old. The hero is Henry Gassaway Davis III, two years her junior, a mining engineer with an active ambition despite the fact that he has the backing of many millions and is of a fine Southern family.

The obstacles are Grace's mother and father. Grace Wilson Vanderbilt and General Cornelius Vanderbilt, who wanted her to marry a title and thus crown her mother's social career. Half the nobility of Europe, all of whom Grace periodically rejected, lend a proper atmosphere of minor villainy, mustachios, ducal insignia and diplomatic intrigue. The scene is the world which the Vanderbilts frequent—smart Continental watering places, Newport estates, with an occasional ancestral castle thrown in for good measure.

And of course the charming young pair did elope in the last few feet of film despite parental threats, intimidations and even, it is reported, bribes. They are now on a wedding trip in Canada that will conclude with an inspection tour of certain of Davis' mining interests in British Columbia.

TO ADD an historic touch there is a cutback to Grace's mother and father which partially explains Mrs. Vanderbilt's resolute and prolonged opposition to the marriage.

Before her own marriage Mrs. Vanderbilt was Grace Wilson, the daughter of an old West Virginia family. For three generations there had been a feud between the Wilson and Davis families. That feud went back to the buccaneering days immediately after the Civil War, when there was a keen rivalry for certain railroad properties. If Mrs. Vanderbilt wasn't pleased when she learned that her daughter wanted to marry into this family, her emotion was considered human if not logical.

She apparently had forgotten what intense opposition the Vanderbilts had offered to her marriage with Cornelius. The two had married despite threats of disinheritance.

Moreover, the Vanderbilts determined that this newcomer into the tribe would be treated as a newcomer, despite the fact that the Wilsons were very nearly as wealthy and really much older than the Vanderbilts. The new Mrs. Vanderbilt was equally determined to establish a place for herself which should be as important as that of any other Vanderbilt.

Being a resourceful woman, she was not long in accomplishing this. Just one thing remained to establish her position in that little group whose names might comprise a de luxe edition of the Social Register. That was to marry Grace to a more important title than any of the Vanderbilts had ever married before. And that would mean a strenuous effort, for Consuelo Vanderbilt had married the Duke of Marlborough—and, incidentally, had a very unhappy time of it until she secured a divorce.

It was to this end that Grace Vanderbilt was so carefully raised and educated. Her finishing schools were the most exclusive. To her own natural good looks were added all the social graces. She made her debut in November of 1918 at a dinner given by her father and mother at Beaulieu, the magnificent Newport summer estate of the Vanderbilts and the occasion was one of the most brilliant affairs of the season.

She spent much of her time abroad. Sometimes she was in the company of her mother, sometimes in the company of one of her aunts, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney or the Countess Szechenyi. She was always welcome, even to royalty. She was often reported engaged. But she was always the most emphatic in denying the reported betrothals.

In the last few years since her debut she has been repeatedly reported engaged to both Prince George and Prince Henry, younger sons of the King of England, in whose company she spent much time while in England. She was also reported engaged to Lord Ivor Spencer Churchill, son of the former Duchess of Marlborough, who was Consuelo Vanderbilt; Lord Ashley, son and heir of the Earl of Shaftesbury; Lord Leopold Mountbatten, brother of the Queen of Spain; the Marquis of Donegall and Prince Dietrichstein of Austria. William Chanler of New York and Newport and Albert H. Ely Jr., one of New York's best known younger lawyers, were among the wealthy young Americans whose names were coupled with that of Grace Vanderbilt.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

General Cornelius Vanderbilt and his daughter, Grace.

SINCE 1918 Grace Vanderbilt has been exposed to titles and titled society in fulfillment of her mother's plans. Yet the brilliant European marriage never materialized to crown her mother's social career. Perhaps the career of her brother, Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., who democratically entered the newspaper business at the bottom, despite his family's opposition, had something to do with her attitude. At any rate, last fall she returned to America, 26 years old and heart free. And here she found romance.

She was staying with friends in Washington and attended a ball given by Mrs. E. B. McLean, wife of the publisher of the Washington Post. There, among the throng of diplomats and foreign decorations that she knew so well, Grace Vanderbilt met Davis.

Davis at the time was staying with his mother, Mrs. Armstead Davis, at her Washington home. He had graduated from Princeton in 1924 and was taking post-graduate work at the Columbia School of Mines. His grandfather and namesake, Senator Davis of West Virginia, was once the Democratic nominee for Vice President and had made millions in mining.

The young man's father, John T. Davis of Elkins, West Virginia, recently entered suit in the District Court at Washington, naming his son Henry as chief defendant and claiming that while he himself was incompetent mentally and physically in 1923 a trust had been drawn making his son the controller of the great estate. He alleged that he had recovered his health and wished to break the trust. The suit is still pending.

ON HIS mother's side he is a great-grand-nephew of the late George Story, noted American portrait painter. He is a member of the Racquet Club, the Princeton Club, is a Son of the Revolution, has a bachelor apartment at 277 Park avenue, New York, and recently he was named vice president and general manager of the Armstead Mines, of which his uncle, Colonel Henry Howell Armstead, is president.

It was with this young American, after being exposed to the most desirable bachelors of Europe, that Grace Vanderbilt fell in love. Three months after the first meeting, young Davis went to General Cornelius Vanderbilt and his wife and asked for the hand of their daughter—and failed to win their blessing.

The declaration of the young couple was a severe blow to the plans of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. It meant the end of her long cherished social ambitions for her daughter. Worse, it meant that Grace would marry into a family with which her own had been traditionally bitter for generations. Grace's mother obtained a promise that the engagement would not be announced for another three months.

On June 1, according to information supplied by a member of the family, Davis again went to his present mother-in-law and asked that the engagement be formally announced, as reports of it had already crept into the newspapers. Mrs. Vanderbilt asked him to wait only until the Yale-Harvard boat race at the end of the month. A party was to be arranged for the occasion, and it was promised that many members and friends of the Vanderbilt clan would be present on board the yacht Atlantic for the formal announcement.

Grace Vanderbilt and her mother were among the first on board the yacht at New London to witness the famous battle on the Thames. Other guests followed. Davis arrived shortly before the yacht was to leave the pier and was greeted with the warning that he could not come aboard.

A scene followed, and at last Davis left the yacht vowing to marry his sweetheart at once. In the course of the excited discussion Mrs. Vanderbilt is reported as having exclaimed:

"I will never, never permit Grace to marry into the Davis family."

AFTER a secret meeting with Grace, Davis decided to beg parental permission again to marry. This he did two days before the marriage, and after a stormy session with General and Mrs. Vanderbilt, Davis told the parents that he would marry their daughter before the week was up. During the interview Grace could only stand by and plead for permission to marry the man of her choice.

Shortly after midnight Grace telephoned her brother, Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., and told him of her troubles.

"What shall I ever do?" she asked.

"Why don't you leave?" Cornelius Jr. is reported as answering.

On leaving the Vanderbilt home after his last interview with her parents, Davis had Grace's promise to marry before the week was over, as he had to depart for British Columbia.

Davis and Grace then consulted his uncle, Colonel Henry Armstead, who is a brother of Davis' mother. Plans for the elopement were completed. The three drove to the New York municipal building and Deputy City Clerk J. J. McCormick married the couple. Armstead was best man while Patrolman Patrick Kelly, who is attached to the License Bureau, was called in to act as a second witness.

As soon as the ceremony was completed Grace Vanderbilt Davis wrote a note to her parents, telling them of the marriage and expressing her readiness to be remarried in their presence at a church ceremony. In her note she told her parents where she could be reached by telephone as late as 9 o'clock in the evening, but although she and her husband waited at the appointed place, the apartment of her brother, Cornelius Jr., until nearly 10, no word came from the parental home at 640 Fifth avenue.

DESPAIRING of parental sanction at last, the bride and bridegroom nearly two hours later went to the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, known as the Little Church Around the Corner, and were married again in a religious ceremony read by the Rev. Culver B. Alford, the curate.

As in the earlier ceremony in the municipal building, Armstead was the only friend of the couple present. Edward Owen, night watchman, filled the part which earlier had been occupied by a policeman as witness.

Following their marriage, Davis telephoned his mother in Washington, when Mrs. Davis is reported as saying:

"I am pleased at your marriage if you are happy. Happiness is all that counts."

Davis did not notify his father of his marriage. According to a friend, he will not, as the father and son have been estranged many years. Davis senior divorced the mother of young Davis a year after he was born. It was thus, with only the blessing of her brother and mother-in-law, that Grace Vanderbilt was married. And after spending the night with friends and waiting vainly for word from her family, the young couple left for Canada.

There is much speculation now in the Vanderbilt set. Grace's brother, Cornelius, is inclined to believe that the traditional scenario conclusion, "And they lived happily ever after," will hold true for his sister and the young man of her choice.

Her friends say she will not enter the competition for social prestige as did her mother when Mrs. Vanderbilt found the Vanderbilt clan frowning upon her. Grace is really more of an intellectual than a social type, say her friends.

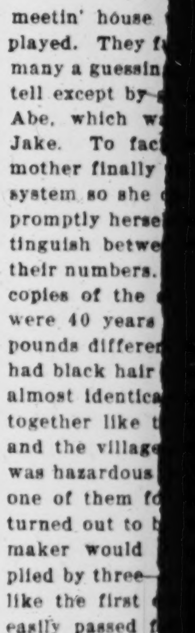
But in building these triplets a house, Knoxville started something. It learned to its consternation that triplets are not so rare as it once suspected. And it discovered that in Tennessee they are perhaps less rare than anywhere else.



Over in the woods of Union County, north of Bull Run Creek, three old men heard of the notoriety that attaches to triplets and came to town to claim their due—and, incidentally, to celebrate their seventy-first birthday. They felt that the fame which should attend them as triplets long had been overlooked. Nobody ever had built them a house. That is, nobody except their pioneer father, who emigrated from Virginia back around 1850 and put up a log cabin in the wilderness of Hickory Valley.

IN THAT wilderness, which has remained such a wilderness that there isn't even now a railroad in the entire county, they grew up—Abraham, Isaac and Jacob Waggoner. Like the Johnson triplets, they had seven brothers and sisters. But as far as public notice was concerned, they won only that local acclaim which arose from the fact that until they were 40 years old nobody could tell them apart. Indeed, in their childhood, their mother used to keep them numbered like football players so she could recognize them at sight, and in their cut-up days they used to take turns going out with the same girl without her knowing the difference. Except for noticeable difference in height and weight, they still showed remarkable resemblance when they came into Knoxville the other day to share the triplet spotlight with Archie, Kermit and Teddy Johnson.

What Knoxville is going to do for them and for three other sets of triplets which have bobbed up in various quarters of Tennessee since the Johnson trio arrived hasn't been decided. It is probable that Knoxville will do nothing more than extend congratulations and present the keys to the city. It could hardly be expected to provide for the triplets of other communities as it did for its own. And, indeed, the Waggoner brothers, at least, are not asking for presents. All they want is recognition. They don't need a new house. They are now well-to-do farmers and have several pretty good houses of their own back in Union County. They ask only to be recognized as the venerable triplets which they are. That demand seems to them entirely just, for they are believed to be the oldest triplets in America and possibly in the world.

THE world which does homage to triplets was a long time hearing about Abraham, Isaac and Jacob Waggoner, but it is said by very old-timers of Hickory Valley that their advent into the community was occasion for prolonged marvel and comment, although big families of 10 or 12 children or more were quite the rule in the populated regions of Union County. Knoxville Builds a Home for Its Triplets

And the Resultant Publicity Brings Another Set, 71 Years Old, Out of the Woods to Claim Their Share of Renown.

KNOXVILLE, Tennessee.

WHEN triplets were born to Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson early this year, less than 12 months after a pair of twins had joined that prolific household, solemn record of the fact was made in the New York Times, with a semi-serious inquiry:

"What," asked the newspaper, "is Knoxville going to do for its triplets?"

"It is going to build them a house," responded that proud city, and Knoxville carried out its promise.

A committee of leading Knoxville women assembled and held a Triplets' Tag Day and raised $700. Real estate men contributed a building lot. Building material dealers donated the materials and the carpenters' union came to the front with their labor. Nearly every business house in the city was represented in the furnishings. Thus, within a few months, the three new Johnson babies, Archie, Kermit and Teddy, together with their seven brothers and sisters and their young parents—the father was 32 and the mother 28—were comfortably installed in a brand-new bungalow.

But in building these triplets a house, Knoxville started something. It learned to its consternation that triplets are not so rare as it once suspected. And it discovered that in Tennessee they are perhaps less rare than anywhere else.

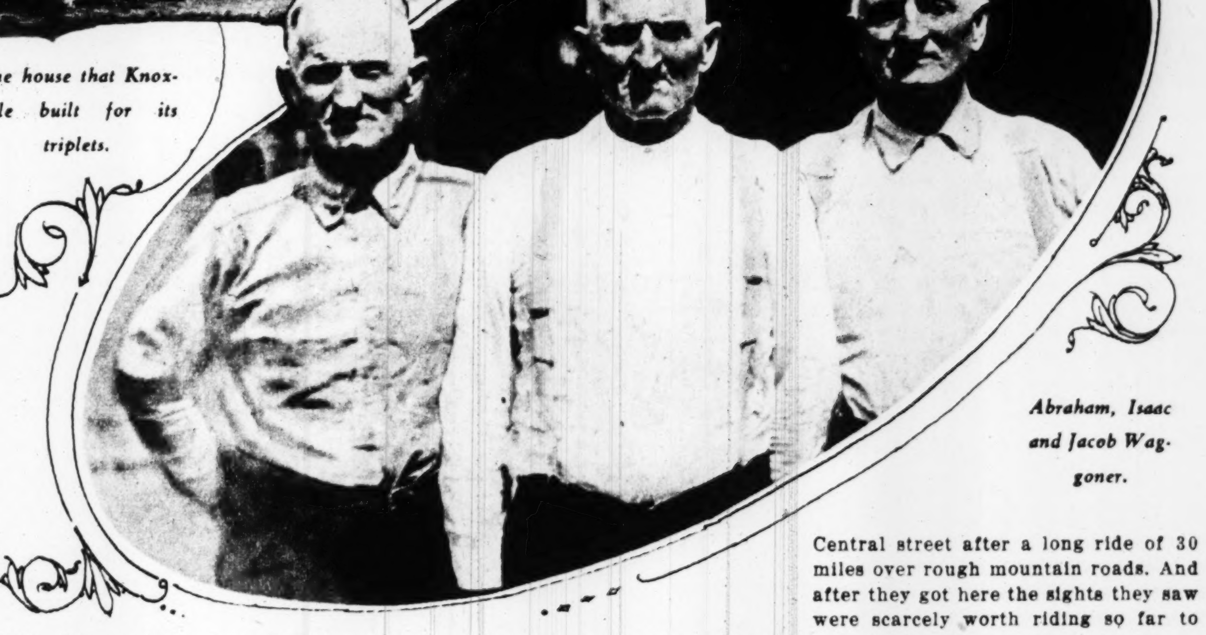
Over in the woods of Union County, north of Bull Run Creek, three old men heard of the notoriety that attaches to triplets and came to town to claim their due—and, incidentally, to celebrate their seventy-first birthday. They felt that the fame which should attend them as triplets long had been overlooked. Nobody ever had built them a house. That is, nobody except their pioneer father, who emigrated from Virginia back around 1850 and put up a log cabin in the wilderness of Hickory Valley.

The house that Knoxville built for its triplets.

IN THAT wilderness, which has remained such a wilderness that there isn't even now a railroad in the entire county, they grew up—Abraham, Isaac and Jacob Waggoner. Like the Johnson triplets, they had seven brothers and sisters. But as far as public notice was concerned, they won only that local acclaim which arose from the fact that until they were 40 years old nobody could tell them apart. Indeed, in their childhood, their mother used to keep them numbered like football players so she could recognize them at sight, and in their cut-up days they used to take turns going out with the same girl without her knowing the difference. Except for noticeable difference in height and weight, they still showed remarkable resemblance when they came into Knoxville the other day to share the triplet spotlight with Archie, Kermit and Teddy Johnson.

What Knoxville is going to do for them and for three other sets of triplets which have bobbed up in various quarters of Tennessee since the Johnson trio arrived hasn't been decided. It is probable that Knoxville will do nothing more than extend congratulations and present the keys to the city. It could hardly be expected to provide for the triplets of other communities as it did for its own. And, indeed, the Waggoner brothers, at least, are not asking for presents. All they want is recognition. They don't need a new house. They are now well-to-do farmers and have several pretty good houses of their own back in Union County. They ask only to be recognized as the venerable triplets which they are. That demand seems to them entirely just, for they are believed to be the oldest triplets in America and possibly in the world.

THE world which does homage to triplets was a long time hearing about Abraham, Isaac and Jacob Waggoner, but it is said by very old-timers of Hickory Valley that their advent into the community was occasion for prolonged marvel and comment, although big families of 10 or 12 children or more were quite the rule in the populated regions of Union County. Their parents were William and Cynthia Waggoner, who already had seven children, but no twins as the Johnsons had. At the log rollings and at the meetin' house they were proudly displayed. They furnished the subject for many a guessing contest. Nobody could tell except by guessing which one was Abe, which was Ike and which was Jake. To facilitate matters, their mother finally adopted the numbering system so she could pick them out promptly herself. Others couldn't distinguish between them at all without their numbers. They looked like three copies of the same book. Until they were 40 years old there was not two pounds difference in their weights. All had black hair and clear blue eyes and almost identical features. They hung together like the "Three Musketeers" and the village bullies soon learned it was hazardous to pick a fight with any one of them for the reason that each turned out to be a gang. The trouble maker would find his victim multiplied by three—two more faces exactly like the first one. Any one of them easily passed for any other.



Abraham, Isaac and Jacob Waggoner.

THEY still like to talk about the complications of their love affairs. Jake tells this one:

"Abe," he said, "once had a date with a girl who didn't know there were three of us. It seems Abe wasn't much of a sheik because he offered this girl a dollar for a kiss. He didn't have the dollar along and she let him have the kiss on credit. The next week I went to see the same girl, pretending I was Abe, and she dunned me for the dollar."

Abe grinned.

"Yes, and you had to pay the dollar, because you had stolen my date and didn't want the girl to know it was you instead of me," he reminded brother Jake.

"That's so," replied Jake, "and you still owe me the dollar, because you got the kiss and I didn't."

"I didn't ask you to pay her for me, did I?"

"No, but I did"——

"Try and collect"——

The near-beer glasses were raised in unison and the debt was forgotten. The Waggoner triplets still stick together.

Opportunities for education in Union County were limited when the Waggoner trio were boys. They are still limited. Even today the county does not have a newspaper or a railroad. The brothers, however, went to a mountain district school and studied at home. In this way they acquired enough book learning to suffice in their modest community. They prospered, too. Today, besides owning good farms, Abe and Ike have a general merchandise store at Maynardsville, the county seat. All are married, have children and still live within 10 miles of each other. In all their 71 years they have not been more widely separated than that. Weekly they make trips back and forth between the farms with their families. Around the fireside they form a congenial and happy group.

IT IS not often they can leave Union County on a visit. The outside world is still far away. Probably not one of the trio has been outside of the county half a dozen times in his life. The trip to Knoxville to celebrate their seventy-first birthday and pay a visit to the Johnson triplets was only the second time in their lives that the three have journeyed beyond the home county borders together.

The Waggoner brothers don't go in much for playing around "big cities like Knoxville." They are advocates of the simple life. At 71 they can still plow all day or keep pace with their grandsons pitching hay or chopping wood. None has ever been seriously ill and friends declare that if anybody in these hills can live to be a hundred, the Waggoner triplets ought to do it, as they have a good start and a clear track so far as anybody can see.

IN THE Tennessee hills a man doesn't count for much unless he is a crack shot, and on this basis, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob rank as aristocrats. Even in their old age they are expert marksmen. They developed it in the same way Sergeant Alvin York developed his skill with a rifle before he became a national hero in the war—at shooting matches. Sergeant York used to win a turkey every now and then in the matches over at the Three Forks o' the Wolf long before he ever took a shot at a German machine gunner. It is a favorite sport in the mountain regions.

But while shooting matches constitute the one great diversion for the Waggoners, as golf does for some other men of their age, they are also much given to such minor sports as hunting, fishing and pitching horseshoes. They are quite adept at all of these arts and find time on occasion to watch a baseball game if one can be found in progress.

Having been away from Knoxville for many years, they were a bit startled at the city's growth and progress. In the village days when they used to come here they would tie their horses to the hitch posts which stood along Central street after a long ride of 30 miles over rough mountain roads. And after they got here the sights they saw were scarcely worth riding so far to see.

On this occasion, however, they found more sights than they could get around to see in a day's time. Instead of horseback, they came on a bus this time. Maynardsville is on the highway connecting Knoxville and Middlesboro, Kentucky, and fast busses make the trip in a little more than an hour, where it used to take all day to make it with a buggy or farm wagon. Now that they are getting along in years and feel that it is time to rest a bit, they hope to make the trip every year. While they are amazed at the change which has taken place in the world in their lifetime, they look for still greater change in the next quarter of a century. Abe said the other day that when they come back here at the age of 100 they probably will be spinning yarns about the times back in 1927, when folks were just beginning to fly across the ocean.

THE Waggoners took a great deal of interest in the new house built for Archie, Kermit and Teddy Johnson. Indeed, about everybody in Knoxville and its environs has visited the bungalow, because virtually the whole city had a hand in its construction or furnishing.

When the committee of women met and decided to build the house there was not a cent available for the project, but it seemed that their plans had a way of carrying almost before they were made. The first obstacle was finding a lot and buying it after it was found. This problem was quickly solved by the real estate dealers, who voluntarily forked over a lot 65 by 135 feet. Next was the problem of how to build. The Knoxville Blue Print and Supply Company took care of that. Then came the labor item. After the committee chairman had mentioned the matter before the Central Labor Union, J. S. Nichols, business agent of the carpenters' union, got up and donated the services of the carpenters, each man agreeing to give one day's work. Material dealers then donated the brick and stone and lumber, and furniture houses came through with the furnishings. Tag Day for incidental expenses took care of the rest.

AND the new home answered a real need. Johnson is a poor man who works hard for a living at hauling things for people with his flivver truck. He never had cause to worry over the income tax. Indeed, his biggest problem has been how to pay the rent and feed and clothe his growing family. When they had five children, he and Mrs. Johnson had their hands full. Then came five more within a year. Twins and then triplets! Here was a problem sure enough. Ten children and all under 12 years of age!

They were living in a little house on Munson street when the triplets joined the household. And that house was just the kind of house, and in just the condition, that one would expect to find as the home of a family with 10 small children.

Dr. William R. West, well-known physician of Knoxville, was one of the first to see the need for help. He had given his services without charge to bring the triplets into the world.

Incidentally, Dr. West also suggested their names. When the question of a name came up he noticed one of the trio kicking and lustily exercising his lungs. Then he looked at the two others just like him and at the five others ranging in age up to 11.

"Wouldn't Theodore Roosevelt be proud of such a family?" he remarked. Then came the idea to name the triplets for sons of the former President. Kermit Roosevelt, up at Oyster Bay, heard about it and expressed his approval by sending them $5.

There is nothing shabby or cheap about the new Johnson bungalow. All visitors—and virtually every state has been represented in the list of callers—are impressed with it. The house has hardwood floors, an open fireplace in the light, airy living room, good electrical fixtures, a built-in bath tub and other modern conveniences and comforts. In a row against the wall of the dining room are three built-in high chairs for the triplets when they are old enough to sit up at a table. Until then there are plenty of others to use them.

PONCA CITY, Oklahoma.

AN AMBITIOUS young man whose name was Lew Wentz dropped into this oil town 16 years ago. He had been a high school athletic coach in Pittsburg and he had heard that there was money—quick money—in oil.

Looking about for a hotel that would fit both his purse, which was slim, and his ideas of comfort, which were modest, Wentz singled out the Arcade, a three-story structure, filled by a constant drift of oil men, contractors, drillers, small promoters and plain hangerson. The Arcade was run by Mrs. Annie Rhodes, a good-natured soul who gave a hearty welcome to each of her guests.

Wentz still lives at the Arcade Hotel, which has changed almost as little as he has. There is but one big difference in Wentz's life—he now has an income of more than $5,000,000 a year. It may be six million, it may be seven, but at any rate it is enough to make Wentz one of the seven men in the United States with incomes above the five million mark.

This fact—the size of his income—was one which Ponca City had never known about the town's leading citizen. Since almost the first week that he landed in town everyone has known Lew Wentz—every child and old man and old woman, and, yes, every cat and dog. He is that kind of man.

BUT it was not until officials of the Federal Treasury placed him in that hallowed little group of seven men with the seven largest incomes in the United States, in the world, perhaps, that Ponca City came to the full realization of Wentz's fortune in oil.

At first things did not go so well for the young man who had been baseball coach in a Pittsburg high school. In fact, he even got discouraged—which is a very rare thing for Wentz—and had almost decided that someone had given him the wrong tip on the oil business. He was almost ready to go back to coaching.

He decided, however, to stick it out until he had made $50,000. The rest of his story is rather well known to Ponca City. Thereafter he seems to have had the magic touch.

Every time he drilled he struck oil. Or nearly so. After the first $50,000 it was the first $500,000, and after the first $500,000 the first $5,000,000, until no one but Wentz knew exactly what his oil holdings were worth.

For a time he was in partnership with John G. McCaskey, also formerly of Pittsburg. Recently, however, on the death of McCaskey, Wentz took over all his holdings. He is now the Wentz Oil Corporation, the largest single producer in the country.

Production on Wentz's oil holdings ranges from 12,000 to more than 17,000 barrels daily. His holdings are vast. They include, besides his leases in the rich Tonkawa field, 1300 acres of developed property in the Blackwell field and valuable undeveloped acreage at Braman, Rainbow Bend, Oxford and Winfield, as well as 110,000 acres of scattered leases in the Mid-Continent field. He owns and operates also his own casinghead plant at Peckham, where gasoline is extracted from natural gas, rich in gasoline hydrocarbons.

As an oil operator Wentz is always conservative. It is said that he has never sold a property once he has gained control, preferring, with something of the instinct of the gambler, to take the risk himself. Usually he wins. Besides his producing properties in Oklahoma he has leases in Texas and Kansas.

The tenderfoot who came to the Arcade Hotel in 1911 has become one of the shrewdest oil men in the game. It is said he can draw the best land lease and the best contract possible to be drawn. He is recognized as an authority on oil land laws.

WENTZ'S chief—really his only—business theory is a belief in the simplification of all the processes of industry. In so far as it is possible he has done away entirely with red tape in the management of his affairs. He has done away with titles, too. Whether a man is an oil field superintendent, a contractor or a geologist, he is known simply by his name. He never signs any contracts except those which issue from his own office. Contractors say that when a job is completed and the bill presented, the check for it arrives more quickly from the Wentz Oil Corporation than from any other oil concern.

"Everybody and every corporation nowadays has a public relations department, whatever that is, but I'm going to have a department for the public good," Wentz announced a year or so ago.

And this department for the public good has operated on nearly as large a scale as the Wentz Oil Corporation ever since. Looking about for a director for this new department, Wentz naturally singled out a member of his former profession. He secured the services of Roy Williams, who for several years has been director of physical education in the Oklahoma City public schools, to direct his philanthropies.

Because he loves children, Wentz's first concern was the securing of medical service for the crippled children of Ponca City who could not otherwise afford expensive specialists. And, naturally, he sought out the best medical attention possible for these children.

FOR several years Wentz has had a direct connection with one of the best known children's surgeons in America, a man who is anxious to cooperate in this type of work. Several times a year Wentz sends all the crippled children who can be assembled by his associates to a clinic where this surgeon comes to examine personally each child. If any benefit can be rendered, the child is then sent to a hospital, where every effort is made to overcome physical defects.

"Out of the first 13 crippled children given personal assistance by Mr. Wentz, five have made complete recoveries," says Miss Mildred Headley, local community nurse, upon whom Wentz depends to a great extent to guide his workers in this immediate vicinity.

"Three others of these children have been greatly improved," Miss Headley says. "Two have refused operations necessary for improvement, and one—the victim of a broken neck—did not live."

But Wentz soon exhausted the possibilities of Ponca City, so far as his department of public good was concerned. He began to extend his activities over the entire State. For he is extremely loyal to Oklahoma and is anxious that the greater part of his money should be expended in his adopted State.

Recently Wentz called a state-wide meeting of prominent Oklahomans to provide an organization for aiding crippled children. After they had discussed the matter for some time and were attempting to outline a plan of procedure, Wentz announced:

"If you fellows will officer this organization otherwise, I'll provide a manager-secretary and pay his salary personally for at least three years." He selected Joe N. Hamilton, president of the Ponca City Rotary Club and superintendent of the public schools here, for the position under a 10-year contract. The State work is now well under way. Crippled and deformed bodies are being straightened. Children who had never walked are playing for the first time.

SIMILARLY, Wentz came to the aid of Oklahoma cotton growers, left almost destitute by the depression that followed a year of overproduction.

He offered to loan the cotton growers a million dollars without interest in order that they might form an association to retire 400,000 bales from the market until such time as the price should increase. The cotton growers accepted his offer overnight.

Besides the $1,000,000 loan Wentz offered to underwrite another $1,000,000 to finance the organization that would bring about stabilization of the cotton market.

"I made my money in Oklahoma, and I am going to stay here and do all the good I can with it," he said. "I don't want to make any money out of this myself," Wentz added, "nor to help in any plan for others than the producers to make a profit."

How many other philanthropic enterprises Wentz has supported no one knows. It was disclosed not long ago, however, that he was the only man in Oklahoma to pay a "gift tax." Contributions or gifts within a taxable year are deductible to an aggregate amount not in excess of 15 per cent, the Federal revenue act of 1924 provides. Putting his income at $5,000,000, for the sake of convenience, he would be allowed to deduct gifts totaling $750,000 annually, and it is believed that his philanthropies ran considerably over a million dollars last year.

WENTZ has certain fundamental and unshakable beliefs. One is a faith in a simple and unadulterated Methodism, which he inherited from his mother. Another is Rotary. Still another is a belief in the superiority of the American virtues, hard work, simple living, no frills or frivolousness. In short, so far as his life outside his business goes, he is the type of man whom Sinclair Lewis would call a "Babbitt." And, moreover, he is proud of it.

On one occasion, at a party recently, the talk turned to ancestors and genealogies. Bunker Hill, Valley Forge, the Mayflower, all the usual claims to distinguished American ancestry, were advanced.

"Well, folks," Wentz said, when there was a lull in the conversation, "my father was a blacksmith, and he was a good one, too."

Wentz was born in Iowa, where his father supplied the finest hand-dressed tools to the members of a farming community. His mother, now nearly 80 years old, is living in California, where he frequently visits her.

Prior to going to California the mother was a member of the Duquesne Methodist Church of Pittsburg. The church was heavily in debt, a fact which became known to Wentz. On Easter Sunday, two years ago, when the pastor of the church went into his pulpit he found a telegram there and he immediately read it to his congregation:

"In behalf of my mother I am forwarding to you a check today sufficient in size to raise the church debt." It was signed by Wentz.

More recently he has interested himself in financing deserving young men and women through the State university and the agricultural college. He has set aside a fund of $150,000 for this purpose.

NOR has he forgotten his own industry in relation to his philanthropies. His oil field camps are models for cleanliness and comfort. In the field his men have private, modern sleeping quarters, shower baths, reading and smoking rooms and the best food which can be provided by a field kitchen. The salaries which he pays his employes here enable them to own homes which are among the best in Ponca City.

Wentz is really rather shy of publicity. This is one reason why more detailed information is not available concerning his philanthropic activities.

In appearance Wentz is not striking. He is not cut to the pattern of the old financial czars. He might be a high school superintendent or a textbook salesman. He has never married. One of his closest friends is Mrs. Annie Rhodes, who is still the manager of the Arcade Hotel. Although he has added a room or two to the suite which he has occupied for 16 years, the furnishings remain virtually the same. He still takes the majority of his meals in the hotel dining room.

Wentz fairly teems with plans, enterprises and ambitions. This is particularly true where the giving away of his money is concerned.

"There is one thing I would like to see done in Oklahoma and elsewhere," he said, "and that is to provide an old age pension system of some nature so that citizens, when they have reached years when they are no longer wage earners, may find a fund for their benefit that will entirely eliminate them from any atmosphere smacking of charity."

Another ambition is to own the Pittsburg Pirates, baseball still being one of Wentz's major interests.

But even though Wentz gives his income away at the rate of more than $10,000 a day, his ever-gushing wells still swell the annual total. Even with all his schemes and enterprises Wentz can scarcely keep pace with the flow of black gold that pours unceasingly into his coffers.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

AS PLOTS go, this one ranks with the best. It is direct, concise and to the point. No frills or fancy flourishes, yet its detail is exquisite. There is only one catch:

The New York gunman, who says he was hired to perform a murder, turned out to be a fake. He wasn't a gunman at all. He was, instead, Detective Robert F. Langdon of the Washington police force.

And by virtue of that single catch, Dr. Dee Hammer, self-styled "spinologist," is in a precinct cell, and Mrs. Anna Apolonia is free on a $5000 bond, both charged with conspiracy to murder Mrs. Apolonia's husband, Joseph. Joseph, according to police, had insurance of $5000 on his life, and besides, they declare, Dr. Hammer and Mrs. Apolonia were admittedly very fond of each other.

The case is, perhaps, one of the strangest feats of sleuth work in the history of the local detective bureau. The alleged plot was born, developed and finally was definitely arranged with the detective bureau always on the inside. Then, the night before it was to have taken place, Dr. Hammer and Mrs. Apolonia were quietly taken into custody, and it was all over.

Joseph, the was-to-have-been victim, flatly refuses to believe the story told by police. He furnished the bond, under which his wife was released, and, when she met him in her attorney's office after being freed, he put his arms about her and declared that he had full confidence in her. Later, he told reporters:

"MRS. APOLONIA and I have lived together for 20 years, and I think we've been about as happy as any two married people ever are. I never took much to this Dr. Hammer, but I don't think he'd try to murder me."

Police, however, declare differently. They have, carefully guarded, three notes which bear Dr. Hammer's signature. One of them, for $100, is marked "For Expenses." The other two, each for $500, bear the surcharge, "For Services Rendered." And all three were handed to Detective Langdon by Dr. Hammer a few minutes before he was placed under arrest.

Dr. Hammer is 42 years old, small and slender, and not in the least impressive. There is a tinge of gray in his hair, his eyes are vague and slow.

He speaks of himself as a spinologist and a chiropractor, and loudly bewails the injury which the present publicity is doing to his practice. On the peeling painted sign nailed loosely to the door of his home, he bears the former title, but his cards give the latter.

Mrs. Apolonia is the mother of a 12-year-old boy, efficient in her duties, but as unimpressive as her physician. She is robust, but not healthy; she has fine features, but she is in no wise good-looking. And she is not at all the sort of woman for whom the average man would risk the electric chair.

According to Dr. Hammer's story, he first came in contact with the Apolonia family when Joseph, the husband, who is a tinsmith, repaired the roof of his home. Joseph, he says, told him that Mrs. Apolonia was ill, and he told the man to send her to his office.

The Complicated Case of Dr. Dee Hammer and Mrs. Anna Apolonia, Who Are Charged With Conspiring to "Eliminate" Her Husband.

AS PLOTS go, this one ranks with the best. It is direct, concise and to the point. No frills or fancy flourishes, yet its detail is exquisite. There is only one catch:

The New York gunman, who says he was hired to perform a murder, turned out to be a fake. He wasn't a gunman at all. He was, instead, Detective Robert F. Langdon of the Washington police force.

And by virtue of that single catch, Dr. Dee Hammer, self-styled "spinologist," is in a precinct cell, and Mrs. Anna Apolonia is free on a $5000 bond, both charged with conspiracy to murder Mrs. Apolonia's husband, Joseph. Joseph, according to police, had insurance of $5000 on his life, and besides, they declare, Dr. Hammer and Mrs. Apolonia were admittedly very fond of each other.

The case is, perhaps, one of the strangest feats of sleuth work in the history of the local detective bureau. The alleged plot was born, developed and finally was definitely arranged with the detective bureau always on the inside. Then, the night before it was to have taken place, Dr. Hammer and Mrs. Apolonia were quietly taken into custody, and it was all over.

Joseph, the was-to-have-been victim, flatly refuses to believe the story told by police. He furnished the bond, under which his wife was released, and, when she met him in her attorney's office after being freed, he put his arms about her and declared that he had full confidence in her. Later, he told reporters:

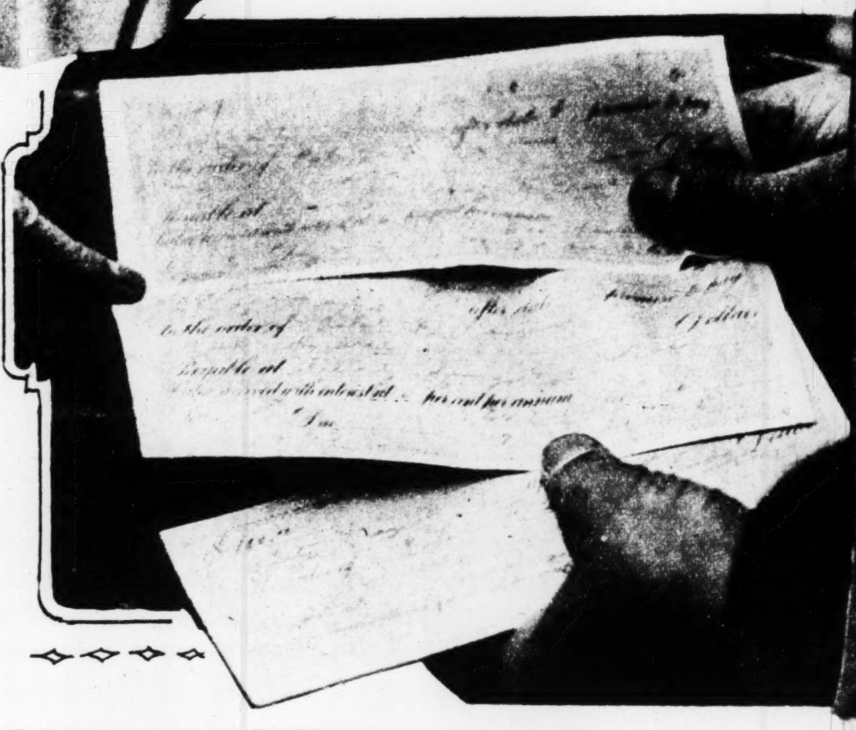
"MRS. APOLONIA and I have lived together for 20 years, and I think we've been about as happy as any two married people ever are. I never took much to this Dr. Hammer, but I don't think he'd try to murder me."

Police, however, declare differently. They have, carefully guarded, three notes which bear Dr. Hammer's signature. One of them, for $100, is marked "For Expenses." The other two, each for $500, bear the surcharge, "For Services Rendered." And all three were handed to Detective Langdon by Dr. Hammer a few minutes before he was placed under arrest.

Dr. Hammer is 42 years old, small and slender, and not in the least impressive. There is a tinge of gray in his hair, his eyes are vague and slow. He speaks of himself as a spinologist and a chiropractor, and loudly bewails the injury which the present publicity is doing to his practice. On the peeling painted sign nailed loosely to the door of his home, he bears the former title, but his cards give the latter.

Mrs. Apolonia is the mother of a 12-year-old boy, efficient in her duties, but as unimpressive as her physician. She is robust, but not healthy; she has fine features, but she is in no wise good-looking. And she is not at all the sort of woman for whom the average man would risk the electric chair.

According to Dr. Hammer's story, he first came in contact with the Apolonia family when Joseph, the husband, who is a tinsmith, repaired the roof of his home. Joseph, he says, told him that Mrs. Apolonia was ill, and he told the man to send her to his office.



The notes which Dr. Hammer gave the man who turned out to be a detective.

During the treatment, Dr. Hammer says, he could easily notice in talking to Mrs. Apolonia that something was wrong and, being a professional man, he was naturally interested. She was reticent, however, and he did not press the subject. As time went on, he also treated Mrs. Apolonia's son, and became the family physician.

Then, last summer, the Apolonia family went to Chicago to the Eucharistic conference. The weather was hot, and the conference, for them, was dull.

"Out in Chicago," Dr. Hammer said, "they both got bored, and went to it. Anna told me about it of her own accord when she got back."

The Apolonias came back to Washington. Then it was that outside influences first entered into the case. Harry Thompson, private detective, was employed.

"I advised her," Dr. Hammer says, "to get a detective, and see if she couldn't get enough evidence against Joe for a divorce. So she hired Thompson, or rather I hired him, and for several months he trailed her husband, reporting to me every day or so, and incidentally collecting five or ten dollars at each report.

"Only it was always the same. He couldn't get anything on Joe at all, and finally, about two weeks ago, he said he couldn't do anything more without another man in the case to help him. He said he knew a 'go-getter' who could fix things up in a hurry, and I told him to bring the man around.

"Thompson introduced him to me as Robert F. Lawrence, private detective from another office, and Lawrence said he'd get the evidence within the next few days. The notes I gave him the other night were for his work in trailing Apolonia."

Dr. Hammer refused to say why he had paid $1100 for a few days' trailing, declaring only that he was "interested in Mrs. Apolonia" and was anxious to do anything he could to win her freedom.

But Thompson and Detective Langdon tell another, and stranger, story.

THOMPSON says that Dr. Hammer came to him and asked that he trail Apolonia carefully; for Mrs. Apolonia, he said, suspected her husband of playing in backyards other than his own. Just how serious these philanderings were, she did not know; but she had dire suspicions that the new playmates were younger than herself, and perhaps more attractive, and more beautiful.

Detective Robert F. Langdon.

Then, when Thompson reported one morning, Dr. Hammer said that complications had arisen. He asked Thompson to wait, and in a little while Mrs. Apolonia came in. A conference followed—it was the first that had ever been held between the three—and Mrs. Apolonia, with much disappointment, informed Thompson that she had found out that the tenets of her religion forbid any sort of divorce.

Thompson says that he then told her that this was just as well, anyway, because he was quite confident that she would never be able to get any evidence to support one. The husband's conduct, he said, was beyond reproach.

But Dr. Hammer, he claims, was not satisfied. He suggested that other means be employed to get the woman's freedom. He asked, Thompson said, whether such a thing was possible, and how much it would cost.

Thompson, at that point, was so taken aghast that he could only stutter his answer. He told the doctor, he says, that of course such things were possible, but that the price would be high.

Thereupon, according to his story, Dr. Hammer bade him keep his eyes open for an "expert," and said good-by.

Enter Detective Langdon.

Thompson, in breathless wonder, left the conference and went directly to the nearest police precinct station, where he found Detective Langdon on duty. He told the remarkable story, and Langdon, thinking it was a joke of some sort, laughed heartily.

Thompson, a little angrily, insisted it was not a joke at all. Langdon, not at all convinced, demanded proof. And thus began the conspiracy.

Two days later—the visit was delayed, so as not to arouse suspicion—the two detectives went to Dr. Hammer's office, where a second session was held. Langdon, with a generous flow of underworld language and East Side New York slang, was introduced as "Robert F. Lawrence, Manhattan gunman and gangster."

DR HAMMER, police declare, went carefully into the matter, making sure of his man first.

What was Lawrence doing in Washington? That was easy. Lying low for a short while, after a series of jobs in Philadelphia. Making an occasional rum dash from Buffalo to Washington, for the sake of excitement and extra cash.

Dr. Hammer, Langdon says, seemed interested from the beginning. He apparently had no doubts whatsoever of the authenticity of the gunman, and his only concern, Langdon declares, seemed to be whether or not he was clever enough to put the job over without getting caught.

The next order of business, police declare, was to decide upon the mode of the murder.

Two plans were suggested:

In the first, Langdon was to drive out a lonely road on the outskirts of the city, slug Apolonia with a blackjack, stop the car, fire a .32-caliber pistol bullet through the man's forehead, break the windshield, stuff bits of glass into the wound to give the impression that the broken windshield had caused the death, and then, placing Apolonia behind the wheel, drive the car over an embankment by setting the wheel, opening the throttle, and then jumping off. This job was to have been pulled in a rented automobile.

In the other, he was to take Apolonia out for a ride and render him unconscious with the blackjack, as in the former case. He was then to push a hairpin into the man's brain through his nostrils, and thereafter place the body in the driver's seat and ditch the car, being careful to see that the victim's face was badly cut.

LANGDON declares that Dr. Hammer insisted upon making the murder appear to be an accident. The life insurance carried by Apolonia carried double indemnity in case of accidental death.

The detective says that in the conference he pretended to favor the latter method, explaining that an autopsy might bring to light the bullet, which would be difficult to explain. All the while, he says, he was asking himself:

"Could any dumb-bell possibly conceive a more ridiculous murder plan?"

Dr. Hammer, he says, was to go to a meeting of one of his numerous lodges and remain until the early hours of the morning, while Mrs. Apolonia was to visit friends in Winchester, Va., to remove them from the field of suspicion. Each was to break down when told of the news.

Langdon, in his account of the conference, declared that both of the plans were so ludicrous that it was with difficulty that he refrained from laughing outright on several occasions. After the arrangements had been completed, he told a number of very bloody and grewsome stories of his past killings, which seemed to increase Dr. Hammer's confidence in him, he said.

It was suggested that liquor be placed in the wrecked car, to make it appear that Apolonia had been running whisky when the wreck occurred, but Langdon pretended anger here, at having his temporary profession brought into ill repute, and apologies were forthcoming.

Thus, with everything in readiness, the fateful day approached. Mrs. Apolonia, on the evening before the day scheduled, packed her clothes (she was ready to leave for Winchester when arrested) and Apolonia, entirely innocent of all that was going on, went down to the Potomac River front to do some work on a motor boat which he owns.

Then Langdon, with Thompson, went to Dr. Hammer's on the pretense of a final conference. Following the pair, however, in the shadows, was a squad of police reinforcements, awaiting a signal.

Lawrence, the gunman, and Thompson walked in, sat down calmly, and smoked a cigarette. The gunman informed Dr. Hammer that the stage was set to the last detail, and that neither he nor Mrs. Apolonia need entertain the slightest worry.

"Everything is going off nicely," he said subtly.

HE FURTHER told Dr. Hammer, he says, that the "retainer fee" of $100, which he had been given at the first conference, had been properly paid at the bank upon which it was drawn, and agreed to take a 60 and a 90 day note for the fee proper, which had already been placed at $1000.

Dr. Hammer, according to the detectives, protested vigorously at this price, but finally acceded when told that the job could not be done for less. It never seemed to occur to him, Langdon said, to question the fact that a gunman-thug would accept an unindorsed note.

Thus, finally, in the course of the last conference, Dr. Hammer produced the two notes, already made out, and—Langdon says he was still nettled at the price when he turned them over to him—looked them over carefully. He placed them in Lawrence's hand, and the payee folded them carefully, like priceless treasures, and placed them in his wallet.

Then, quietly, he pulled his coat lapel aside with one hand, and produced a pair of handcuffs from his back pocket with the other. Dr. Hammer's eyes, he said, all but jumped from their sockets, and his cheeks turned white.

Thompson had already got up from his chair, and was walking casually to the door, as Langdon said:

"All right, Doctor. You can come with me now."

The little doctor obeyed without a word.

Half an hour later, at the Apolonia home, the woman was also placed under arrest. Both refused to talk until after attorneys had been obtained, and Mrs. Apolonia even then. Dr. Hammer, however, in the presence of his lawyer, told his story through his cell bars.

During the World War he was a private in the medical corps, and taught knitting and crocheting to patients at the various hospitals. His "degree" came from the Washington College of Spinology, long since defunct.

The Boy Who Went to the Ends of the World

David Binney Putnam, Who Spent His Twelfth Birthday on the Equator as a Part of the Beebe Expedition and Afterwards Voyaged to Greenland, Now Tells His Own Story.

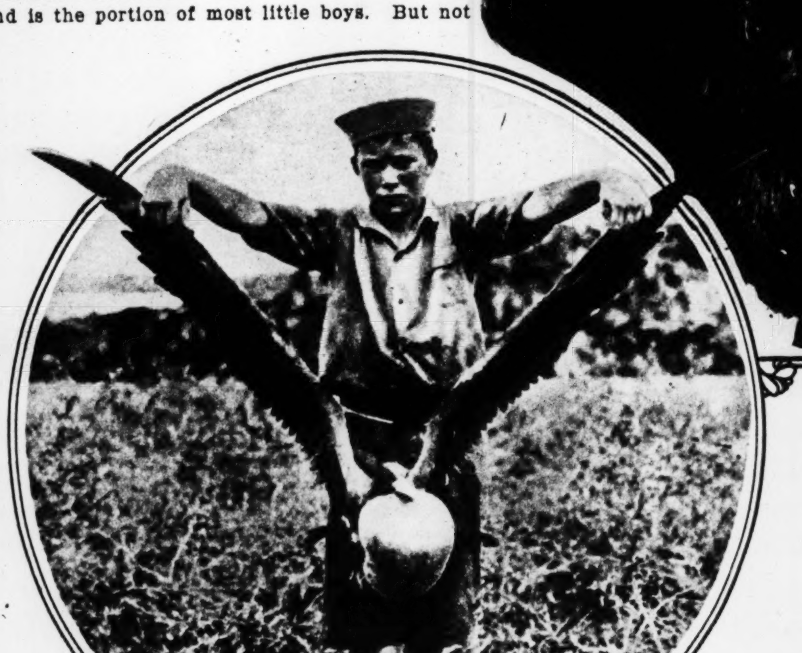
David Binney Putnam.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

ALMOST every little boy has wanted to sail the high seas in strange climes. He doesn't usually care whether it's east or west or north or south, among the islands of the Pacific, around the tip of Africa, up through the frozen Arctic. But sail the seas he would, meeting strange people, hunting big and ferocious game, standing at lookout in some lofty and dangerous place, firing big guns which always find their mark.

Almost every little boy has yearned for such high adventure but, sadly for almost every little boy, such wonders aren't vouchsafed him. If he would sail the seas he must do it swaying in the porch swing in his back yard; if he would climb to the lookout's lofty post, he must do it on the iron stairs that by his alchemy change from semi-rusty apartment back porches to a ship's tall mast; if he would meet strange people, he must find them in the persons of his playmates, so dressed and equipped as to remotely resemble some exotic race.

Make-believe land is the portion of most little boys. But not so with young David Binney Putnam, the son of George Palmer Putnam, the publisher. He has sailed the seas and sailed them well, he has done just those things most of his fellows yearn to do, and as he has so excellently accomplished them, standing almost shoulder to shoulder with his seniors in the journey's strenuous toil, he has sort of vindicated little boyhood. And he probably has caused a lot of trouble for a lot of mothers and fathers.



"I took a frigate bird off its nest."

When David was 11 — that was two years ago—he started out on his first expedition. Down to the South Pacific seas he went with the scientific expedition headed by William Beebe. David had his twelfth birthday on the equator. Great experiences he had, and exciting ones. He proved himself so good an explorer and scientist that the next summer—the summer of 1926—his father took him along on an expedition headed by the publisher and Captain Robert A. Bartlett, an Arctic explorer of parts, a sailor of the North seas who was with Admiral Peary's expedition when Peary reached the North Pole.

THESE two fine adventures of David's have been chronicled by David himself. The first book the young man wrote, that dealing with his southern journey, is called "David Goes Voyaging." The Arctic story is "David Goes to Greenland," which he certainly did. Now David is on his third adventure. He sailed away in June for far-away Baffinland. There is a great deal of charm about the boy's stories; he tells them simply and honestly, he makes no effort to dramatize them, he writes his books with a nice frankness. Writing of the southern trip David says:

"Mr. Beebe lets me call him Uncle Will, even if he is the head of this big expedition. He was awfully nice to let me go on part of it.

"Mother and I joined the Arcturus —Uncle Will's ship—at Panama. We spent nearly three months in the Pacific Ocean, studying sea life and visiting seven uninhabited desert islands. And I promised Dad to write a little story about it all. He told me to try to tell what we did and what I saw just like fellows telling each other about their adventures. That's pretty hard to do."

The Beebe expedition visited Galapagos Islands. They touched at Tower Island. David says:

"Early in the morning we had sighted a low strip of green, and by the time breakfast was over at 7:30 we were already in the most protected little cove, or harbor. When we entered the harbor birds came and rested on the mastheads. Many of them stayed there or came back to it on and off all day. The whole rigging was full of boobies and frigate birds.

"We saw three great rays, too, at least 15 feet across. Later on we caught a huge ray. They seem to fly under the water, just below the surface. Every once in a while they flip themselves right out of the water and turn a complete somersault. Sometimes they do this three times in succession. One of the biggest ones we struck with our bow and neatly turned it over.

David at his typewriter.

"WHEN we landed on the little beach we saw many frigate birds on their nests, boobies, gulls and the cutest little doves. They seemed so tame. They were always fighting for each other's twigs in their nests and as soon as a bird left her nest another bird came and stole a twig and flew away with it.

"I lifted a frigate bird right off his nest and then put him back, and he never seemed to mind at all —just looked surprised. About the next time I picked up a frigate bird I wasn't so lucky. I wanted to lift him up to have a picture taken, and he didn't seem to like posing much more than I did. Anyway, he pecked me. They have big, strong bills, and this one got hold right in the lower part of my left leg. All the time I was barelegged and wore shorts, which is the way everybody aboard dressed.

"The frigate birds and boobies weigh about two and a half pounds. The former have not webbed feet like the boobies, and therefore they cannot fish as easily, for they only swoop down and dip them out of the water; but the other dives right in and sometimes out of sight for several feet underneath and swims with his webbed feet. Frigate birds steal the other's fish. Both birds have tremendously long wings and sail in the sky with a long, long spread.

"The male frigate has a queer pouch on his throat. He is dark brownish in body, with a few greeny feathers on the top of his neck, and then this very strange balloon, which is so distended he can rest his head upon it and go to sleep. He can puff it up or have it empty. The male sits on the nest in the morning mostly, while his mate goes out to sea fishing. She is dark brown, with a white breast. Of course, you can see these bright red pouches a long way off, and they look like so many toy balloons in among the bushes. All these birds, the boobies and frigates, build rather foolish looking nests right on the bushes, about two feet from the ground, so, of course, one can go right up to them and see the eggs or the young chicks."

DAVID tells us about "The Giant Devil Fish," using that expression as a chapter head.

"Two days after leaving Tagus we were cruising around along the shores of Narborough Island, trawling with the nets.

"Two or three skiffs were near shore, some diving, some fishing and others dynamiting. Mother and Doctor Cady were trolling for big fish, and suddenly mother had a terrific hard pull, and for half an hour she had to 'play' a tuna. It was 46 inches long and weighed 46 pounds.

"Soon after they saw a great, long fin moving slowly along, and when they came near found a big flat fish like a skate, slowly skimming just below the surface, so that only his two fins came above the water. They followed him around and actually herded him over toward Bill and Dwight in another boat.

"Next morning Dan and Dwight and Doc went out to find one, with two harpoons, plenty of rope and two kegs. They cruised about a little and soon saw a big ripple on the water, a ray going along with his fins sticking up in the air about 20 inches.

"They struck with their harpoons and after a great splash the big ray just sank out of sight and pulled the rope and two kegs right down with him. They waited a long time and watched for him to rise, but when we came along in the launch Pawnee we said we would stay to look while they went to the ship for another harpooning outfit. We chased another big ray almost half a mile before the others came back.

"Dwight took first shot, but the harpoon soon pulled out, and the big fish went sailing along the surface again. Then Dan took a shot which held and he played out the rope, holding on to the end so that the ray had to tow the boat.

"Meanwhile Bill had come along in another skiff to see the excitement. Bill gave them a second harpoon, which Dwight stuck in and then the fish towed the two boats for a time, every once in a while flipping up its tail and hunching its back to try to sweep off the rope and harpoons.

"Gradually it swam back towards the ship and the men started their engines and forced it over that way. When it was quite near we hurried to the boat to get the movie camera for Shorty, and I brought Dwight's revolver to him. He shot it five times with a .38, and Bill put in five loads of heavy buckshot. Then it seemed to make a great effort and tried to swim down deep. Dan held it with all his strength and would not let it go straight down. It flipped its wing and hit Dan right across the shoulder and head twice, but he never let go. Then it tried to spill over the boat by getting right under it. But finally they towed it near enough for the sailors to get a line over it.

"It had been bleeding pretty heavily and there was a big trail of blood all the way to the shore, and some sharks were following this up.

"It measured 18 feet across from wing to wing and weighed 2400 pounds."

AS WE have said before, David proved himself so good an explorer that the following summer his father took the boy with him on an Arctic exploration. In "David Goes to Greenland," the young man wrote those adventures. He tells a fine story of the wreck which threatened to put the Morrissey, the expedition's ship, out of commission. Here it is in part:

"On Monday, July 26, we struck a hidden rock off Northumberland Island, which is at the mouth of Whale Sound, away up at Latitude 77 degrees and 20 minutes north, on the east side of Baffin Bay. We were cruising around the island trying to locate some Eskimo whom we wanted to get on board to help us hunt.

"It was about 12:30 in the morning when we hit, broad daylight, of course, with the sun shining brightly, and fortunately no wind or sea running. It was very, very exciting. I was almost thrown out of my bunk when we hit. There was a jar and a jolt and then everything stopped. We had often hit into light ice, which jarred the vessel a bit, but never anything like this.

"As quick as I could I put on my pants and was just getting my stockings on when Dad called down from the skylight for all hands to get on deck and never mind dressing. I woke up Bob Peary and Doc and we all rushed on deck.

"We moved oil casks for half an hour from the after part of the ship to the bow, so as to take the strain off the stern, where the vessel had struck and was sticking on the rocks. It was just high tide when we hit. We raised the foresail, jib and jumbo and had the engine going full speed, but she didn't budge. Then, as the tide began to leave us, we took a lot of stores ashore in our dories and started in to do what we could for the next tide.

"The Morrissey was listing on her port side at an angle of 45 degrees or worse, and everything was in a dreadful mess on board. You just couldn't stand on the dry deck, and where it was slimy with oil, as most of it was, the only way to get around was to hang on to a rope. And at that, what with moving around the heavy oil drums there were plenty of bad spills.

"THE tide went down, leaving the vessel high and dry, except for the bow, which was in the water, tipped down at a bad angle, and the stern up on the rocks. Cap'n Bob lashed ten empty oil drums on either side, close to the keel at the stern, to help raise her when the water came in.

"We just had to be ready for any emergency, in case the Morrissey proved to be hurt so badly she couldn't float, or especially if a storm came up which would have broken her to pieces quickly and made landing stuff very hard and perhaps impossible. And you must remember we were nearly 1000 miles from the nearest Danish settlement and more than 2000 miles from Sydney, the nearest big place.

"And then the noon tide came and we were dreadfully disappointed. For the water didn't rise to within about three feet of the midnight tide. when we struck, so we were left with no hope of getting off until the next tide. And that was pretty bad, because all that listing and pounding was dreadfully hard on a vessel, and would surely break one up less strong than the good old Morrissey, which is built of oak and is unusually sturdy.

"But the water did get high enough to wash in over the deck on the low port side, even if the vessel couldn't raise. There was a bad leak strained in her side and she leaked so badly we all had to help bail with pails lowered with ropes through the skylight into the midships cabin. We couldn't use the pumps because she had such a bad list, and tip forward, that they didn't get at the water.

"The captain ordered all the food put ashore. Then, too, they put out the big heavy anchor, taking it in the dories quite a way from the ship and dropping it, so that we could haul on it with the windlass.

"WHILE the tide was down there was a lot of work to do on the banged-up bottom of the vessel. The false keel was pretty well ripped off aft of the mainmast, and a lot of oakum was loosened out of the garboard seam. Lying down on the wet rocks, we filled in a lot of oakum. Then we got a lot of dishwashing soft soap and mashed it up with a hammer and worked it in our hands into a kind-of pasty putty. We put this on top of the oakum. We worked in the water until the tide got up around our boots, and then climbed the ladder up on deck.

"After the unloading work it was pretty nearly high tide again, along about 11 o'clock at night. It seemed always a sort of bright afternoon. All hands were called on board and while three men worked the pumps the others manned the windlass. We had the big anchor and a small one out, to pull on with the windlass. There was a good wind coming up, so we had to get her off then or she would surely break up and leave us there. After working for an hour or so we were just about to give up when the wind freshened more. Cap'n Bob ordered all sails hoisted. Everyone got on the halyards and pulled as hard as they could. The wind flattened out the sails and the engine went full speed ahead. But for a good many minutes she held fast and we were most awfully discouraged.

"Then all at once there was an extra big wave and a puff of wind, and suddenly she gave a sort of groan and slid free of the rocks. After 25 hours we were off! We sure were glad."

So there you have part of the log of the adventures of David, who is again aboard the Morrissey in the Baffinland seas, David, who is really doing what almost every little boy has yearned to do.

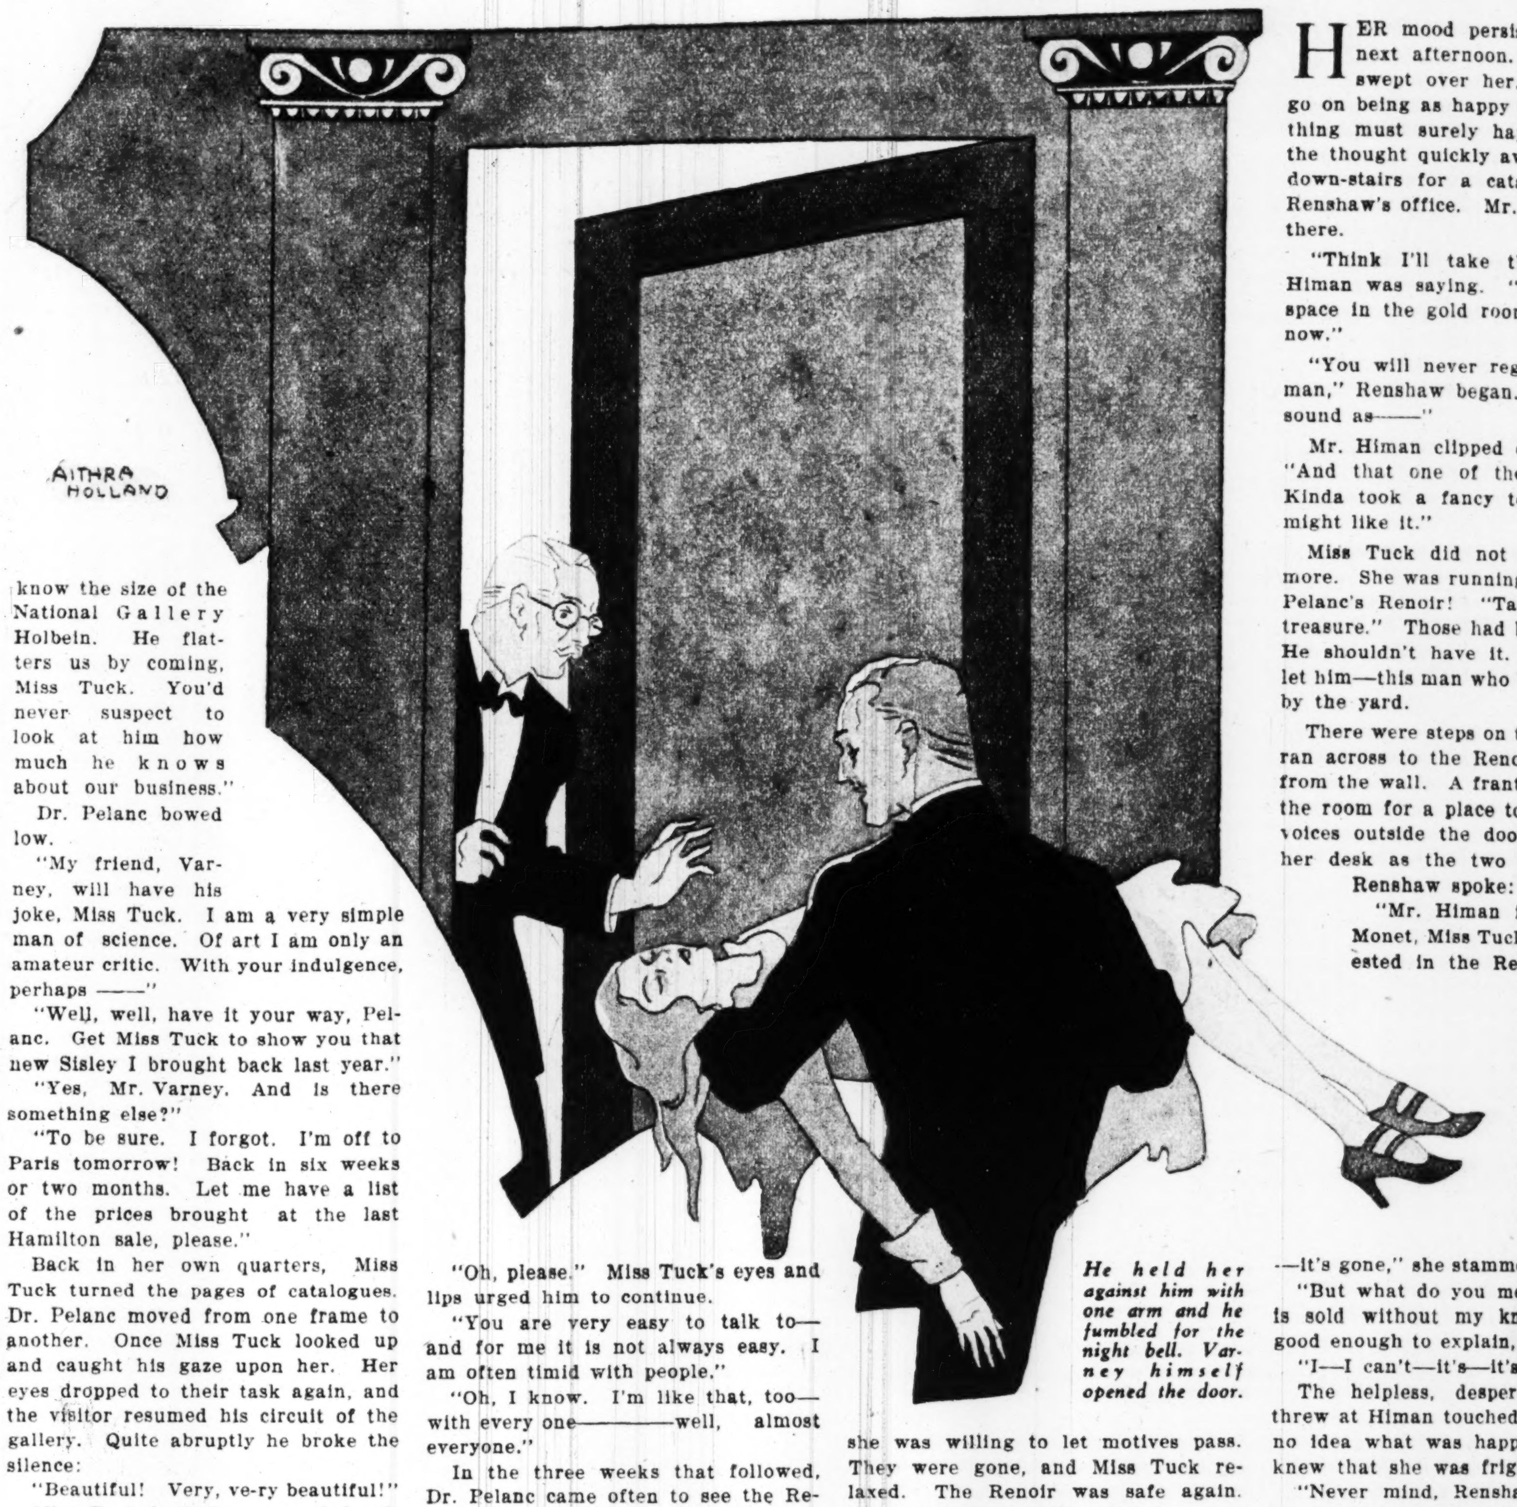
VERY, VERY BEAUTIFUL

By

BESSIE BEATTY



He held her against him with one arm and he fumbled for the night bell. Varney himself opened the door.

ALL day Miss Tuck had had the feeling that something especially nice was about to happen. A tune sang through her heart as her timid blue eyes recommenced their familiar journey around the walls of the Varney Galleries.

It was the second anniversary of her going to work there, and she loved everything about her job. Incidentally it was her thirty-fifth birthday. To Miss Tuck, this latter was a fact of very secondary importance. During the thirty-three years she had spent in her somber home, slave to the vagaries of a neurotic father, her birthday was differentiated from other days only by a deepening of the habitual gloom. Her coming to that home had marked the hour of her mother's going, and Jonathan Tuck never forgave his only daughter for that black passing.

Life for Aurelia Tuck began two years ago, when she presented her father's letter to old Mr. Varney. The letter was his legacy to her. Otherwise, he had left her a mortgaged house, unpaid bills, and a sense of her inferiority. He had left her also a knowledge of pictures and an appreciation of beauty such as no other man in America could have bequeathed.

But of these she was quite unconscious. They were as much a part of her as the cameo cut of her nostrils, or the way she had of drawing in her slim shoulders, as though to take up just as little of the crowded world's room as possible. This gesture, too, was a leftover from those years when the concern of her life had been to attract as little of her father's notice as possible. To keep always within call, yet outside the range of his displeasure. That was as much as Aurelia Tuck hoped of life in those days.

And now she had this . . . All of it. The lovely, gracious spaces of this room. April's first sun flooding through the curtains. Her mind went back to the day when she had seen the gallery for the first time. How kind Mr. Varney had been. She wondered where she had ever mustered the courage to come to New York and ask for employment.

She remembered the quizzical lift of Mr. Varney's gray head, as he looked intently at her.

Many people had looked at Miss Tuck, but Mr. Varney was probably the first who had ever seen her.

"WELL, well! So you're Jonathan Tuck's girl!" His tone came back to her now. "He must have led you a life!" And, when she opened her lips in defense, he silenced her.

"Oh, I knew him. And I owe him something for that knowledge, too. It was he who backed me up when I first began buying the Impressionists. He believed in them when Zola's was the only other voice on two continents lifted in their defense. When my clients deserted me, he told me to let them go.

"'Plunge, Varney. Buy more. New clients will come.' That was his advice to me, and he was right. He was the greatest critic of his day."

Miss Tuck dropped her eyes a second. Mr. Varney did not see how moved she was. He had done Jonathan Tuck and Jonathan Tuck's daughter a greater office than he knew, for he had sketched a portrait that was to become a more vivid likeness of her father than all the wretched poses he himself had left in her memory.

When she looked up again, Mr. Varney was staring hard at her.

"I won—der?" He speculated, half to himself. Then:

"If you have his flair for pictures, you will be"—

He left the sentence unfinished and abruptly he brought her to this very room. He let her wander uninterrupted, saw her gaze light, applaud, devour. Heard her murmur, "Beautiful. Very beautiful!"

Suddenly he said:

"Will you be ready to come to work Monday at 9 o'clock?"

And here she had been for two wonderful years. She could come as early in the morning as she liked, and stay as late at night. Sometimes she felt as though she never left at all. Her body inhabited space in Mrs. Pennington's boarding house, but her mind winged back at night to the gallery.

And the pictures! These magic windows flinging wide upon a world of beauty. Beauty! Her eyes dwelt broodingly upon the somber gray beauty of Pissarro's "Matin brumeux"; the sluggish, gray Seine, flowing so slowly beneath the arches of the bridge at Rouen; gray smoke of tug-boats, swirling to meet gray sky. A slight turn of her small head brought her into the hushed, breathless beauty of a summer meadow. She could almost smell the hay and hear the bees.

THEN the beauty of Monet's cathedral facade. Beyond it the chaste beauty of naked birches against the snow.

Why, the whole world was here in this room. Her eye came to rest on the little Renoir nearest to her desk. A pastel, "Deux Femmes." Only a sketch, but her favorite. Mr. Varney had ordered it hung there just a year ago today. She always kept it for the last.

"Very beautiful! Very, very beautiful," she said aloud.

They were her friends, those two women. Often she talked to them. Sometimes they almost answered her. They were always about to walk away, yet there they stood, waiting for her. At times, when she felt especially courageous, she fancied herself linking arms with them and starting off to the nearest tea-shop.

She heard herself saying, "Lemon or cream?" with the utmost ease. It would be nice to go to tea sometimes; to have someone real to talk to. But people frightened her. Even with Mr. Varney, who was almost a god in her eyes, she had little conversation, and young Renshaw, the manager, terrified her so that she could not speak at all.

As if her thought had materialized him, Renshaw opened the door:

"The old man wants you. He's got some queer penguin who wants to meet you."

"Me? There must be some mistake!"

"Now, Miss Tuck, don't get frightened. Just my way of putting it. He's interested in extracting one of these obscure bits of erudite information about masterpieces for which you are so justly famous."

Renshaw prided himself on his "line."

On the floor below, old Mr. Varney and his friend, Dr. Pelanc, were discussing that "line":

"I know what you think of him, Conrad," Mr. Varney was saying, reading the glance the little, dark, middle-aged visitor had thrown at his manager. "The fellow's a fool. But he's useful. Chaps like Himan, with more money than taste, fall for his 'line,' as they say nowadays. He doesn't really know anything about pictures, but he knows something about business. I'm not averse to turning an honest penny."

Dr. Pelanc shook his head, affection in the soft tones of his voice and his bright dark eyes. He spoke with the slight over-emphasis of one who talks a familiar but foreign tongue:

"Ah, the same old Varney!"

"It's all very well for you visionaries to lift your eyebrows. But the man who pays rent on Fifth avenue these days must have a sharp eye to the client with the bank-account. Besides, I know enough about pictures for both of us. Then—well, there's Miss Tuck, too."

"Could she be the daughter of Jonathan Tuck?"

"The same. But surely he was before your time."

"He still echoes. I ran across a criticism of his the other day."

"Good art critic. Must have been a terrible father. Kept her shut up in his house for 30 odd years. Here in New York, she's like a wraith from another planet. But you? The same old bookworm, I suppose. Spend your days in the laboratory and your nights in the library, and leave life to youngsters like myself."

A timid voice interrupted them.

"Did you want me, Mr. Varney?"

SHE stood with her back against the gray oval of the paneled doorway. In her black dress, high to the neck and long sleeved, her ashen hair parted and fastened in the simplest knot, she looked to Dr. Pelanc like a quaint old daguerreotype.

"Two things, Miss Tuck," Mr. Varney was saying. "First, let me present my friend, Dr. Pelanc. He wants to know the size of the National Gallery Holbein. He flatters us by coming, Miss Tuck. You'd never suspect to look at him how much he knows about our business."

Dr. Pelanc bowed low.

"My friend, Varney, will have his joke, Miss Tuck. I am a very simple man of science. Of art I am only an amateur critic. With your indulgence, perhaps ——"

"Well, well, have it your way, Pelanc. Get Miss Tuck to show you that new Sisley I brought back last year."

"Yes, Mr. Varney. And is there something else?"

"To be sure. I forgot. I'm off to Paris tomorrow! Back in six weeks or two months. Let me have a list of the prices brought at the last Hamilton sale, please."

Back in her own quarters, Miss Tuck turned the pages of catalogues. Dr. Pelanc moved from one frame to another. Once Miss Tuck looked up and caught his gaze upon her. Her eyes dropped to their task again, and the visitor resumed his circuit of the gallery. Quite abruptly he broke the silence:

"Beautiful! Very, ve-ry beautiful!"

Miss Tuck looked up, startled. It was like an echo of herself.

Dr. Pelanc was standing before the Renoir. It was the minute of the day when the afternoon sun, striking through a high window, fell in long rays full upon it. It picked up the yellows on the canvas and danced with them in the Parisian street. It intensified the fleeting transitory quality that made it so completely a Renoir.

Miss Tuck smiled happily. In an age which measures masculine beauty in terms of chin and jaw-bone, no one could ever have called Dr. Pelanc handsome. But his face partook of the magic of the moment. Lit with the joy of his discovery, it seemed to Miss Tuck a very fine face, almost a beautiful one. And his eyes! They seemed to look right into one, yet one didn't mind. How curious! She found herself speaking quite easily:

"You like it, too? It has been my favorite, since Mr. Varney brought it back from Paris, a year ago."

"Like it? Ah, but my dear young lady, how could one help it? I think I have never seen a finer. I must have it. But how? That is the question."

"As these things go, it is not expensive. One thousand dollars. I have wondered that it has not sold before. Perhaps because it is so small. So many want only the larger beauties."

"That is cheap. I must think. I must think. Tomorrow—may I come again?"

"Please."

"You have given me a great pleasure, Miss Tuck." He bowed himself out, and it was not until after he had gone that Miss Tuck realized he had left without the information he had come seeking.

WHEN Dr. Pelanc came the next afternoon, they laughed over the incident of the forgotten memorandum. He noticed that her laugh was shy. He wanted to hear it again. It would be nice to make her really laugh . . . Often.

They discussed the Renoir. Dr. Pelanc sighed:

"You see, I lack decision. Not one of those strong men who see always the black and white of everything and know how to choose."

"But one buys a picture for all of one's life. It is important. One should take time."

He gave her a grateful smile:

"You see, there is something more to it. In a month I shall receive a legacy that is due me. Oh, a very little legacy. But it is just enough. A thousand dollars. I had made up my mind to use it to go back to Prague this summer. It is twelve years since I was there, and there have been many changes. But it is not fair that I should bore you with my problems."

"Oh, please." Miss Tuck's eyes and lips urged him to continue.

"You are very easy to talk to—and for me it is not always easy. I am often timid with people."

"Oh, I know. I'm like that, too—with every one————well, almost everyone."

In the three weeks that followed, Dr. Pelanc came often to see the Renoir. Always he chose that hour in the late afternoon when the shaft of sunlight was full upon it. By that hour, he had put in a long day in his laboratory and was ready to stretch his cramped body on the avenue.

Life went on as serenely as ever in the gallery. If Mr. Varney had been there, it is possible he would have detected a change in Miss Tuck's appearance; a lift of the head, perhaps, a new courage in her soft gray eyes. Mr. Renshaw was unaware of any difference, and Miss Tuck herself knew only that to work in this beautiful place seemed each day a greater and a greater miracle.

Gradually, she and Dr. Pelanc learned the important facts about each other's life, and tastes. He told her of the stables in Sniffen's Court, where he lived. Of the treasures he had collected. He mentioned particularly a Poussin drawing, a seventeenth century thing he would like especially to show her.

THEN, on a Saturday afternoon, three weeks from the day they met, he surprised both himself and Miss Tuck by persuading her to come to tea with him the following afternoon.

It was agreed that they were to meet in the Rodin Room at the Metropolitan Museum Sunday afternoon, and get back to Sniffen's Court in time for tea.

After he had gone, Miss Tuck walked over to the Renoir:

"Did you hear?" she asked of her two friends. "To tea! I'm going to tea. We——"

Voices in the doorway halted her. She turned to see Mr. Renshaw and Mr. Varney's most opulent client, Mr. Himan. She hurried back to her desk. The two men passed on down the gallery.

Their voices came back. Mr. Renshaw urged the claims of the Pissarro, but, as Mr. Himan's gaze turned to the Monet cathedral, he re-aimed the battery of words:

"Yes, I see you have an eye for the best, Mr. Himan. There you have Monet at the very peak of his power. He——"

"What's this?" Mr. Himan had stopped before the Renoir. The sun was pointing it out with more emphasis than Renshaw could command.

Miss Tuck's hand clutched the desk. This man could buy the whole gallery. "Not that," she said to herself. "He mustn't! He mustn't!"

"Oh, that," said the manager. "A Renoir. But only a sketch. Not your type exactly."

Miss Tuck could have hugged Renshaw. He had belittled her favorite. She knew that he had done it because he was out for bigger game, but she was willing to let motives pass. They were gone, and Miss Tuck relaxed. The Renoir was safe again. What if it had really slipped away before Dr. Pelanc had had his chance? It just seemed as though she could not have borne it.

Sunday was a day Aurelia Tuck was never to forget. In the weeks that followed she lived it over and over again, as though it were the only thing she had to hold to.

DR. Pelanc was waiting for her at the Museum. In his afternoon coat, a white carnation in his buttonhole, he seemed almost a stranger. She wanted to turn and run. Then his bright, friendly eyes smiled into hers, and she was at her ease.

Then a taxi whisked them downtown and dropped them in a quaint pocket of brick; a courtyard bricked underfoot and faced with old brick stables of fantastic shape, converted now to houses and studios with gay doors and bright bits of curtained windows.

Then they were inside. She was sitting beside the tea-table. The flames from the open fireplace glowed on the brick wall. There was the Poussin drawing and another which she recognized as a Tiepolo. And that bit of old tapestry with the lovely, mellow colors—why this was more beautiful than the Varney galleries. She had never poured tea before. How did one go about it?

She heard herself saying, "Cream or lemon?" and Dr. Pelanc's "Lemon, please, and sugar—two lumps."

How peaceful it was here. She felt wrapped around with peace. Yet she had never felt more alive in all her life. And how she was chattering. The sudden realization of it silenced her.

They sat so for some minutes, until Miss Tuck, glancing at the window, saw that it was dark and arose suddenly.

"Must you?" Dr. Pelanc asked.

"I have stayed longer than I knew."

"And the little French ladies—would they be happy here?"

"How could they help it? How—how could any one help it?"

"Thank you for that. You almost make me believe in myself. I have bungled so many times. I have let so many things slip through my fingers. I have very little faith in my ability to get or keep what I want."

"You mustn't say that. You have so much. Everything. But I know—I used to be like that."

"And now?"

"Now? It's all different. Life is so wonderful. But I must go."

"I shall not see you for a week," he said. "I must go to Baltimore. You will keep the Renoir safe for me?"

"Oh, yes."

He lifted her hand and kissed it. "You—you will take care of my treasure."

All that night Miss Tuck's heart sang.

HER mood persisted until late next afternoon. Then fear swept over her. One couldn't go on being as happy as this. Something must surely happen. She put the thought quickly away and started down-stairs for a catalogue in Mr. Renshaw's office. Mr. Himan was there.

"Think I'll take that cathedral," Himan was saying. "Got a big wall space in the gold room. Looks bare now."

"You will never regret it, Mr. Himan," Renshaw began. "Monet is as sound as——"

Mr. Himan clipped off the speech: "And that one of the two women. Kinda took a fancy to that. Wife might like it."

Miss Tuck did not wait to hear more. She was running upstairs. Dr. Pelanc's Renoir! "Take care of my treasure." Those had been his words. He shouldn't have it. She wouldn't let him—this man who bought pictures by the yard.

There were steps on the stairs. She ran across to the Renoir and took it from the wall. A frantic look around the room for a place to hide it. Then voices outside the door. She sat at her desk as the two men entered.

Renshaw spoke:

"Mr. Himan is buying that Monet, Miss Tuck. He is interested in the Renoir you have here—Why—it's not here. It's—" He looked at Miss Tuck through narrowed lids. Her eyes fell before his suspicion.

"Yes — it's—it's gone," she stammered.

"But what do you mean? Nothing is sold without my knowledge. Be good enough to explain, please?"

"I—I can't—it's—it's gone."

The helpless, desperate look she threw at Himan touched him. He had no idea what was happening, but he knew that she was frightened.

"Never mind, Renshaw. I'll drop around next week and look at some other things."

"That's very considerate, Mr. Himan, but—we must get to the bottom of this. Miss Tuck, will you ask the bookkeeper to come?"

He was icily polite, and the coldness of his tone made it still more impossible for Aurelia Tuck to speak. She stood up. There was a clatter, and the Renoir fell at her feet, face up.

It was Renshaw's icy: "Permit me," that broke the silence, as he stooped to pick up the picture.

Then Himan, with a look so compassionate it almost loosed her tongue:

"Got to run along now. Sure Miss Tuck can explain, Renshaw. See you next week."

She was alone with the manager.

"If you have nothing to say for yourself, stop at the cashier's office and get what is due you."

He waited, as though to give her another chance. Still she could not speak. Abruptly he left the room.

She stood looking helplessly around. "No! No!" The words broke across the choking barrier in her throat. Her job! Her beautiful world! Where would she go? Dr. Pelanc's, Renoir. She had failed him.

WHEN Dr. Pelanc arrived at the Pennsylvania station late the following Saturday afternoon, he took a taxi to the Varney Galleries. He nodded to Renshaw and hurried upstairs. At the door he paused.

He wanted a first glimpse of her before she saw him. He pictured her as she sat there, absorbed in her work, so demure in her golden setting. He entered the room, then stopped suddenly. It couldn't be! That girl . . . at Miss Tuck's desk.

"Can I do something for you?"

"I should like to speak to Miss Tuck," he said, catching a note of fear in his tone.

"Miss Tuck? She was my predecessor. I would be glad to show you anything you want to see."

"You don't mean . . . Surely . . . it cannot be that she is no longer here!"

"But where . . . where has she gone?"

"I don't know. Perhaps they could give you an address."

He went to Renshaw.

That young man explained that Miss Tuck had been dismissed. "In disgrace," he added.

"Oh, but there must be some mistake."

"Not at all, my dear sir. Nothing incredible about being dismissed for stealing. Caught red-handed trying to walk off with a Renoir."

"Oh, but you mustn't say that.

ENOUGH of adventure has come to Mrs. Dorothie Bodley in a single week to last the rest of her lifetime. A crash in an airplane, umiliation at the hands of a mob, spected of being a spy, distress om the indignities of officials—ll these things intruded themelves into what was to have been brief pleasure journey.

Now Mrs. Bodley has returned o her home here, nervously exausted and on the verge of a seris illness. And since her unpleasant adventures occurred in talian waters and on Italian soil, Mrs. Bodley is making a complete report to the Foreign Office. An pology may be asked from Italy.

Mrs. Bodley, an attractive young woman, still bears traces of her ordeal, which, she says, "has destroyed the cherished illusions that such a deplorable condition of affairs could not exist anywhere in Europe in A. D. 1927."

This is the story that Mrs. Bodley tells:

"I HAD ended a holiday at Hammamet, near Tunis. I had gone there in the first nstance to buy a small plot of nd on which to build a villa.

"In an unwise moment I decided to return part of the way home by air, and booked passage n Thursday in a French seaplane or the journey from Tunis to Antibes, near Cannes. A few minutes later, Dr. Pelanc rang the bell at Mrs. Pennington's boarding house.

"She ain't been here for a week," said the maid.

"But she left an address . . . for her letters . . ."

"Never got no letters, never since I been here."

BACK in his own living room in Sniffen's Court, Dr. Pelanc paced up and down. He cursed himself for a bungling fool. What a fool he'd been not to make her understand. But he couldn't hurry her. "I don't know. Perhaps they could give you an address."

He went to Renshaw.

That young man explained that Miss Tuck had been dismissed. "In disgrace," he added.

"Oh, but there must be some mistake."

"Not at all, my dear sir. Nothing incredible about being dismissed for stealing. Caught red-handed trying to walk off with a Renoir."

"Oh, but you mustn't say that.

Victim of Plane Crash Hooted by Italian Mob

The Unusual Welcome That Was Given an English Woman Who Was Mistaken for a Spy at Cagliari, Sardinia.

y a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

ENOUGH of adventure has come to Mrs. Dorothie Bodley in a single week to last the rest of her lifetime. A crash in an airplane, miliation at the hands of a mob, spected of being a spy, distress m the indignities of officials— these things intruded themves into what was to have been brief pleasure journey.

Now Mrs. Bodley has returned her home here, nervously ex- usted and on the verge of a seri- s illness. And since her unleasant adventures occurred in alian waters and on Italian soil, rs. Bodley is making a complete port to the Foreign Office. An pology may be asked from Italy.

Mrs. Bodley, an attractive young oman, still bears traces of her or- al, which, she says, "has de- royed the cherished illusions at such a deplorable condition of ffairs could not exist anywhere in urope in A. D. 1927."

This is the story that Mrs. odley tells:

"I HAD ended a holiday at Hammamet, near Tunis. I had gone there in the first stance to buy a small plot of nd on which to build a villa.

"In an unwise moment I de- ded to return part of the way me by air, and booked passage Thursday in a French seaplane the journey from Tunis to tibes, near Cannes. Two other ssengers were in the machine, Georges Babeau, a French man- facturer, and another French- an, M. Sibea. The pilot was med Jean Ponce and the wire- s operator Gauthe.

"The seaplane left Tunis at 8 a. A few minutes later I noticed trickling down the window of e cabin from a pipe. There was steady drip of oil for about an ur. We had been in the air out two hours, when the sea- ne suddenly dropped on the sea e a stone.

"The machine bounced up and wn. I was thrown forward in seat, my hands touching the or of the cabin.

"We came down about 12 miles m Cagliari, Sardinia, at 10 lock. There was not a vessel sight. We wondered whether plane would sink before help ived. The sea was rough and an to wash over part of the ma- ne.

"When the seaplane righted lf we saw at once that the float the end of the right wing was ssing, and that the pilot, his face covered with oil from the leaking pipe, and, as he told us afterwards, almost ill from the quantity of oil that had been blown into his mouth, was making his way to a precarious position on the edge of the wing. Only the courage and resource he showed in balancing himself on that wing-tip kept the machine from overturning.

"WE WERE in this dangerous plight until 11:30, when an Italian cargo steamer came in sight. I prayed it would see us, and my fellow passengers, who had climbed to the top plane, waved and shouted, attempting to attract attention. The seaplane made a sickening lurch, and I believed for one moment that help had come too late. I think my heart stopped beating for that moment.

"The steamer drew near and, after great difficulty in the rough sea, managed to put a rope on board the seaplane and tow us into the harbor of Cagliari.

"Here an official, whom we discovered to be the Harbor Master, met us in a motor boat and forbade us to leave the seaplane, though we were all in an obviously distressed condition.

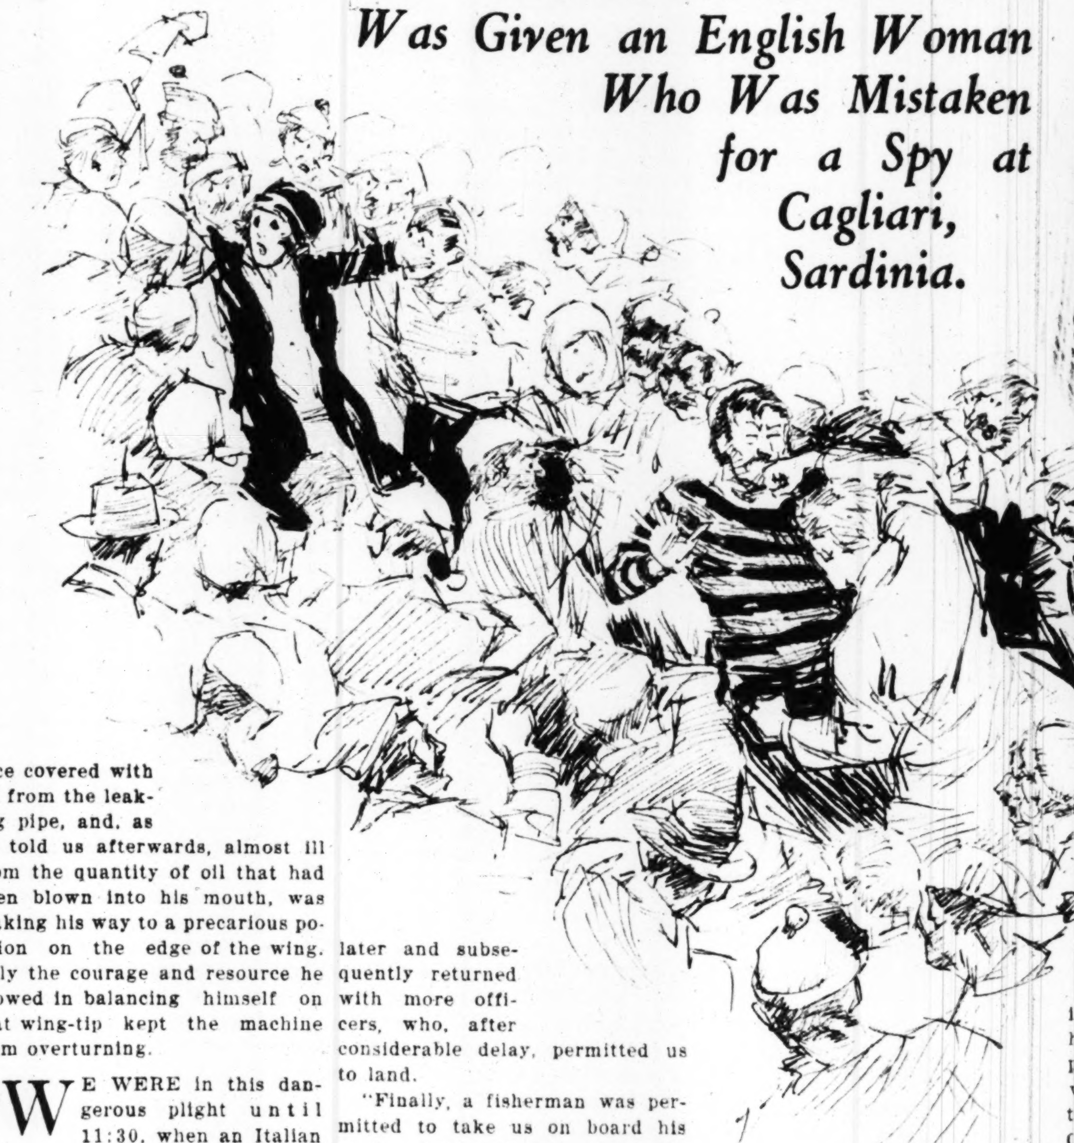
"We produced our passport papers and luggage for his examination and spoke to him through the medium of M. Sibea, who spoke a little Italian. I promptly asked to see the British Consul, and after some argument the harbor official promised to send for him. He left in his motor boat a few minutes later and subsequently returned with more officers, who, after considerable delay, permitted us to land.

"Finally, a fisherman was permitted to take us on board his rowing boat and row us to the quayside, where crowds were lined up along the edge of the water. Soldiers and police in blue and scarlet uniforms, with swords dangling at their heels, faced us as we landed.

"I again asked to see the British Consul. The French passengers asked to see the French Consul. No notice was taken of our requests and we were made to march by the Caribinieri to the barracks, strolling player fashion, with a hostile crowd at our heels.

"I FELT ill; my clothes were wet through, and this amazing treatment after being rescued from a wrecked seaplane exhausted me. We came at last to the barracks of the Caribinieri. Here we were almost pushed into a large room with a stone floor. The room had a wooden bench along the side of the wall.

"Soldiers crowded into the room, prowling round, even prying. Some of the soldiers had brought their friends to look at us.



"The Consul rushed out, hitting right and left as he cut his way toward me."

"I was glad to sit down, but I wanted privacy. Instead, the soldiers brought chairs and sat facing us insolently, with malign eyes. I asked permission to change clothes. This was denied me. Two soldiers offered to accompany me. I stayed in my wet dress. I kept asking for the British Consul, and even wrote a letter to him, but the noncommissioned officer whom I asked to deliver the letter laughed and put it in his pocket.

"If I stood up to walk they followed me. I did not dare to go anywhere alone. This humiliating treatment continued throughout the afternoon. I became a little dazed and even my anger evaporated in my weariness and sodden clothes.

"Then it occurred to me that I had been mistaken for a spy. This thought was corroborated later by Signor Gianatti, the Italian secretary of the British Consul, who said the rumor had spread quickly that the seaplane, containing four men and a woman, had been shot down while taking photographs of the forts at Cagliari.

"We were still in the barracks at 3:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. I was becoming seriously distressed when an Italian who spoke English came in, followed by an Italian officer, who demanded without so much as 'please' my passport.

"WHEN I handed him my passport and the English-speaking Italian explained that I was English, to his surprise, his manner changed, and he asked me with abashed looks what he could do for me. I asked to be allowed to go to a hotel. He ordered soldiers to accompany me, and when I refused this escort, he offered to guide me himself.

"I could not help distrusting the men, and I said that I could not go without the other passengers from the seaplane. Some food was eventually provided. We left the barracks, with the officer, and I saw the Consul at the hotel to which we were taken.

"Two days passed in this manner, and then, after making a request, I was taken to see General Rossi, the officer commanding the district. I received most courteous treatment from General Rossi. He regretted the treatment that I had been subjected to and gave me every facility to send a message to the outside world.

"This was done by wireless from the seaplane guarded in the harbor by two Italian sailors. The pilot sent a message to Tunis for a new machine. A reply was received almost immediately that a machine would be sent at 8 a. m. Sunday.

"I went down to the quayside at the appointed time and sat there waiting for the machine to arrive. It arrived two hours later.

"Unfortunately for me, it was a national fete day and 20 soldiers had to guard the French Consulate that day. Crowds of Italians filled the streets. They saw me sitting on the quayside and I was soon surrounded. Apparently they still believed that I was a spy.

Mrs. Dorothie Bodley.

"I stood up and attempted to walk to the British Consulate, some distance away. The crowd followed me. It seemed as if the rascality of the town had assembled. Some threw stones. As I made my way across the street another crowd coming towards me barred my way and I was caught in the center of a yelling mob.

"THE British Consulate was near. I think Mr. Pernis, the Consul, heard the hubbub, for he rushed out, hitting right and left as he cut his way towards me. The Consul telephoned the police, and after that until I had crossed the Italian frontier I had a guard always with me. From that time on I received every courtesy.

"I left Cagliari on the Tuesday night following in an Italian steamer for Civeta Vecchi. Then Paris—and at last home."

Later Mrs. Bodley learned that her fellow passengers and the pilot arrived safely at Antibes in the second plane. The director of the air line is likewise making a complaint to the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

here is an explanation. I must her."

"Shouldn't bother, if I were . Quite a clear case."

A few minutes later, Dr. Pelanc g the bell at Mrs. Pennington's arding house.

"She ain't been here for a ek," said the maid.

"But she left an address . . . her letters . . ."

"Never got no letters, never nce I been here."

BACK in his own living room in Sniffen's Court, Dr. Pelanc paced up and down. He ed himself for a bungling l. What a fool he'd been not make her understand. But he ldn't hurry her. She was so ferent. So sensitive. So un- e anyone he'd ever known. wanted to surround her with e and bring her to a slow con- usness of his love for her. And look what he'd done! Women lly terrified him. She made feel strong and competent. petent! He snorted with to himself. "Competent!" e was alone, somewhere out in New York—a New York never even dreamed of. out money, perhaps, or food. protection. What could he do? day Sunday he haunted the um on the chance that she go there. On Monday he the round of the galleries. he tried the shops. Rows rows of women. Women of type, but she was not there. ght, when the galleries were closed, he walked the streets in the cheaper boarding-house districts.

At the end of two weeks he was still no nearer a clew. One evening Renshaw appeared at his door. The habitual suavity of that man had departed.

"It's about Miss Tuck I've come," he said abruptly.

"Thank Heaven! Then you've seen her. Where is she, man? Is she safe? Is she well?"

"That's just it—I don't know. I've got to find her. I've got just twenty-four hours to do it. I thought perhaps you could help."

Dr. Pelanc dropped dejectedly into the nearest chair.

"Explain, please. I don't understand," he said dully.

"It's Varney. He's mad as a hornet. I'm to get the sack, if she isn't found tomorrow."

"Mr. Varney is back then?"

"Got in today. He's up at the Galleries now. I never saw him so upset about anything."

"How do you propose to set about finding Miss Tuck?"

"I haven't the remotest idea. Thought maybe you'd know something about her."

After Renshaw had gone, Dr. Pelanc's spirits lifted. At least, he was no longer alone in his pursuit. Hope rose again. As he started for the Galleries, he felt more nearly happy than he had been since that day when he had come back to find her gone.

The street was almost deserted. The theater crowds had already passed. As he neared the Galleries, he saw ahead of him a slight, tottering figure. He quickened his step. Then stopped. Something familiar . . . . It couldn't be she . . . . Yet . . . . The figure disappeared. It seemed to evaporate under his very eyes.

He hurried on, searching the shadows. In a doorway, just across from the Galleries, he found her. She was looking up at the windows opposite——the windows of her old room. He stood there, pulling himself together. Her pale face was ghostly. In her eyes was a wistfulness he could not bear. Then, even before he had time to take the few steps that separated them, she crumpled into a heap in the corner of the doorway.

"Oh, my sweet," he cried.

She was in his arms. A cold, terrible fear gripped his heart. Surely it couldn't be that he had found her only to lose her again. He lifted her. How light she was! Across the street to the Varney doorway he hurried. He held her against him with one arm and he fumbled for the night bell. Varney himself opened the door.

TOGETHER they took her, still unconscious, up the stairs to the great gallery. They laid her on the settee in the center of the room. Neither spoke. Dr. Pelanc fell on his knees beside her and began chafing her hands. The older man looked down at them, his face a study of bewilderment, battling with rage at the whiteness of her.

Miss Tuck was already coming to. Dr. Pelanc was still on his knees beside her. His head was close to hers, and he was pleading with her to open her eyes. Her eyelids fluttered and lifted slowly. Her lips parted, almost smiled. Her gaze wandered about the room—her beautiful room. Dimly she saw the Pissarro and the Monet and—yes—the Renoir, too. There, where it always hung. Her eyes came back to rest on his face. They were full of peace. Then a look of terror and a frantic, "Where am I? Oh—I've dreamed again. It isn't true."

Dr. Pelanc shook his head.

"No, my dear, not a dream. You're here. Here in your old place."

She ventured a feeble smile. These were her friends. This was the world she knew. She closed her eyes again in content. Varney looked from one to the other.

"What's it all mean, my friends? What have you been up to, while I have been away?"

"That's a long story, my dear Varney. But I mean to take her away from you and keep her—if she'll let me."

"But I thought it was those two women you came here to see," said Varney, pointing to the Renoir.

Dr. Pelanc smiled. "They belonged together."

"Well, perhaps—I'll tell you what I'll do. I will make you a proposition. If you can win the one, you shall have them all. We'll make it a wedding present. Meanwhile, I'm going to telephone for some supper. Miss Tuck and I are hungry."

When he had gone, she opened her eyes.

"Did you hear?" Dr. Pelanc asked timidly.

She smiled and nodded.

"AND I thought you would never want to see me again," she said, "after . . . after what I did."

"What is it, dear? What did you do? Can't you tell me?"

"Oh, I can tell you anything. That's why it was so wonderful."

He lifted her hands again and kissed them.

"It was about the Renoir," she said. "I did try. But I couldn't explain. It is so difficult for me to talk to Mr. Renshaw. He thought I was stealing it and—and I was only trying to guard your treasure."

"Oh, you quaint, dear stupid." His voice was low and very tender. "Couldn't you see? It was you. It was you I meant all the time."

"Oh, I never dreamed. I . . ." Her face quivered. Her eyes filled with tears.

"My dear, my dear." He took her face between his hands and kissed her wet lashes. "But I want to make you laugh. I want to take care of you. I want to go out and gather all the beauty in the world and bring it back and drop it in your lap."

She closed her eyes. This strange quiet. The peace of it. It seemed to fill the room. This was a beauty she had never before known. All the misery of the past weeks was as far away as though it had never been. She opened her eyes again and came back to the familiar. The room. The man. The Renoir. Her gaze lingered there.

"Very, very beautiful," she said.

"Yes, very beautiful," he echoed.

But he was not looking at the Renoir.

ISO=VIS

Adds Pleasure to Motoring

Motor trips this summer will be more pleasant than the trips of other years, because a new motor oil, Iso=Vis, has been put on the market by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). This oil meets the new theory of scientific lubrication of automobiles. Motoring will be smoother and dilution troubles only memories, now that you can get Iso=Vis.

Iso=Vis is radically different from any oil you've ever used. Old type motor oil loses two-thirds of its viscosity before the car has gone 200 miles. Now Iso=Vis solves the dilution problem. The viscosity of Iso=Vis remains constant!

This remarkable new motor oil lubricates the engine of your car perfectly summer or winter and keeps it lubricated from start to finish. You can motor along with never a thought of oil—engine purring softly—motor running smoothly—all the power and the speed that were built into your car ready for your command.

Iso=Vis is revolutionary in everything but price. It is 30c per quart and it actually costs less per mile than old type oil. Because Iso=Vis is on the market, motor trips this summer will hold more pleasure than the trips of other years.

Like the cool of a breeze at the mountain top

You are always sure of a cool, refreshing drink when you order "Canada Dry."

It isn't sickly sweet like so many summer drinks, but crisp and keen like the cool of a breeze at the mountain top.

One of the principal reasons for this is the fact that "Canada Dry" is made from the highest grade Jamaica ginger instead of capsicum (red pepper).

Capsicum always gives a biting, burning taste and it is used in many ordinary ginger ales because it costs much less to use than the kind of ginger used in "Canada Dry."

Buy "Canada Dry" in summer, therefore, not only because of the wonderful flavor, but because you know that you can depend on its unvarying purity and high quality. It has been served for years in the great hospitals in Canada and in this country.

Are you twenty-four hours late?

In the leading research X-ray laboratories of America and Europe, doctors are making a new study.

Vitally important in those thousands of cases where there is no apparent cause for ill health yet where ill health does exist.

They give a test meal. They watch its progress through the body. They note how long it takes to eliminate the last trace.

The results are amazing. Even though elimination is regular, day by day, in many cases it is late. Twenty-four hours or more!

They find that this condition of latent (hidden) constipation is far from uncommon. The unsuspected reason why thousands of people are afflicted with headaches, depression, indigestion embarrassing skin troubles.

Fat Lost

Joy Gained

There are countless people who can tell you an easy, pleasant way to reduce. Perhaps your own friends are among them. There are now so many that excess fat is not nearly so common as it was.

That way is Marmola Prescription Tablets. It is based on many years of scientific research. People have used it for 19 years, and every circle shows the fine results.

Users have shown others, told others the effects. And the use has grown in this way to very large proportions.

Marmola requires no abnormal exercise or diet. One simply takes four tablets daily, to correct the cause of excess fat, until weight comes down to normal. And users find other benefits galore.

You should try Marmola. Any help which has done, for 19 years, what Marmola has done, must be efficient and helpful. That is the way to easy, scientific reduction. Try it, for your own sake—now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

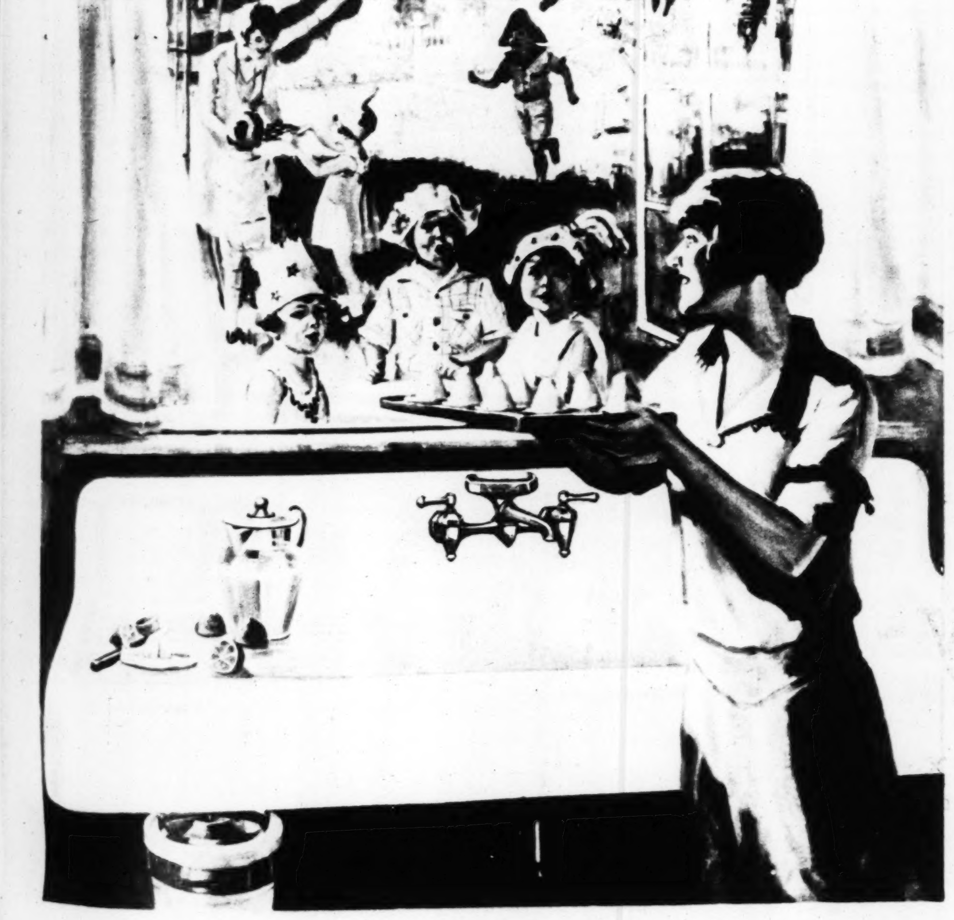
THE SINK IN THE SUNLIGHT

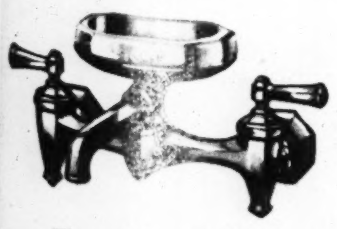


How low is your kitchen window?

Not so low but that the new "Three Eights" sink will fit under it!

Enjoy the out-of-doors as you work at your sink! There's no longer any reason why you should face an uninteresting blank wall. The new "Standard" "Three Eights" sink, with its 8-inch low back, fits easily under a broad, deep window. This sink is made of acid-resisting enamel which fruit and vegetable acids cannot roughen or discolor.

Come in and see the three styles and seven sizes. Be sure to specify acid-resisting enamel as many other "Standard" models are also made in regular enamel. The trademark "Standard" A-R, identifying acid-resisting enamel, is impressed in every "Three Eights" sink. Write for interesting booklet.



The swinging spout faucet is hand-wrought in a graceful octagonal design. It is finished in Chromard, a metal with the sheen of platinum that cannot tarnish or corrode. Casual care keeps it bright and beautiful.

The "THREE EIGHTS" SINK

8-inch low back fits snugly under a deep window.

8-inch deep sink is roomier, prevents over-the-rim splashes.

8-inch deep front gives the whole sink a new beauty.

For at a near-by store a magic partner of frolic and fun is waiting to lift your dinners, dances and parties right out of the ordinary. . . .

The Prince of Pales! Busch Pale Dry!

That happy, friendly ambassador of good taste and good times that fits in so perfectly with the modern scheme of things. The same wonderful ginger ale that, until recently, was served only at America's most exclusive clubs, hotels, restaurants and cafes.

The flavor of it! . . . subtle and satisfying as that of a rare old wine. Its color and bouquet! . . . like fine champagne. Real life and zest and sparkle in every dancing drop.

And real friendliness for other drinks!

Your very first glassful will tell you that Busch Pale Dry is unquestionably the finest mixer that ever bubbled out of a bottle—a ginger ale that is really worthy of America's foremost makers of good things to drink.

It is aged in wooden casks for three solid months! Genuine fruit juices are used in it—not mere fruit essences. Double-filtered thru especially constructed stone water filters, it is as pure and wholesome as sunshine and fresh air.

Enjoy it tonight! Your dealer has it—in single bottles, in splits, in the handy family package of 12 bottles and in cartons of 24. And will gladly deliver. Phone him now.
